What's new in the Second Edition?

Touchstone is an innovative series for adult and young adult learners of American English that is used by millions of learners worldwide. The Second Edition has been thoroughly updated based on suggestions from teachers and students all over the world. In addition to having a fresh look and new photos, Touchstone Second Edition includes:

- more practice throughout, including a new Extra practice activities section which provides additional opportunities to practice key grammar points; these activities are for use in class or as homework
- Can do-style objectives to highlight the learning outcomes of each unit lesson, plus Now I can . . . self-evaluation sections at the end of each unit
- Common errors panels, which provide information from the Cambridge Learner Corpus to help students avoid making basic errors and to improve their test scores
- Reading tips, which introduce a skill or strategy to help students develop reading proficiency
- Sounds right activities, which provide additional pronunciation practice
- refreshed and updated content, including new activities, audio, and reading texts in every unit

Touchstone is a corpus-informed course, drawing on extensive research into the corpus of North American English in the Cambridge English Corpus (“the Corpus”) – a large database of everyday conversations and a variety of written texts that show how people actually use English. The database also includes the multimillion-word Cambridge Learner Corpus, which shows us how learners at different levels use English, what problems they have, and what the most common errors are at each level.

Corpus research ensures that learners using Touchstone will encounter the most useful and widely used words, phrases, and grammar in a range of everyday situations. Corpus research also led to the development of a unique conversation skills syllabus that includes strategies such as how to start and end conversations, how to show interest, and how to ask questions that are not too direct. The result is a groundbreaking course of language and skills development that helps learners communicate naturally and effectively, even at the very beginning levels.

Easy and enjoyable to teach, Touchstone is full of new and exciting ideas, offering a fresh approach to the teaching and learning of English. Here are some answers to the questions that people have asked us about the Touchstone series.

Touchstone is a corpus-informed course. What is a corpus, exactly?

A corpus is a database of spoken and / or written English. The words in a corpus can be collected from a variety of sources. For example, texts in a written corpus may come from newspapers, magazines, books, or websites, while “texts” in a spoken corpus may come from everyday conversations between friends and family, strangers, co-workers, etc. Touchstone was written using the corpus of North American English in the Cambridge English Corpus – a database that currently holds more than a billion words from spoken and written texts.

Do I need to know a lot about the Corpus to be able to teach with Touchstone?

Not at all. You don't need any special knowledge of the Corpus to use the course successfully. You can feel assured that we, as the authors, have checked the Corpus carefully to ensure that the language we teach is frequent, natural, and useful, and that the statements we make about language are accurate.

As you teach from Touchstone, you and your students will learn many interesting facts about language coming from our corpus research. Throughout the Student's Books you will see In conversation panels, which give useful information about spoken grammar and vocabulary or about differences between informal and formal spoken English. On many of the Vocabulary notebook pages, these In conversation panels present fun facts about vocabulary, such as how people refer to family members and what color and food words are used most frequently in conversation. The Common errors panels give useful advice on common errors to avoid with a particular language item. In the Teacher's Editions we provide additional information about grammar and vocabulary that we feel will be of particular interest to you as a teacher. See pages xix–xxii in this Teacher's Edition for a list of the 500 words used most frequently in conversation.

What kinds of information can you learn from a corpus?

Using computer software to analyze a corpus, we can find out the most commonly used English words and expressions. The use of a corpus is a major innovation that makes it possible to develop an exciting new approach to learning English.

We used the Corpus to answer questions like these:

What are the most frequent words and phrases in English? By analyzing the Corpus, we can identify the most frequent words in everyday conversation. For example, we can find the top 50, 500, 1,000, or 5,000 words in the spoken Corpus and see how these are different from the most frequent words in the written Corpus. This ensures that students learn the most useful conversational words right from the beginning.

Which English words are most likely to occur together? We can find typical collocations, or words frequently used together, by looking at all the examples of an individual word and seeing what words most often precede or follow it. For example, we can identify the adjective that most frequently follows the adverb pretty (as used in It was pretty good.). We learn that the top four adjective collocations with pretty are pretty good, pretty nice, pretty bad, and pretty cool. This kind of information helps us present the adverb pretty, as well as other words and phrases, in natural and useful collocations.

What are the most common meanings and uses of a particular grammar structure? By using the Corpus, we can find out, for example, how people typically use the verb can. Most teachers are familiar with the meaning of can for “ability,” as in the sentence I can swim. Conversations in the spoken Corpus show that a more frequent meaning of can is that of “possibility,” or what it is possible to do in different places and situations, as in the sentence In New York, you can go to the top of the Empire State Building. So Touchstone gives priority to this use of can.

Which verb forms do people use most frequently? The spoken Corpus shows which verb forms people use most frequently in conversation. The simple present, for example, is more common than the present continuous. For that reason, we made a decision to introduce the simple present before the present continuous in Touchstone.

How do people manage conversations effectively? By reading the multitude of conversations in the Corpus, we can see how people interact in real-life situations. For example, how do people show that they are interested in a conversation and that they are listening? Conversations in the Corpus show that people do this by repeating information, asking questions, and saying things like “Really?,” “Right,” “I know,” and “Uh-huh.” What do people say when they want to end a conversation? There are many examples in the Corpus of people saying “Anyway, . . .” to end a conversation politely. How do people make sure their questions do not seem too direct? The Corpus shows people rephrasing questions with “I mean,” and adding the word or at the end of yes-no questions. For example: Where do you go after work? I mean, do you go somewhere nice?; Would you like to go out or . . . ? The answers to these and other questions make it possible for Touchstone to teach students useful strategies for managing conversations successfully in English.

What are the most typical contexts for specific vocabulary and grammar structures? Searching the Corpus helps us find typical situations for using specific grammar structures and vocabulary so that we can present new language in natural contexts. The articles, conversations, interviews, and listening material that students encounter in the series are constructed in ways that reflect the character and content of the material in the Corpus.

What errors do students make most frequently with grammar or vocabulary? Searching the Learner Corpus helps us find the most frequent and persistent errors that learners typically make with different structures and at different levels. Examples include the verb forms that students have most problems with, using uncountable nouns correctly, and spelling problems. This information from the Learner Corpus enables us to target such problem areas and alert students to them as points to watch out for.

How does this corpus-informed approach help me and my students?

By identifying what language is essential to basic communication and what language allows us to speak clearly and precisely, corpus-informed materials can take learners to their goals more quickly and efficiently.

In addition, a study of a spoken corpus teaches us important things about social communication. As a result, activities based on corpus-informed materials can focus on the most important features of listening and speaking skills, making students more effective listeners and communicators. Successful spoken interaction is often called “the fifth skill.”

Finally, successful learning is all about motivation. Corpus-informed materials motivate learners because they can feel confident that the language they are learning is up-to-date, useful in everyday conversations, and targeted to situations in which they are likely to find themselves. Students can also be sure that the language corresponds to what they will encounter in real conversations, on radio and TV shows, in movies, on websites, and in books, newspapers, and magazines.

What methodology will I be using in Touchstone?

Touchstone merges the best features of proven and familiar communicative methodologies, offering stimulating activities that are carefully crafted to focus on the learning process. The Touchstone philosophy maintains that a successful course meets all of the following goals:

- 1. It is interaction-based. An important learning aim in every lesson is to get students talking to each other. This strong emphasis on spoken interaction enables students to put new language to use immediately to communicate with their classmates. In addition, Touchstone devotes a full lesson in every unit to the teaching of conversation strategies so that students can learn the skills needed for effective spoken communication.
- 2. It personalizes the learning experience. Touchstone offers engaging activities that encourage students to talk about their own lives and ideas as they discuss topics relevant to their interests and experiences. Students will enjoy talking about topics such as TV, music, the Internet, sports, and celebrities. The About you icon points out some of these opportunities.
- 3. It promotes noticing and inductive learning. Throughout the series, students complete tasks that actively involve them in the learning process. Students are also challenged to notice and figure out (inductive learning) grammar structures or English usage. Solving a problem or figuring something out for oneself is a powerful aid to understanding, and research shows that activities that have students notice and figure things out result in successful learning. Figure it out tasks challenge students to think about how target grammar structures are formed and used before they are formally introduced. Notice tasks in the Conversation strategy lessons encourage students to think about how people manage conversations effectively. Word sort tasks and Vocabulary notebook pages get students to actively learn new vocabulary.
- 4. It encourages students to be independent learners. Clear learning aims at the start of each unit, a Now I can . . . checklist on each Vocabulary notebook page, and Progress checks at the end of each Workbook unit enable students to monitor their own learning. Vocabulary notebook pages encourage independent learning habits by allowing students to add their own words, expressions, and example sentences. Reading tips help students improve their reading skills as they tackle any new text. Each Teacher's Edition provides a testing package that gives you and your students another valuable tool for assessing progress.

- 5. It recognizes the importance of review and recycling. Language students need constant review, and Touchstone systematically recycles and reviews target language in several sections of the Student's Book – in Before you begin, Conversation strategy, Reading, Listening, Vocabulary notebook, and Checkpoint, as well as in the Workbook (or Online Workbook). Grammar, vocabulary, and conversation strategies taught in earlier units are recycled in later units. Items learned in lower levels are recycled in subsequent levels. Recycle icons throughout the Teacher's Editions point out these and other opportunities for review and recycling.
- 6. It offers flexibility to meet the needs of specific classes. Touchstone can be used with large and small classes. Activities can be done in pairs, groups, or as a whole class, depending on your particular needs. Touchstone can also be adapted to varying course lengths. For shorter courses, the Vocabulary notebook pages and Reading and Writing tasks, as well as the Extra practice activities, can be assigned for homework. For longer courses, the Workbook provides additional learning tasks. The Teacher's Edition offers a variety of extra classroom activities to reinforce learning that can be used when time allows.

Can I teach the lessons in a unit out of order?

It is highly recommended that Lessons A, B, C, and D are taught in order. This is because the new structures and vocabulary taught in the earlier lessons are generally recycled and reused in the later lessons. Each lesson in a unit assumes that students have learned the language of the previous lesson(s).

A special thank-you from the authors . . .

We have been greatly appreciative over the years for the feedback and support of teachers and students. We would like to extend a very personal thank-you to all those who have helped with the development of Touchstone Second Edition, and we hope that it will continue contributing to the success of your English classes. We always welcome any feedback and wish you well.

With our very best wishes,
Mike McCarthy

Course components

Each level of Touchstone Second Edition consists of a full suite of print and digital components. Print materials include a Student's Book, a Workbook, and a Teacher's Edition with an Assessment Audio CD / CD-ROM. In addition, each level of Touchstone contains a wide range of materials for use in the classroom and as homework – including online materials for Touchstone Blended Learning. Here is a list of the core components:

Student's Book

There are 12 units in each Student's Book. Each unit consists of:

- a unit opener page that presents the unit theme, the learning outcomes for every lesson, and a Before you begin warm-up activity
- four two-page lessons (Lessons A, B, C, and D) that present grammar; vocabulary; conversation strategies; and listening, reading, and writing practice
- a Vocabulary notebook page with fun tasks where students catalog new vocabulary, reinforce collocations, and further develop their vocabulary-building skills
- a Now I can . . . chart on the Vocabulary notebook page that helps students monitor their own learning (NEW!)
- a Free talk task at the back of the book that encourages students to converse freely in a natural setting
- a Sounds right activity at the back of the book that practices sounds, linked to the language of the unit (NEW!)
- an Extra practice page at the back of the book that provides additional practice of key grammar points (NEW!)
- Reading tips that introduce reading strategies and information about written texts; these tips help students develop reading proficiency and provide focused during-reading tasks that allow students to immediately apply the strategy (NEW!)

- In conversation panels that present interesting facts from the Corpus about the frequency of grammatical forms and vocabulary in spoken English

Four Checkpoint lessons review the language taught in the previous three units.

Workbook

The Workbook is a natural extension of the Student's Book, providing reinforcement and consolidation of the material in the Student's Book. There are two pages of follow-up activities for each Student's Book lesson. The Workbook provides:

- thorough consolidation and practice of the vocabulary, grammar, and conversation strategies taught in the Student's Book
- extra reading and writing activities to reinforce these important skills
- a wide variety of activity types, with photos and illustrations to provide context and keep students motivated
- a Progress check at the end of each unit to help students plan further independent study

Online Workbook

The Online Workbook provides the Workbook content as interactive activities. The Online Workbook contains:

- automatically marked activities with instant feedback
- progress checking for teachers
- forums and blogs that enable teachers to communicate with students online
- personalized writing tasks with guided self-assessment

Teacher's Edition with Assessment Audio CD / CD-ROM

The interleaved Teacher's Edition contains practical, step-by-step teaching notes for each page of the Student's Book. It also offers:

- Language notes that not only provide an overview of the language presented in each unit but also give useful information, drawn from the Corpus, on the frequency of grammatical forms, words, and expressions
- a wide variety of extra activities geared to both small and large classes
- unit-by-unit Language summaries that include the unit vocabulary and expressions
- audio scripts for recorded material from the Student's Book
- the Workbook answer key

An Assessment Audio CD / CD-ROM bound into the Teacher's Edition contains:

- written and oral tests – one test of each type for Units 1–6, one for Units 7–12, and one for Units 1–12
- written and oral quizzes – one quiz of each type for every unit
- audio recordings, audio scripts, and answer keys to support the testing program

All tests and quizzes have been revised and checked by a testing expert and are available as PDF and Word documents – allowing teachers to customize them.

Class Audio Program

The Class Audio Program provides students with natural models for speaking and pronunciation as well as the opportunity to listen to a variety of voices and accents. The recordings are in natural, conversational American English. The class audio is available as downloadable recordings from www.cambridge.org/touchstone2/audio. The recordings are also available on CDs.

Presentation Plus Software

Presentation Plus allows teachers to present the Student's Book, Workbook, and Video Activity Worksheets in a lively, interactive way by bringing together text, images, audio, and video in one place at the front of the classroom. The software also allows teachers to annotate pages, zoom in on specific content, and attach their own images, files, and links.

Presentation Plus can be used with all types of interactive whiteboards or with just a computer and projector.

Video and Video Resource Book

The Touchstone Video, available on DVD, provides video conversations that accompany the Student's Book. The Video Resource Book offers worksheets for each unit. These can be used in class as extension activities.

Teacher's Support Site

The teacher's support area on the Touchstone website offers teaching tips, classroom activities, downloadable materials, and more.

Placement Testing Program

The Touchstone / Viewpoint Placement Testing Program helps teachers place students in the correct level of Touchstone or Viewpoint. The Testing Program provides three versions of the Objective Placement Test (multiple-choice questions that cover Listening, Reading, and Language Use), a Placement Essay, and a Placement Speaking Assessment to determine oral competency. An audio program, audio scripts, answer keys, and complete guidelines for administering the test are also included.

Also available: Touchstone Blended Learning

Touchstone Blended Learning is a completely customizable suite of print and digital components. The online component consists of the Touchstone Student's Book content along with additional activities, video material, tests, online communication tools, and animated presentations of grammar, pronunciation, and conversation strategies. With learning outcomes tightly integrated between the online material and the Student's Book, teachers can move seamlessly between the two, choosing which activities students do in class and which they complete online.

Key features of blended learning

- automatic feedback and progress tracking
- automatically marked tests and quizzes
- online communication tools that allow teachers and students to collaborate and interact online (forums, chat, blogs, etc.)
- animated presentations teaching target language, useful for learning prior to class or as a follow-up to material taught in class
- pronunciation and role-play activities to further practice speaking
- fun language learning games that recycle grammar and vocabulary
- additional video material

For a complete list of components, visit www.cambridge.org/touchstone2 or contact your local Cambridge University Press representative.

Structure of the units in the Student's Book

All units contain the following basic structure. It is important to note that lessons should be taught in A, B, C, D order. There may be some variety in the exact position of pronunciation, listening, and speaking activities from unit to unit.

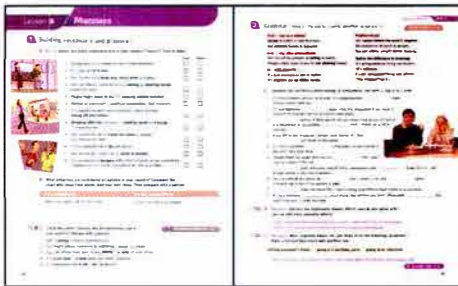

Unit opener – Unit overview and warm-up activity

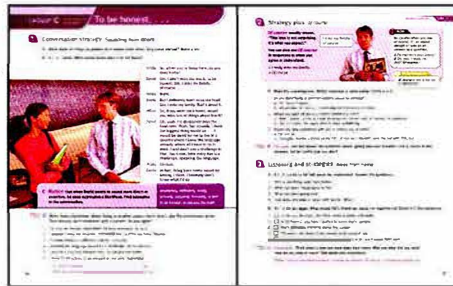

Lesson A – Grammar, pronunciation, and speaking

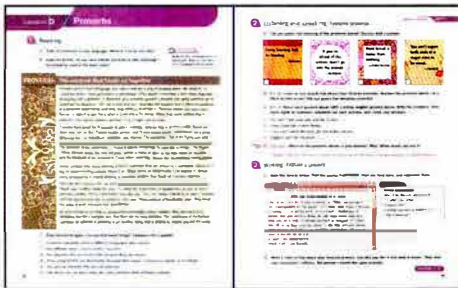

Lesson B – Vocabulary, grammar, and speaking

Lesson C – Conversation strategies, listening, and speaking

Lesson D – Reading, writing, listening, and speaking

Vocabulary notebook – Strategies for learning vocabulary and Now I can... self-check evaluation section

At the back of the Student's Book

Free talk – Additional speaking activities for use in class

Sounds right – Pronunciation practice

Extra practice – Additional practice of the unit grammar

After units 3, 6, 9, and 12

Checkpoint – Review

Unit opener

The unit opener page sets the scene for the unit topic and introduces new vocabulary.

UNIT 3

World cultures

Can DO! In this unit, you learn how to . . .

Lesson A
• Talk about your culture using the simple present passive

Lesson B
• Talk about customs and manners using verb + -ing and to + verb

Lesson C
• Use expressions like to be honest to sound more direct
• Use of course to give information that is not surprising, or to agree

Lesson D
• Read an article about proverbs
• Write an article about a favorite proverb

1. A plate of food
2. A person in a white uniform
3. The Statue of Liberty
4. A colorful festival
5. A woman in a kimono
6. A festival scene

Before you begin . . .

What are some of the cultural traditions in your country? Think of a typical . . .

- dish or drink.
- festival.
- type of music or dance.
- item of clothing.
- symbol.
- handicraft.

21

Unit aims

- show key grammar, vocabulary, topics, functions, and strategies

Before you begin . . .

- provides photos of contemporary life, allowing easy introduction of the unit theme
- recycles structures from previous units in a short warm-up activity
- teaches new vocabulary related to the unit theme

Lesson A presents the main grammar point of the unit with some relevant new vocabulary. It may include a Speaking naturally pronunciation task, a Talk about it group discussion, or a Listening task.

Lesson A Traditional things

What not to miss . . .

WE ASKED PEOPLE: What's one thing you shouldn't miss on a visit to . . . ?

SOUTH KOREA

"Oh, Korean food! We have so many different dishes. One typical dish is kimbap. It's made with rice and vegetables and wrapped in dried seaweed. And it's eaten cold. It's delicious." —Min-hee Park

PERU

"Well, Peru has some beautiful handicrafts. A lot of them are exported nowadays, and they're sold all over the world. But it's still worth visiting a local market. These earrings are made locally. They're made of silver." —Elena Camacho

JAPAN

"A Japanese festival like the Sapporo Ice Festival—that's really worth seeing. It's held every February. They have all these sculptures that are carved out of ice—and they're carved by teams from all over the world. It's amazing." —Sachio

AUSTRALIA

"Oh, you should go to a performance of traditional Aboriginal music. They play this instrument—it's called a didgeridoo. It's made out of a hollow piece of wood and painted by hand. It makes a really interesting sound." —Robert Flynn

1 Getting started

A Look at the countries above. What do you know about each country? Make a list of ideas.

B Listen. What aspect of their country's culture does each person talk about?

C Rewrite the sentences below, but keep the same meaning. Use the comments above to help you.

1 You eat kimbap cold.	Kimbap _____ cold.
2 People make earrings like these locally.	Earrings like these _____ locally.
3 They export a lot of handicrafts.	A lot of handicrafts _____.
4 Teams from all over the world carve the sculptures.	The sculptures _____ by teams from all over the world.

Getting started

- presents new grammar in natural contexts such as conversations, interviews, surveys, and phone messages
- focuses on the most frequent and useful language for everyday communication

- helps students notice the forms and uses of the new structure
- challenges students to use their inductive skills before a grammar chart is presented

Grammar charts

- provide a clear presentation of new structures

Grammar exercises

- give students both controlled and freer practice with the new structures
- offer opportunities to exchange personal information

In conversation

- presents interesting facts from the Cambridge English Corpus about the frequency of grammatical forms and vocabulary in spoken English

Common errors

- provides information from the Cambridge English Corpus about key errors to avoid

Speaking naturally

- helps students understand and use natural pronunciation and intonation
- provides communicative and personalized practice to fully integrate pronunciation into the lesson
- covers the key areas of linking and reduction, stress and intonation, basic grammatical forms, and common problems in listening comprehension

2 Grammar The simple present passive 4 | 123

Use the passive when the "doer" of the action is not known or not important.

Active	Passive
How do they make kimbap? They make it with rice and vegetables.	How is kimbap made? It's made with rice and vegetables.
Do they eat it hot or cold? They eat it cold. They don't eat it hot.	Is it eaten hot or cold? It's eaten cold. It's not eaten hot.
They carve the sculptures out of ice.	The sculptures are carved out of ice.

If the "doer" of the action is important, you can introduce it with by.

The sculptures are carved by teams from all over the world.

Common errors: Be sure to use the verb in the present simple passive. The sculptures are carved out of ice. (NOT) the sculptures are carved out of ice.

A Rewrite the questions about your country. Then write true answers. Use the simple present passive.

- When do people sing the national anthem?
When is the national anthem sung? It's sung . . .
- How do you make your favorite traditional food? Do you serve it cold?
- Do both men and women play your country's national sports?
- When do people celebrate your most important festivals? Does everybody celebrate them?
- When do people wear the national costume? Do people wear it a lot?
- Do people play traditional folk music?
- Do people make traditional handicrafts? Where do they sell them?

B Compare your answers with a partner. Can you add more ideas?

3 Speaking naturally Silent syllables

maʊə dɪfɪkənt ɪnstrʊkʃən wɔːrdz

A Listen and repeat the words. Notice that the unstressed vowels are not pronounced.

B Listen to people talk about their cities. Cross out the vowel that is not pronounced in the underlined words. Then read the sentences to a partner.

- Broc, Switzerland: We're known for our chocolate, which is sold all over the world. If you're really interested, you can visit a factory to learn about the history of chocolate and how it's made.
- Coober Pedy, Australia: The average temperature here in summer is almost 40°C, so it's much cooler to live underground. It's definitely something different for travelers!
- Akihabara, Japan: If you want a camera, then you have to shop here. Practically every brand of electronic and computer goods is displayed here!
- Boyacá, Colombia: Emeralds are mined all over the world, but our region has some of the best and most valuable stones. They're mostly exported and made into jewelry.

C Choose a city, region, or country, and tell the class what it's known for. Guess the places your classmates talk about.

"This place is known for its wooden dolls. They're painted by local artists."

Lesson B

Lesson B teaches the main vocabulary of the unit and builds on the grammar taught in Lesson A. It may include a Speaking naturally pronunciation task, a Talk about it group discussion, or a Listening task.

Lesson B
Manners

1 Building vocabulary and grammar

A 125 Listen. Are these statements true in your country? Check (✓) True or False.

	True	False
1. Eating food on a subway or bus is bad manners.	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>
2. It's rude to cut in line.	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>
3. You should try to keep your voice down in public.	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>
4. You can offend someone by not bowing or shaking hands when you meet.	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>
5. People might stare at you for walking around barefoot .	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>
6. Having an argument in public is considered bad manners.	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>
7. It's impolite to walk into someone's home without taking off your shoes .	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>
8. Showing affection in public – holding hands or kissing – is inappropriate.	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>
9. You should try not to stand too close to people. It's considered rude.	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>
10. It's acceptable not to tip cab drivers.	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>
11. You should be careful not to point at people .	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>
12. It's customary to bargain with street vendors to get something cheaper, but it's not acceptable to do this in a store.	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>

B What behaviors are considered acceptable in your country? Complete the chart with ideas from above. Add your own ideas. Then compare with a partner.

It's acceptable to ...	It's not acceptable to ... take your shoes off in the house	stand too close to people

C Circle the correct choices. Are the sentences true in your country? Discuss with a partner.

- Cut / Cutting in line is bad manners.
- You might offend someone by standing / stand too close.
- You can offend your host by not taking / to take off your shoes.
- It's polite bow / to bow when you meet someone.
- It's customary not to tip / tip cab drivers.

Building vocabulary and grammar

- visually presents new words and expressions, offering students a mini picture dictionary for their reference
- offers a vocabulary syllabus that draws on Cambridge English Corpus frequency information while providing motivating topics
- builds on the grammar of Lesson A, presenting it in a new context

Word sort

- helps students organize new vocabulary in meaningful ways
- gives opportunities for students to use the new vocabulary immediately in meaningful, personalized interactions with classmates

About you

- signals a personalized practice task

UNIT 3

2 Grammar Verb + -ing and to + verb; position of not 126

Verb + -ing as a subject
Eating in public is bad manners.
Not shaking hands is impolite.

Verb + -ing after prepositions
You can offend people by eating in public.
People might stare at you for not shaking hands.

to + verb after It's ...
It's bad manners to eat in public.
It's impolite not to shake hands.

Position of not
Not comes before the word it negates.
Be careful not to point at a people.
You can offend people by not bowing.

Notice the difference in meaning:
It's acceptable not to tip cab drivers. (It's optional.)
It's not acceptable to tip cab drivers. (You shouldn't do it.)

A Complete the sentences about eating at restaurants. Use verb + -ing or to + verb.

- If a friend invites you out to dinner, it's inappropriate _____ (take) another friend with you.
- It's bad manners _____ (not / call) the restaurant if you have a reservation and you decide to cancel your plans.
- _____ (arrive) a little late when you meet a big group of friends at a restaurant is acceptable. _____ (not / show) up at all is impolite.
- If you get to the restaurant before your friend, it's fine _____ (sit) down at the table.
- It's not acceptable _____ (complain) to your server if you don't like your meal.
- People might be upset with you for _____ (not / pay) your fair share of the bill.
- _____ (talk) with your mouth full is considered rude. _____ (take) phone calls during dinner is also bad manners.
- You can offend the server by _____ (not / leave) a tip. But _____ (give) a smaller tip is fine if the service is bad.
- _____ (ask) the server for a box to bring your leftover food home is acceptable.
- It's bad manners _____ (not thank) the person who paid afterwards. _____ (not save) thank you is really impolite.

B Pair work Discuss the statements above. Which ones do you agree with? Can you add more etiquette advice?

A tip: Taking another friend with you is rude – especially if you're not paying. But it's not rude to invite another friend if it's a casual evening out.

C Pair work What etiquette advice can you think of for the following situations? Make a list and then share with another pair.

visiting someone's home going to a birthday party going to an interview

Note: when you visit someone's home, you might offend the host by not bringing a gift.

Lesson C

Lesson C teaches Conversation strategies, including common expressions useful in conversation, followed by a listening and speaking activity that reinforces this conversational language.

Lesson C Conversation strategies To be honest, . . .

1 Conversation strategy Sounding more direct

A What kinds of things do people miss about home when they move abroad? Make a list.

B  1:27 Listen. What would David miss if he left Brazil?

Hilda So, when you're living here, do you miss home?

David Um, I don't miss too much, to be honest. Um, I miss my family, of course. . . .

Hilda Right.

David But I definitely don't miss the food! Um, I miss my family. That's about it.

Hilda So, if you went back home, would you miss lots of things about Brazil?

David Oh, yeah. I'd absolutely miss the food here. Yeah. But actually, I think the biggest thing would be . . . it would be weird for me to live in a country where I knew the language already, where all I have to do is work. I just don't see a challenge in that. You know, here every day is a challenge, speaking the language.

Hilda Uh-huh.

David In fact, living back home would be boring, I think. I honestly don't know what I'd do.

C Notice that when David wants to sound more direct or assertive, he uses expressions like these. Find examples in the conversation.

absolutely, definitely, really, actually, certainly, honestly, in fact, to be honest, to tell you the truth

D Make these statements about living in another country more direct. Use the expressions given. Then discuss each statement with a partner. Do you agree?

- I'd miss my friends. (definitely) I'd miss everyone. (in fact)
- I wouldn't miss the weather. (certainly) But I'd miss the food. (really)
- I'd enjoy living in a different culture. (actually)
- Learning the language would be a challenge. (to be honest)
- I wouldn't miss the lifestyle here. (to tell you the truth)
- I think I'd be scared to go abroad on my own. (honestly)

A If I lived in another country, I'd definitely miss my friends!
 B Well, yes, but to be honest, it's good to make new friends too.

Conversation strategy

- teaches students techniques for managing conversations more effectively in English
- offers an exciting syllabus of strategies drawn from conversations in the Cambridge English Corpus, covering techniques such as starting and ending conversations, reacting to news and information, taking time to think, repeating ideas, keeping conversations going, being polite and not "too direct," and much more

This section provides a four-step presentation and practice where students:

- first, discuss the general topic
- then, listen and understand a conversation
- next, notice the strategy and find more examples
- finally, use the strategy first in controlled, then in more personalized, interactive practice

www.irLanguage.com

Strategy plus

- teaches conversation management expressions such as I mean, Well, and Anyway, all chosen for their relevance and frequency
- extends and reinforces the Conversation strategy

Listening and strategies

- integrates the complementary skills from Conversation strategy and Strategy plus
- gives opportunities to listen to conversations and anecdotes based on real life
- includes "listenership activities" – tasks that mirror real communication by teaching students to react or respond to what they hear; tasks include "listen and choose the best response," "listen and predict," and "listen and decide if you agree"

2 Strategy plus of course

World cultures Unit 2

Of course usually means, "This idea is not surprising. It's what you expect."

You can also use Of course in responses to show you agree or understand.

A I really miss my family. Of course.

Note Be careful when you use of course. It can sound abrupt or rude as an answer to a question.
 A Do you miss your family?
 B Oh, yes, I really do. (NOT Of course.)

Use in conversation Of course is one of the top 50 expressions.

A Read the conversations. Which response is more polite? Circle a or b.

- Do you think living in another country would be exciting?
 a. Of course it would.
 b. Absolutely. Of course, I'd probably feel homesick at times.
- Would you learn all about a country before you went?
 a. Well, I guess I'd like to know all about its culture. And, of course, its traditions.
 b. But of course. You really should learn something.
- Would you take something with you to remind you of home?
 a. Of course.
 b. Probably. Maybe a photo of my cat. Of course, I couldn't take the cat with me, but . . .

About you B Pair work. Ask and answer the questions above, giving your own answers. Use of course in your answers, but be careful how you use it.

3 Listening and strategies Away from home

A  1:28 Listen to Val talk about her experience. Answer the questions.

- Why is she living away from home?
- What has been challenging for her?
- What has been going well?
- How does she keep in touch with family? When?

B  1:28 Listen again. What would Val's friend say about her experience? Check (✓) the sentences.

- To tell you the truth, Val's host sister is pretty unfriendly.
- To be honest, she hasn't gotten to know many people.
- She's definitely learning about the culture.
- Of course, she doesn't like having to be home at ten.
- She's certainly homesick. In fact, she wants to go back home right now.

About you C Group work. Think about a time you were away from home. Who and what did you miss? How did you keep in touch? Talk about your experience.

"When I was an exchange student, I missed my friends. Of course, I missed my family, too."

Lesson D focuses on reading and writing skills while also providing additional listening and speaking activities.

Lesson D Proverbs

1 Reading

A Think of a proverb in your language. When is it used, and why?

B Read the article. Do you have similar proverbs in your language? Are proverbs used in the same way?

Reading tip
Read the first sentence of each paragraph. What do you think each paragraph will be about?

PROVERBS: The wisdom that binds us together

Proverbs exist in every language and culture and are a way of passing down folk wisdom, or "common sense," from generation to generation. Who doesn't remember a time when they were struggling with a problem or dilemma, and someone quoted a proverb that aptly summed up or explained the situation? "All's fair in love and war" describes the injustice that is often encountered in a romantic relationship and may help some of us accept it. "Absence makes the heart grow fonder" is meant to give hope when a loved one is far away. When that same relationship is brought to an end by distance, we hear, "Out of sight, out of mind."

Proverbs have lasted for thousands of years, probably because they're so memorable. Some are short and concise like "Practice makes perfect" and "Haste makes waste," while others use a poetic language such as metaphors, repetition, and rhyme. The metaphor "Out of the frying pan and into the fire" is easy to visualize when you are faced with a difficult situation that just got even worse. The repetition of the consonant "l" makes it easy to remember "It takes two to tango." The rhyme "When the cat's away, the mice will play" comes to mind as soon as the boss leaves on vacation, and the repetition of the structure in "Once bitten, twice shy" makes this an extremely catchy phrase.

Some scholars who study proverbs look for examples that are unique to a particular culture as a key to understanding cultural differences. Others focus on the proverbs that appear in almost every language as a way of defining a common wisdom that binds all humans together.

Proverbs don't always offer up universal truth, however, and they are frequently contradictory. People say, "Clothes make the man" to reflect the importance of appearance as part of one's personal identity. On the other hand, they also say, "You can't judge a book by its cover," to point out that appearances can be deceptive. And with "Handsome is as handsome does" they stress the value of good behavior over good looks.

So while proverbs can help us grasp some universally shared wisdom, they also force us to recognize that life is complex and that there are no easy answers. The complexity of the human condition as reflected in proverbs is yet another thing that is shared by people around the world.

C Read the article again. Can you find these things? Compare with a partner.

1. a function proverbs serve in different languages and cultures
2. two different ways scholars look at proverbs
3. two proverbs that are memorable because they use rhyme
4. three proverbs that are memorable because they repeat consonants, words, or structures
5. two pairs of proverbs that are contradictory
6. two things we can learn when we study proverbs from different cultures

Reading

- provides comprehensive reading-skills development, including pre-reading, "as you read," and post-reading tasks in every lesson; tasks include guessing words from context, understanding main ideas, and text organization
- offers high-interest texts, adapted from magazines, newspapers, and websites, that recycle and consolidate language and provide interesting content for discussion

Reading tip

- introduces reading strategies and information about written texts that help students develop reading proficiency
- provides focused during-reading tasks that allow students to immediately apply the strategy

Listening and speaking

- offers extended listening practice using grammar and vocabulary from the unit
- provides personalized speaking opportunities that build on the listening passage

Writing

- includes real-world writing tasks such as drafting email messages, short articles, and blog entries
- moves from simple sentences to paragraphs, supporting the presentation with models both in the reading text and sample student writing
- provides a systematic syllabus, including Help note panels that give practical advice on areas such as punctuation, linking ideas, and organizing information

2 Listening and speaking Favorite proverbs

World cultures UNIT 3

A Can you guess the meaning of the proverbs below? Discuss with a partner.

Every Tuesday has its Sunday.

If you're afraid of the wolves, don't go into the woods.
—RUSSIAN

Hard bread is better than nothing.
—PORTUGUESE

You can't expect both ends of a sugar cane to be sweet.
—CHINESE

B Listen to four people talk about their favorite proverbs. Number the proverbs above 1 to 4. What do they mean? Did you guess the meaning correctly?

C Match each proverb above with a similar English proverb below. Write the numbers. Then listen again as someone comments on each proverb, and check your answers.

- a. You can't have your cake and eat it, too. _____
- b. Every cloud has a silver lining. _____
- c. If you can't stand the heat, get out of the kitchen. _____
- d. Beggars can't be choosers. _____

About you D Pair work Which of the proverbs above is your favorite? Why? When would you use it?

"Beggars can't be choosers" is used a lot in our house. My mom is always saying it. It's great because..."

3 Writing Explain a proverb

A Read the article below. Find the useful expressions from the Help note, and underline them.

Just one watermelon at a time!

One of my favorite Arabic proverbs is "You cannot carry two watermelons in one hand." It's often said when a person is taking on too much work or too many challenges. It means that you need to focus on one important task at a time and do it well. A similar proverb in English is "Don't bite off more than you can chew." I like the proverb about watermelons because it's an excellent metaphor. Whenever I have to decide about a new project, I can see myself trying to carry two watermelons, and I stop and think about how much work I can handle.

Help note

Useful expressions

One of my favorite proverbs is...

Vocabulary notebook and Free talk

Vocabulary notebook provides enjoyable tasks at the end of every unit to help students organize and write down new vocabulary. It allows students to customize their own vocabulary learning, working in class or at home. The Now I can . . . chart, which appears on the page, provides a list of the main learning outcomes of the unit. This helps students focus on the things they can do with the language they have learned.

Vocabulary notebook Travel etiquette

Learning tip Finding examples
When you learn a new expression, find examples on the Internet. Type the expressions into an Internet search engine with quotation marks (" ") around it.

Search Web browser: Google, Bing, and so on Web: "don't point your foot"
Web: "don't string someone's name"
Web: "don't point your foot at"
Web: "don't point your foot in the direction"
Web: "don't point your foot in the direction"

1 Complete the sentences using the words and expressions in the box.

bowing having an argument kissing to take off walking around barefoot eating to keep your voice down to cut in line to shake hands

- In Japan, _____ is customary when two people introduce themselves.
- In the United States, it's polite _____ firmly when you are introduced to a colleague.
- In South Korea, _____ food on the subway is considered rude.
- In many places of worship in Asia, it's polite _____ your hat and shoes.
- In Chile, people often say hello by _____ each other on the cheek.
- In Australia, _____ is acceptable at beach resorts, but not in public buildings.
- In Taiwan, _____ in public is considered impolite. It's better _____.
- In Great Britain, it's considered rude _____. You should always wait your _____.

2 Word builder Find the meaning of the words and expressions. Write a tip for each one.

blow your nose burp offer your seat to someone swear

On your own
Find a travel guide for a country you'd like to visit. Find six things you should or shouldn't do if you go there.

Can Do! Now I can . . .

I can . . . I need to review how to . . .

- talk about my country's cultural traditions.
- talk about manners, customs, and appropriate behavior in my country.
- use expressions like to be honest to sound more direct.
- use of course to show I understand or agree.
- understand a conversation about living away from home.
- understand people explaining proverbs.
- read an article about proverbs.
- write an article about a favorite proverb.

Learning tip

- introduces a useful technique in every unit for writing down, learning, and remembering new vocabulary
- covers writing whole expressions or collocations; grouping vocabulary in different ways; using charts, mind maps, and pictures; and other techniques

Task 1 practices the technique in the Learning tip with a set of vocabulary taken from the unit.

Task 2 allows students to use the same technique to log vocabulary they want to learn.

On your own offers fun, creative ways to practice vocabulary outside of class.

Now I can . . . encourages learner autonomy by providing a checklist of key learning outcomes with which students can assess their own learning.

Free talk provides optional activities for future practice and expansion of new language and conversation strategies.

Free talk

- encourages students to use the new language in meaningful interaction with their classmates
- presents a creative and varied range of task types, including information-gap activities, discussions, and games

Unit 3 Traditions

1 You have two minutes. Write ideas that your classmates might not think of.

Think of . . .

- a traditional instrument. _____
- a national holiday. _____
- a national sport. _____
- a traditional handicraft. _____
- a festival. _____
- a folk song. _____
- a national food or dish. _____

2 Pair work Ask your partner questions. Try to guess the things on his or her list.

A OK, so what is your instrument made from?
B It's made from wood.
A And where is it played?

3 Do you agree?

1 Pair work What is your opinion about the issues below? Think of two or more reasons to support your view on each topic.

"Well, to be honest, I think they should, for two reasons. First of all . . ."

Do you think . . .	Name
1. manufacturers should be made to produce only energy-efficient appliances?
2. consumers should be encouraged to stop using plastic bags?
3. schools should be required to provide only healthy food for lunches?
4. 16-year-olds should be allowed to vote in some types of elections?
5. vending machines with candy and soda should be banned from schools?
6. the speed limit should be reduced to 20 miles per hour (32 kilometers per hour) on all city streets?
7. homework should not be given to students before high school?
8. elementary school students should be required to take a national reading test?
9. manufacturers should be forced to produce cars that don't use gasoline?
10. the parents of children who regularly skip classes should be fined?

2 Class activity Now survey your classmates. Find someone who answers no to each question. Find out why. Write his or her name in the chart above.

Extra practice and Sounds right

Extra practice provides additional practice of the grammar points in each lesson.

- What kinds of events _____ (hold) during the traditional festivals in Japan?
Well, people _____ (dance), and lanterns _____ (put) in front of the houses.
It's really pretty.

About page B Pair work Write five questions about holidays or festivals in your country. Use the passive. Then take turns asking a partner your questions. Can you answer your partner's questions?
A So, when is the Dragon Boat Festival celebrated?
B That's easy. It's celebrated in June.

UNIT 3 Lesson B Verbs + -ing and to + verb; position of not

A Write the sentences about texting etiquette another way. Use verb + -ing or to + verb.

- Texting during class is not acceptable. It's not acceptable to text during class.
- It's impolite to text friends when you're having dinner with someone.
- Texting too many times in a day can offend people.
- Not responding to a text message immediately is acceptable.
- It's appropriate to read text messages during a business meeting.
- Letting your text messages beep during a meeting is not acceptable.
- It's OK not to spell words out in full in emails.
- Sending a lot of texts to someone is bad manners.

About page B Pair work Discuss the statements above. Do you agree with them? Why or why not?

Introduction to the Common European Framework of Reference (CEFR)

The overall aim of the Council of Europe's Common European Framework of Reference (CEFR) is to provide objective criteria for describing and assessing language proficiency in an internationally comparable manner. The Council of Europe's work on the definition of appropriate learning objectives for adult language learners dates back to the 1970s. The influential Threshold series (J. A. van Ek and J. L. M. Trim, Cambridge University Press, 1991) provides a detailed description in functional, notional, grammatical, and sociocultural terms of what a language user needs to be able to do in order to communicate effectively in the sort of situations commonly encountered in everyday life. Three levels of proficiency are identified, called Waystage, Threshold, and Vantage (roughly corresponding to Elementary, Intermediate, and Upper Intermediate).

The Threshold series was followed in 2001 by the publication of the Common European Framework of Reference, which describes six levels of communicative ability in terms of competences or "can do" statements: A1 (Breakthrough), A2 (Waystage), B1 (Threshold), B2 (Vantage), C1 (Effective Operational Proficiency), and C2 (Mastery). Based on the CEFR descriptors, the Council of Europe also developed the European Language Portfolio, a document that enables learners to assess their language ability and to keep an internationally recognized record of their language learning experience.

Touchstone Second Edition and the Common European Framework of Reference

The table below shows how Touchstone Second Edition correlates with the Council of Europe's levels and with some major international examinations.

	CEFR	Council of Europe	Cambridge English Language Assessment	IELTS	TOEFL iBT	TOEIC
Touchstone 1	A1	Breakthrough				120+
Touchstone 2	A2	Waystage				225+
Touchstone 3	B1	Threshold	KET (Key English Test)	4.0–5.0	57–86	550+
Touchstone 4			PET (Preliminary English Test)
Viewpoint 1	B2	Vantage	FCE (First Certificate in English)	5.5–6.5	87–109	785+
Viewpoint 2	C1	Effective Operational Efficiency	CAE (Certificate in Advanced English)	7.0–8.0	110–120	490+ (Listening) 445+ (Reading)

Authors' Acknowledgments

The authors would like to thank all the Cambridge University Press staff and freelancers who were involved in the creation of Touchstone Second Edition. In addition, they would like to acknowledge a huge debt of gratitude that they owe to two people: Mary Vaughn, for her role in creating Touchstone First Edition and for being a constant source of wisdom ever since, and Bryan Fletcher, who also had the vision that has led to the success of Touchstone Blended Learning.

Helen Sandiford would like to thank her family for their love and support, especially her husband Bryan.

The author team would also like to thank each other, for the joy of working together, sharing the same professional dedication, and for the mutual support and friendship.

Finally, the authors would like to thank our dear friend Alejandro Martinez, Global Training Manager, who sadly passed away in 2012. He is greatly missed by all who had the pleasure to work with him. Alex was a huge supporter of Touchstone and everyone is deeply grateful to him for his contribution to its success.

Working in groups

We're ready now, aren't we?

Are we ready? Let's get started.

Haven't I interviewed you already?

I've already interviewed you, haven't I?

Where are we?

We're on number _____.

We haven't quite finished yet.

Neither have we.

We still need more time – just a few more minutes.

So do we.

One interesting thing we found out was that _____.

_____ told us that _____.

Checking with the teacher

Would it be all right if I missed our class tomorrow? I have to _____.

I'm sorry I missed the last class. What do I need to do to catch up?

When are we supposed to hand in our homework?

Excuse me. My homework needs to be checked.

I'm sorry. I haven't finished my homework. I was going to do it last night, but _____.

Will we be reviewing this before the next test?

"_____" means "_____", doesn't it?
It's a regular verb, isn't it?

I'm not sure I understand what we're supposed to do. Could you explain the activity again, please?

Could I please be excused? I'll be right back.

English language classrooms with large numbers of Ss are becoming more and more common. The following practical tips can help manage large classes, leading to tasks that work more smoothly, and thus to Ss' learning more efficiently and effectively.

Use organized groupings when doing whole-class speaking tasks

This grouping technique can be used for class interviews, surveys, and grammar Q&As.

- Have Ss gather in groups of five or eight or ten. Two groups form circles, one an inner circle and one an outer circle, facing each other. Ss ask questions of the person facing them, taking turns asking and answering. When finished, those in the inner circle rotate clockwise and face a different S. Ss repeat the interview process.
- To make the rotation go smoothly, you may want to establish a set time for the questioning, depending on the nature of the task, such as 30 seconds or a minute, and then give a signal for Ss to rotate.
- For a variation, instead of having Ss form circles as described above, have Ss stand in two facing lines. Ss facing each other take turns asking and answering questions. On your signal, the S at the front of one line goes to the back of that line, and all the other Ss in that line move one place forward. Ss repeat the interviewing process.

Divide the class for listening activities

If it is not possible for all Ss to hear the audio recording, for example, if there is a lot of distracting noise or the audio equipment is inadequate, divide the class in half. Give one half a task to do individually, in small groups, or in pairs, for example, one of the Extra Activity tasks or homework tasks found in this Touchstone Second Edition Teacher's Edition. Have the other half of the class move near the audio equipment and do the listening task. When the task is finished, have the halves switch roles, with the other half doing the listening.

Establish and use signals to facilitate smooth classroom operation

- Establish a simple set of teacher signals to indicate specific classroom commands, for example, be quiet, stop the task you are doing, and time for a task is up. Some suggestions for signals to use include the following: clapping your hands, turning lights on and off, ringing a bell, or knocking on the desk.
- Also establish a set of signals for Ss. Ss can signal that they have finished a task, such as by putting their fists on their desks and raising their thumbs, placing their textbooks in an upright position on their desks, or putting down their pens or pencils.

Consult with other teachers

Find out what techniques other teachers have used successfully to manage their large classes. Sometimes very simple ideas can have a significant impact on improving the practical aspects of classroom learning. Sharing class management issues and solutions with other teachers is an excellent way of learning from others' experience. Your peers are a wonderful resource.

Lesson A Interviews

Grammar Simple and continuous verbs (review)

(See Student's Book p. 3.)

The lesson reviews the simple and continuous forms of the present tense, the present perfect, and the past tense.

Form

The grammar chart includes verb structures taught in previous Touchstone levels. Detailed information about form and use for these structures can be found in the Language Notes for the following units:

- Simple present
 - Level 1, Units 4 and 5
 - Level 2, Units 1 and 3
- Simple past
 - Level 1, Units 10 and 11
 - Level 2, Unit 5
- Present perfect
 - Level 3, Unit 2
- Present continuous
 - Level 1, Unit 7
 - Level 2, Unit 3
- Past continuous
 - Level 2, Unit 9
- Present perfect continuous
 - Level 3, Unit 10

Use

- Simple forms

In general, the simple form of verbs is used to describe events and situations that are completed, factual, permanent, or repeated.
- Continuous forms

The continuous form of verbs is generally used to describe events and situations that are in progress or temporary.

- With some verbs (e.g., live, work), there is little difference in meaning between the simple and continuous forms.

How long have you lived here? OR How long have you been living here?

Where do you work? OR Where are you working?
- Some verbs (e.g., know, like, love, understand) are not normally used in the continuous.

Do you know him? (NOT Are you knowing him?)

Corpus information Simple forms vs. continuous forms

In conversation, the simple form of verbs is generally more common. For example, the simple present is approximately six times more common than the present continuous, and the present perfect is about ten times more frequent than the present perfect continuous.

Common errors with simple and continuous verbs

Students may use the past continuous for completed events instead of the simple past.

My birthday was great. My friends came to visit. (NOT My friends were coming to visit.)

Speaking naturally Reductions in questions

This section reviews the reduction of the auxiliary verbs do, did, are, and have, and the pronoun you in wh- questions.

*How long have you been

*Why are you learning

*What do you like

*What did you do

Lesson B It's a long story!

Vocabulary Verbs with verb complements

(See Student's Book pp. 4–5.)

- The lesson presents a number of useful verbs, many already known by Ss, that are often followed by verb complements, either verb + -ing or to + verb. (For more information, see Grammar below.)

Grammar Verb complements: verb + -ing or to + verb

(See Student's Book p. 5.)

Form

- Verb + verb + -ing

He considered taking the job.
- Verb + particle / preposition + verb + -ing

He ended up taking the job.

He wasn't planning on taking the job.

- Verb + to + verb

He decided to take the job.

Use

- Verb + -ing or to + verb

Some verbs can be followed only by the form verb + -ing, and some can be followed only by the form to + verb. Verb + particle / preposition can be followed only by the form verb + -ing.
- Verb + -ing or to + verb with the same meaning

Verbs such as begin, bother, start, like, and love can be followed by either form with little or no difference in meaning.

I began to do the work. (= I began doing the work.)

- Verb + -ing or to + verb with a different meaning
The verbs remember, stop, and try can be followed by either form but with a difference in meaning.
I remember calling my mother last week. (= I remember now that I called her last week.)
I remember to call my mother every day. (= I remember, then I call her.; I remember I have to call her.)
I stopped talking to him. (= I no longer spoke to him.)
I stopped to talk to him. (= I finished what I was doing and started speaking to him.)
It was very hot. I tried opening the window, but it didn't get any cooler. (= I experimented by opening it. It suggests you did open it.)

It was very hot. I tried to open the window, but it was stuck. (= I attempted to open it. This suggests you couldn't open it.)

Corpus information Verb + -ing and to + verb

In conversation

Begin, bother, continue, like, love, and hate are followed more often by to + verb. Start is followed more often by verb + -ing.

After begin and continue, the form to + verb is about four times more frequent than the form verb + -ing. Try + to + verb is over twenty times more common than try + verb + -ing. Start, stop, and remember are usually followed by verb + -ing.

Common errors with verb + -ing and to + verb

Ss may use to + verb after verbs that must be followed by verb + -ing.

I finished reading the ad. (NOT ~~I finished to read the ad.~~)

I considered applying. (NOT ~~I considered to apply.~~)

I don't mind working hard. (NOT ~~I don't mind to work hard.~~)

Lesson C We're both getting scared. . . .

Conversation strategy Highlighting key moments in a story

(See Student's Book p. 6.)

In conversation, when people tell stories about things that happened in the past, they often change the tense they use from past to present for important events that they want to highlight. This makes these events sound more dramatic. It is important to note that this is something Ss can do in conversation, but it should be avoided in writing.

Strategy plus This and these in stories

(See Student's Book p. 7.)

When people tell stories, they often highlight important people, things, or events by using this and these in front of the words, instead of a(n) and some. This makes the things sound more "immediate" and, therefore, more important.

Lesson D Against the odds

Reading tip

The Reading Tip tells Ss to read the quotes in a news story first. They often provide a quick summary of the story. Getting a general idea of a story first can help you be a better reader and follow the details more easily.

Help note Writing an anecdote or a story

(See Student's Book p. 9.)

- The Help Note gives Ss a basic outline for how to write (or tell) an anecdote or story. These are the basic steps, as illustrated in the example provided (see Student's Book p. 9). These elements can also be found in Christine Ha's story (see Student's Book p. 8).

- Set the general time or place.

From the moment she took those first tentative steps onto the national stage, amateur chef Christine Ha captured America's heart.

- Set the time or place of the particular incident.

Ha lost nearly all of her eyesight about five years ago . . .

- Describe what happened.

She started her own blog, which is how the producers of "Master Chef" discovered her.

- End the story and (if possible) link the events to now.

Now an official "MasterChef," Ha said, "I just want people to realize that they have it in themselves if they really want to," she said.

Interesting lives

Teach this unit opener page together with Lesson A in one class period.

Introduce the theme of the unit Say, “When you hear that someone has an interesting life, what things come to mind?” Ask a few Ss, and write their ideas on the board (e.g., his or her occupation, accomplishments, travels, hobbies or interests, sports, circle of friends, life experiences). Ask several Ss, “Which of these things do you personally think lead to an interesting life?”

In this unit, you learn how to . . .

- Unit aims Read the lesson headings and key unit aims aloud. Tell Ss to listen and read along.

Extra activity INDIVIDUALS / CLASS

Ss look at the content of the unit. Write on the board:

1. Where is Melida Cortez the Student of the Month?
2. Whose story is told in Lesson B?
3. What happened to Mateo and Bryan?
4. What is Christine Ha's talent?

Ss call out the answers. [1. the college's English Department (p. 2); 2. Dan Anderson's (p. 4); 3. They got lost (while they were hiking). (p. 6); 4. cooking (p.8)]

Before you begin . . .

- Introduce the ideas for interesting lives Say, “Look at the four pictures. They show what different people do to have interesting lives.”
- Tell Ss to look at Before You Begin. Read the first question aloud. Say, “Look at the woman in picture 1. What's she doing? Ask a few Ss for their ideas (e.g., She's looking at the stars / planets. She might be watching an eclipse. Maybe she studies astronomy.).
- Say, “Work with a partner. Talk about what you think the people in the other pictures do to have interesting lives.” When Ss finish, for each picture, ask a few pairs to share their ideas with the class (e.g., Picture 2: She's doing a job that has traditionally been done by men. Picture 3: He's hang-gliding, so he probably likes to do other risky things. Picture 4: He's blowing glass / a glass artist. He's artistic. He makes things, so he's creative, and most creative people are interesting.).
- Tell Ss to look at Before You Begin again. Ask, “Do you know anyone who does things like these? Elicit answers from the class.
- Have Ss form small groups and ask, “Do you know any interesting people? Why are they interesting?” (e.g., S1: Gina, do you know any interesting people? S2: Let me think. I guess my friend Connie is pretty interesting. S3: Why do you think she's interesting? S2: For one thing, she's incredibly smart and creative. S1: What interesting things does she do? S2: Well, she's a film student, so she's always seeing really interesting movies. S1: That must get pretty expensive. S2: Not really. She sees most of them at the school. Oh, and she's making a movie with some other students right now. She has the most exciting life!).
- Have each group decide which of the people they talked about is the most interesting. Have a group member tell the class about the person they chose.

Recycle grammar and conversation strategies

The task recycles language items that Ss learned in Touchstone Student's Book 3 which relate to telling about interesting people they know: 1. grammar — using modal verbs for speculating (see Touchstone Student's Book 3, Unit 11, Lesson A); and 2. conversation strategies — using always + a continuous verb to describe individual habits (see Touchstone Student's Book 3, Unit 1, Lesson C); and using superlatives for emphasis (see Touchstone Student's Book 3, Unit 3, Lesson C).

Extra activity PAIRS

Pairs decide which of the people from the Before You Begin task they would most like to meet and think of three questions they would like to ask the person. Ss report their choices and give their reasons, as well as the questions they would like to ask. Assign a S to keep track of the people who are mentioned. The class finds out which person sounds the most interesting to them.

Lesson A Interviews

1 Getting started

- Set the scene Say, “How do interesting people come to our attention? What are some ways we find out about them?” Elicit ideas from the class (e.g., social networking sites, blogs, e-magazines, newspapers, magazines, friends).

A

- Preview and do the task Say, “Sometimes we get to know about interesting people from friends. Do you know someone that other people should get to know? Tell the class about him or her.” Have a S read the example aloud. Call on Ss to talk about a friend. Say, “Now look at the woman in the photo. What do you think she does in her spare time?” Elicit answers (e.g. art, painting).

B 1.02

- Preview the task Read the title of the article aloud. Note the usual American English pronunciation of this name: Melida /məˈliːdə/ Cortez /kɔːrtɛz/ or /kɔːrtɛz/.
- Say, “Look at the newsletter from the English Department of a university. Who is being interviewed?” [Melida Cortez] Ask, “Why is she being interviewed?” [Because she’s Student of the Month.] Ask, “How do you think the English Department chooses its Student of the Month?” Write Ss’ ideas on the board (e.g., good grades, most improvement in grades, good attendance, good attitude, outside interests or hobbies, new student).
- Tell Ss to read the paragraph under Melida’s picture. Ask, “Why do you think Melida was chosen Student of the Month?” Ask a few Ss (e.g., She must be a good student because she’s doing graduate work. She’s an interesting person. She has a lot of outside interests — she’s a talented artist and she started a sculpture class.).
- Say, “Read and listen to the interview with Melida. Do you have anything in common with her?”
- Play the recording Have Ss read and listen to the interview and then tell a partner what things they have in common with Melida. Call on several Ss to tell the class one thing they have in common with Melida.
- Follow-up Pairs interview each other using the questions from Melida’s interview and answer them with true information. A few Ss tell the class one interesting thing they learned about their partner.

Figure
It out

C

- Preview the task Write on the board:
 1. How long have you been learning English?
 2. Have you ever had your name in a newspaper or newsletter?
- Say, “Look at the first question. Is it an ongoing action or a completed action?” [ongoing action] Ask, “Does this question contain a simple verb or a continuous verb?” [continuous verb] Say, “Look at the second question. Is it an ongoing action or a completed action?” [completed action] Ask, “Does this question contain a simple verb or a continuous verb?” [simple verb]
- Say, “Choose the best verb form to complete the questions. Use the interview above to help you.”

- Do the task Have Ss complete the task. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. What book are you reading currently?
 2. What did you do for your last birthday?
 3. Have you ever lived in the United States?
- Say, “Ask and answer the questions with a partner.”
 - Focus on the use Write on the board:
 1. completed actions or permanent situations
 2. ongoing actions or temporary situations
 - Say, “Which of these actions and situations take simple verbs and which take continuous verbs? Decide with a partner.” Check answers with the class. [simple verbs: completed actions or permanent situations; continuous verbs: ongoing actions or temporary situations]
 - Try it out Write on the board:
 1. completed actions
 2. permanent situations
 3. ongoing actions
 4. temporary situations
 - Say, “Look at the questions and answers in Melida’s interview again. Decide what kind of action or situation they ask about, and number them 1, 2, 3, or 4. Write the number next to each question.” Check answers with the class. [1. completed actions: Have you ever lived in another country? When did you last buy yourself a treat? What did you do for your last birthday? What’s the nicest thing anyone has ever done for you? 2. permanent situations: What’s your favorite way of spending an evening? What do you do? Who or what is the greatest love of your life? 3. ongoing actions: How long have you been living here? What kind of music are you listening to currently? 4. temporary situations: What were you doing at this time yesterday?]

Extra activity INDIVIDUALS / PAIRS مرجع زبان ایرانیان

Individual Ss write three new interview questions (e.g., What movies have you seen lately? Are you playing on any sports teams this year?). Partners interview each other and make notes of the answers. Ss tell the class one interesting thing they learned about their partner.

2 Grammar

1.03

- Present the grammar chart Play the recording. Ss listen and repeat.
- Understand the grammar Tell Ss to look at the chart. Explain that it reviews the use of simple and continuous verbs. (For more information, see Language Notes at the beginning of this unit.) Have Ss look at the section about simple verbs. Ask a S to name the three verb forms shown [simple present, present perfect, simple past].
- Have Ss look at the section about continuous verbs. Ask a S to name the three verb forms shown [present continuous, present perfect continuous, past continuous].
- Books closed. To review, write questions from the chart on the board with blanks in place of the words in bold. Call on a few Ss to fill in the blanks. Tell Ss to find a partner they didn't work with in Exercise 1 and ask and answer the questions on the board.
- Present Common Errors Read the information aloud.

A

- Preview the task Say, "Complete the conversations. Use the simple or continuous form of the verb in the present, present perfect, or past." Point out that the first question has been done for them. Ask, "Why is present perfect continuous correct?" [the time word lately suggests a temporary situation in the past.] Say, "Sometimes, more than one answer is possible."
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class: Ask pairs to each read a conversation.

Answers

1. A What have you been doing for fun lately?
B Well, I 've been taking kickboxing classes. . . . It's a lot of fun, and I 've gotten / 'm getting / have been getting in pretty good shape.

2. A Who's the most interesting person you know?
B Well, I think my best friend is interesting. She lived in Europe for three years when she was growing up.
3. A Have you ever met / Did you ever meet anyone famous?
B No, but last year, I saw a TV star on the street. We were both waiting in line for ice cream.
4. A When did you last exercise?
B Actually, I haven't exercised in months. I 've / have been really busy at work, so I haven't had time.
5. A What do you do for a living?
B Actually, I 'm / am not working right now. I 've been looking for a job for six months, but I haven't found anything yet.

- Practice Say, "Practice the conversations with a partner. Take turns playing each role."

About you

B

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss complete the task.

Recycle conversation strategies Remind Ss of the strategies of asking follow-up questions and reacting to a story. Call on a few Ss to give a reaction or follow-up question for each item in Exercise 2A (e.g., That's cool. Do you ever get hurt?). Tell Ss to use the strategies as they do the task.

- Follow-up For each question, a few Ss tell their partner's answer to the class.

Extra practice

Tell Ss to turn to Extra Practice 1A on p. 140 of their Student's Books. Have Ss do the tasks in class, or assign them for homework. (See the teaching notes on p. T-140.)

3 Speaking naturally

1.04

- Preview the task Please note the use of color in the Speaking Naturally sections throughout this book. Red indicates stress, and maroon indicates any other feature that is being taught. Say, "This section reviews reductions in questions. Look at the chart. The maroon color here shows what we are focusing on. Listen and repeat the questions. Notice the reductions of the auxiliary verbs do, did, are, and have, and the pronoun you." (For more information, see Language Notes at the beginning of this unit.)
- Play the recording Ss listen and repeat.
- Say, "Ask and answer the questions with a partner."

About you

B

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss complete the task. Tell Ss to answer with their own information. Go around the class, and listen for the reductions. If necessary, replay Exercise 3A and have Ss repeat.

Extra activity GROUPS

Ss each choose one question from the lesson and prepare a full, interesting answer. Ss present their answers to the group. Ss in the group ask follow-up questions.

Extra activity PAIRS

Ss write five new questions and use them to interview a new partner. Ss write the interview in the style of the one on page 2. Interviews are posted around the classroom. Ss walk around and read them. Ss who find something that interests them talk to the person interviewed and ask more questions.

Workbook

Assign Workbook pp. 2 and 3. (The answer key begins on p. T-182.)

Lesson B It's a long story!

1 Building vocabulary and grammar

- Set the scene Read the lesson title aloud. Then read the title of the article. Say, "Dan Anderson was interviewed for a magazine article. Dan was only asked one question, but the answer to the interviewer's question included a lot of details, so Dan began his answer with the expression Well, it's a long story! This is a common way to begin a complicated story."

A 1.05

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Ask individual Ss to each read one of the questions. Say, "Listen and write a few words for each answer."
- Play the recording Books closed. Ss listen and write.
- Play the recording again Books open. Ss listen, read along, and review their answers. Check answers with the class: Ask individual Ss to each answer a question [1. He lived in Tokyo. 2. His mother is Korean, and he's always been interested in the culture. 3. A salesperson showed Dan a job ad online. Dan applied for the job. 4. The company offered to transfer him to Seoul and agreed to pay for his Korean lessons.].
- Ask Ss to call out any vocabulary that they do not understand, and write the words on the board. Have other Ss try to provide definitions. Help with definitions for the remaining vocabulary.

B

- Preview the task Say, "Can you sort the verbs in bold in the article into the correct categories? Look at the example answers in the chart. Which verbs are followed by to + verb? [happen (to be)], verb + -ing? [spend (three years working)], or a particle or preposition + verb + -ing?" [end up (living)].
- Do the task Have Ss complete the chart and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class.

Answers

Verb + to + verb	Verb + verb + -ing	Verb + particle / preposition + verb + -ing happen (to be)	spend (three years working)	end up (living)
seem (to be)	finish (doing)	plan on (leaving) bother (to apply)	consider (going)
decide (to go)	remember (thinking)
expect (to get)	start (working)
offer (to transfer)	miss (living)
agree (to pay)	imagine (living)

Extra activity INDIVIDUALS / PAIRS

Individual Ss each choose six verbs from the chart and write them on a piece of paper. Each then writes a short anecdote about an incident from his or her past, using as many of the verbs as they can. When they are done, they work with a partner, read their anecdotes to each other, and react and ask follow-up questions. Several Ss read their anecdotes to the class.

Vocabulary notebook

Tell Ss to turn to Vocabulary Notebook on p. 10 of their Student's Books. Have Ss do the task in class, or assign it for homework. (See the teaching notes on p. T-10.)

C

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss complete the sentences. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. I considered studying electronics, but I ended up doing math.
 2. I expected to graduate in three years. Then I decided to change my major.
- Focus on the form and the use Ask, "What verb form follows consider and spend?" [verb + -ing] "What verb form follows expect and decide?" [to + verb] Say, "As you saw in the chart, some verbs are followed by to + verb and some by verb + -ing. After two-word verbs or phrasal verbs like end up, which end with a particle, you need to use verb + -ing. You can also use verb + -ing after a verb and a preposition like plan on."
 - Try it out Say, "Choose a verb from each category in the chart and write a true sentence about yourself." Call on several Ss to read their sentences aloud.

1.06

- Present the grammar chart Play the recording. Ss listen and repeat.
- Understand the grammar Say, "Sometimes you want a verb to follow the main verb in a sentence. The second verb may be in the form of verb + -ing, or it may be to + verb." (For more information, see Language Notes at the beginning of this unit.)
- Have Ss look at the first section of the chart. Say, "The verbs in this list are followed by verb + -ing." Point out spend (time). Say, "Spend must have a time expression such as three years or an hour before verb + -ing." Note: You may want to give more examples of verbs for this and the other verb patterns as you present the chart.
- Have Ss look at the second section of the chart. Say, "When the main verb is followed by a particle or a preposition, then it is followed by verb + -ing."
- Have Ss look at the third section of the chart. Say, "These are some of the verbs followed by to + verb."
- Have Ss look at the fourth section of the chart. Say, "These verbs can be followed by verb + -ing or to + verb. Whichever one you choose, the sentence will have the same meaning."
- Present In Conversation Read the information aloud.
- Have Ss look at the last section of the chart. Say, "These verbs can be followed by verb + -ing or to + verb, but the meanings are different." Write on the board:
stop + verb + -ing = not do the activity again stop + to + verb = stop an activity and begin another
- Have a S read the example sentences aloud.
- Say, "Here are examples with try." Write on the board:
try + verb + -ing = experiment with something
I tried taking a nap and I felt better. = I took a nap.
try + to + verb = make an attempt at something
I tried to take a nap, but there was so much noise I couldn't sleep = I attempted to nap, but in this case I wasn't able to.
- Have a S read the example sentences aloud.
- Write on the board:
remember + verb + -ing = think of something that happened before NOW remember + to + verb = not forget to perform an action
- Ask a few Ss to say something they remember doing (e.g., I remember reading an interesting interview.). Ask a few Ss to say something they remembered to do (e.g., I remembered to read the interview for homework.). Write sentences on the board.

- Present Common Errors Read the information aloud. Books closed. Write on the board: I finished ____ (read) the ad. I don't mind ____ (work) hard. Say, "These verbs cause problems for Ss." Have Ss complete the sentences. Tell Ss to open their books and check their answers.

- Preview and do the task Say, "Complete the conversations with the correct forms of the verbs given."
- Model the task by having a S read the first sentence in the exercise. Ask, "Why is the answer studying?" [Because end up is a verb +particle/phrasal verb. Verbs that follow particles end in -ing.]
- Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class: Have two pairs each read a conversation.

Answers

1. A How did you end up studying here?
B I remember thinking . . . decided to sign up . . . ?
A Well, I wasn't planning on learning English, . . . offered to pay for my classes. I agreed to come, . . . keep on taking classes if I can.
2. A What are you thinking about doing next summer?
B . . . started working / to work at a new job, so I don't expect to get . . . intend to take. . . . You have to stop working occasionally! Anyway, I love surfing / to surf, so I hope I can spend a weekend visiting. . . .

- Practice Tell Ss to practice the conversations in pairs, taking turns playing each role.

About you

B

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss ask and answer.

Extra activity INDIVIDUALS / PAIRS

Books closed. Choose ten verbs from the grammar chart. Call them out one at a time. For each one, Ss write a sentence using the verb and a verb complement. Ss exchange sentences with a partner, open their books, and check to see that their partner chose the correct verb complement for each.

Extra practice

Tell Ss to turn to Extra Practice 1B on p. 140 of their Student's Books. Have Ss do the tasks in class, or assign them for homework. (See the teaching notes on p. T-140.)

3 Talk about it

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Ask a S to read the lists of ideas. Have a pair of Ss read the example conversation aloud. Have pairs complete the task.
- Follow-up Have a few pairs report an interesting conversation they had.

Sounds right

Tell Ss to turn to Sounds Right on p. 137 of their Student's Books. Have Ss do the task for Unit 1 in class, or assign it for homework. (See the teaching notes on p. T-137.)

Workbook

Assign Workbook pp. 4 and 5. (The answer key begins on p. T-182.)

Lesson C We're both getting scared. . . .

Lesson C recycles the simple past and the past continuous in storytelling.

1 Conversation strategy

- Set the scene Say, "Have you ever been in a scary situation? What happened? What did you do? Tell a partner." Have a few Ss tell their stories to the class (e.g., I was babysitting at a neighbor's house. Around midnight, I heard a strange noise outside, so I called my dad. He came over and checked it out for me. It ended up being animals going through the garbage, looking for food.)

A

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have several Ss tell their story to the class.

B 1.07

- Preview the task Write on the board:
Utah trail jog
stick together
- Check that Ss understand the vocabulary (Utah: A state in the western U.S.; trail: a walking path in the country; jog: run slowly; stick together: stay together). Books closed.
- Say, "Now listen to Mateo and Bryan tell their story to Kim. How did Mateo and Bryan get lost? Write short notes for your answer. Mateo speaks first."
- Play the recording Ss listen and write the answer.
- Play the recording again Books open. Tell Ss to listen, read along, and review their answer. Have Ss compare their answer in pairs. Check the answer with the class [They were hiking in Utah. It was getting dark. They walked off the trail and got lost.]. Help with any remaining vocabulary problems as needed.

- Present Notice Say, "Notice how Mateo changes to the present tense at key moments in his story. The present tense is more "here and now," so it makes the story more dramatic. This is a good strategy in conversation, but you should avoid it in writing." (For more information, see Language Notes at the beginning of this unit.)
- Say, "Find the examples in the conversation when Mateo uses the present tense at key moments." [Then Bryan says, "Where are we?"; And we're thinking, "Oh, no." And we're both getting kind of scared.; And Bryan says, "Should we jog a little?" And I go, "Yeah. I was thinking the same thing. Let's go."]
- Practice Tell Ss to practice the conversation in groups of three, taking turns playing each role.

D 1.08

- Preview the task Say, "Read more of Mateo and Bryan's conversation. Change the underlined verbs to the simple present or present continuous." Point Ss to the first sentence and the example given. Show that the verb has changed from heard in the simple past to hear in the simple present.
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task.
- Play the recording Audio script p. T-164 Ss listen and check their answers.

Answers

Bryan Yeah. And all of a sudden, we hear this noise.

Mateo And I look over at Bryan, and I see his face is white, and he's starting to run fast.

Bryan Well, yeah. I mean, it was a weird noise.

Mateo So, I'm thinking, "Wait a minute. What happened to our plan to stick together?" So I start to run with him.

Bryan Yeah, we're running through the trees, scared to death. It was hilarious! It was just like in a movie.

- Tell Ss to practice the conversation in Exercise 1 in pairs, taking turns playing each role.

Extra activity PAIRS

Have Ss finish off Bryan and Mateo's story with their own ending. Ss write the ending to the conversation, practice, and then present it to the class. Ss vote on the best ending.

Extra activity PAIRS

Pairs write a conversation similar to Mateo and Bryan's about a scary experience. Each pair reads their conversation to another pair. Have several pairs read their conversation to the class.

2 Strategy plus

- Present Strategy Plus Read aloud the information in Strategy Plus and the examples.
- Say, “When Mateo and Bryan told Kim about their scary experience, they highlighted some things in the story and made them sound more important. They used this or these instead of a, an, or some. This strategy makes things sound more ‘immediate’, dramatic, or ‘here and now.’” (For more information, see Language Notes at the beginning of this unit.)
- Tell Ss to look back at the conversations on p. 6 (Exercises 1B and 1D), and find examples of this and these [(1B) Mateo: We were on this trail, . . . ; Yeah, there were all these trees around us, . . . (1D) Bryan: . . . we hear this noise].

A

- Preview and do the task Say, “Replace a, an, and some in bold with this or these in the story below.” Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class: Have individual Ss each read a sentence aloud.

Answers

“I have this friend who’s always getting into funny situations. One time she was invited to this going-away party, and she ended up getting totally lost and wandering around a neighborhood she didn’t know. Anyway, she finally sees this house with these cars outside, and these people were barbecuing in the backyard. So she knocks on the door, and this nice guy lets her in. He thought she was one of his wife’s friends. Anyway, she spent about an hour talking to these people before these guys bring out a big birthday cake and candles and everything. Then she realized it was the wrong party!”

- Tell pairs to take turns telling the story. Say, “When you tell the story, put extra stress on the nouns that follow this and these.”

B

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Remind Ss to use the strategies. Pairs tell each other their stories. Have a few Ss tell their partner’s story to the class.

3 Listening and strategies

A

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Say, “You’ll answer the questions you choose when you listen to the story in the next activity.” Have Ss complete the task.

B 1.09

- Preview the task Say, “You’re going to hear this vocabulary when you listen. Work with a partner and find the meanings.” Write on the board:

tumble down intensive care
rag doll (human) limbs unconscious

- Check the definitions with the class. Say, “Now listen. Write answers to the questions you chose.”
- Play the recording Audio script p. T-164 Ss listen and write.
- Play the recording again Ss listen and review their answers. Say, “Now share your answers with a partner. Can you remember the story together? Consult other classmates if necessary.” Have Ss complete the task. Check answers with the class.

Possible answers

1. We were skiing in Idaho.
2. He fell twelve hundred feet.
3. We watched him fall until he got to the bottom, and then we skied down to him and shook him.
4. He was coughing, and he had two large bumps on his head, and his eye was closed shut.
5. Yeah. Two guys skied down and hiked out to the trailhead, and then drove to town. A rescue team came four hours later.

6. Yes, he did. He was in intensive care for about five days under observation.
7. It happened three or four months ago.
8. Yes, he is.

About you

C

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions and the example aloud. Have Ss complete the task. Go around the class, and help as needed.
- Follow-up Have a few Ss tell their story to the class.

Extra activity GROUPS

Ss form groups of three and write chain stories. Remind Ss to use the strategies they learned in the lesson. Write on the board:

1. You should meet my cousin. She’s into extreme sports.
2. Weird things are always happening to my friend.
3. My uncle is the unluckiest person I know.

A group member writes one of the sentences on a piece of paper and adds the next sentence to the story. He or she then passes the paper to another group member, who adds another sentence. Ss continue in this way until they feel each story is complete. Several groups each read one of their completed stories to the class.

Workbook

- Assign Workbook pp. 6 and 7. (The answer key begins on p. T-182.)

Lesson D Against the odds

1 Reading

- Set the scene Read the title of the lesson aloud. Ask, “What does it mean to do something against the odds?” Get ideas from Ss (e.g., do something when the chances of succeeding are not good). Say, “Beat the odds is another way to say ‘Succeed against the odds.’” Write the expression on the board.
- Ask, “Have you ever been in a situation where you beat or succeeded against the odds?” Have Ss raise their hands if they have. Call on a few Ss to tell what happened.

A

Prereading

- Preview and do the task Ask, “What kinds of competitions are there on TV shows?” Have Ss call out the types of shows they know. Write them on the board (e.g., talent, singing, dancing, survival, cooking). Ask, “Do you ever watch them?” Call on a few Ss to answer. (Note: If using the Extra activity following Exercise 1C, do not erase.)
- Present Reading Tip Read the information aloud. Have Ss scan through the article and find the first place a quote is used in the article. [“I think there are a lot of people who discounted me.”] Ask Ss, “What does it tell you about Ha?” [It tells you people didn’t believe in her. It also suggests she’s a fighter and doesn’t give up easily.]
- Tell Ss to scan the article and read the remaining sentences in quotes.

B

During reading

- Preview and do the reading Read the title of the article aloud. Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss read the article and write answers to the questions. Have a few Ss read their answers. [Christine Ha’s disadvantage was that she was blind. Her advantage was that she couldn’t see what anyone else was doing, which helped her focus.]
- Do the reading again Ask, “How did Christine beat the odds? Read the article again and underline the main events of the story.” When Ss finish, have them work in pairs and briefly summarize Christine’s story. Tell Ss to help each other remember information instead of looking back at the reading.
- Work with the class to retell the story. Have one pair tell what happened first. Then call on other pairs to continue the story. [The story is about Christine’s success on the TV show “MasterChef.” She lost her sight because of illness. She overcame her disability and started a blog. The producers of “MasterChef” discovered her through her blog, and invited her on the show. She went on to win the title.]

C

Postreading

- Preview the task Read aloud the instructions and the first expression. Tell Ss to find the expression tentative in the article. Have a S say where the expression is and read the sentence it is in. [First paragraph: . . . she took those first tentative steps onto the national stage, . . .]
- Have Ss choose the definition for the expression. Call on a S to say the answer. [b. not certain or confident] Ask, “How did you guess the meaning?” Get ideas from Ss (e.g., She was walking onto a stage. She was probably very nervous.).
- Do the task Have Ss choose the best meaning for the remaining words. Then have Ss work in pairs and say how they guessed the meanings.
- Check answers with the class. Call on Ss to say where the words and expressions are used, give the answer, and say how they guessed the meanings.

Answers

1. b [Paragraph 1: . . . she took those first tentative steps onto the national stage, . . .]
2. a [Paragraph 2: . . . , Ha won the title, $250,000, and a cookbook deal, . . .]
3. b [Paragraph 2: . . . , and a cookbook deal, beating out about another 100 other home chefs.]
4. b [Paragraph 3: “I think there are a lot of people who completely discounted me.”]
5. a [Paragraph 4: . . . managed to whip up culinary masterpieces with only her senses of . . .]
6. b [Paragraph 8: But she did more than pick herself up off the counter.]
7. a [Paragraph 9: “If they have that passion, that fire, that drive, . . .”]
8. a [Paragraph 9: . . . you can overcome any obstacle and any challenges . . .]

Extra activity GROUPS

Write these questions on the board: Would you go on a competitive TV show? Which type? What kinds of obstacles would stand in your way? Groups discuss the questions. When Ss finish, they share some of their discussion with the class.

D

- Preview and do the task Say, “Read the article again and answer these questions.” Tell Ss to read the questions before they begin. Add, “When you’ve written your answers, compare them with a partner. Discuss any differences in your answers by referring to the article.” Check answers with the class: Call on individual Ss to read an answer aloud. After each answer, ask, “Does anyone want to add anything?”

Possible answers

1. Ha “captured America’s heart” because she managed to overcome a big obstacle, her blindness, and win a competitive cooking show. She’s captured my heart because I admire her determination.
 2. After losing her vision, Ha tried to make a peanut butter and jelly sandwich, but she couldn’t do it. This anecdote is significant because it shows how far she has come.
 3. She means that people can do anything they really work hard at. I agree, because I’ve seen people overcome very big obstacles and do amazing things.
- Follow-up Have Ss look at question 3 again. Call on a few Ss to share their response to “Do you agree with her view?”

2 Listening and writing

A 1.10

- Preview the task Tell Ss to look at the picture. Ask, “What is Bethany Hamilton’s sport?” [surfing] Have Ss read the sentences and choices in the listening task before they listen. Check for vocabulary questions. Read the instructions aloud.
- Play the recording Audio script p. T-164 Ss listen.
- Play the recording again Ss listen and circle the correct information. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. b 2. a 3. b 4. b 5. a 6. b

About you

B

- Preview and do the task Write career and health on the board. Say, “In the article on page 8, Christine Ha faced a challenge because of her blindness. Bethany Hamilton faced a challenge because of a physical disability. In what other areas of life do people face challenges?” Get ideas from Ss, and write them on the board (e.g., family, love life, school, friends, money). Discuss with a partner.
- Have Ss do the task, telling about a time they faced a challenge. Tell Ss to make sure they answer the questions in the directions.

C

- Preview the task Have Ss read the example article. Ask Ss, “What did the writer have to do?” [The writer had to give a speech.] “How did the writer feel?” [Extremely nervous. The writer wanted to run away.] “How did the writer feel afterwards?” [It helped the writer become much more confident.]
- Present Help Note Read the information aloud. As you read each bullet point, call on a S to read aloud the information that demonstrates each point indicated in the example article.
- Do the task Tell Ss to think again about the challenge they discussed in Exercise 2B, and to make some notes about it. Then have Ss use their notes and the steps in the Help Note to write their stories.

D

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Tell Ss to take turns reading their partner’s stories and asking follow-up questions. Have a few Ss share interesting or surprising things they learned about their partner with the class.

Free talk

Tell Ss to turn to Free Talk 1 at the back of their Student’s Books. Have Ss do the task. (See the teaching notes on p. T-129.)

Workbook

 Assign Workbook pp. 8 and 9. (The answer key begins on p. T-182.)

Vocabulary Notebook

If done for homework

Briefly present the Learning Tip and the task directions. Make sure Ss understand what they need to do.

If done in class

- Present Learning Tip Read the information aloud. Say, "This learning tip is an extremely useful one because you can't predict the verb form that follows a new verb you're learning. For example, like and enjoy have similar meanings, so you might think that they can both be followed by the same verb form. However, like can be followed by verb + -ing or to + verb, but enjoy can only be followed by verb + -ing."

↻ These tasks recycle the verb complements verb + -ing and to + verb.

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss complete the task. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. agree + to + verb to lend
2. intend + to + verb; bother + verb + -ing / to + verb to do, starting / to start
3. stop + verb + -ing / to + verb; enjoy + verb + -ing doing, doing
4. keep on + verb + -ing trying
5. consider + verb + -ing taking
6. seem + to + verb to be

- Preview the Word Builder task The Word Builder exercises include new vocabulary that is related to vocabulary in the unit. Ss can look up the words and learn them to increase their vocabulary.
Say, "This Word Builder task will help you learn the verb forms that follow some everyday verbs. It will also give you some practice using them in sentences."
- Do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss complete the task. Check answers with the class: for each verb, ask a few Ss to read their mottoes.

Answers

1. give up + verb + -ing
2. promise + to + verb
3. put off + verb + -ing
4. refuse + to + verb

Possible mottoes

1. Never give up believing in your hopes and dreams.
2. If you promise to do something, do it.
3. Never put off doing something because it's unpleasant.
4. When you refuse to do something, have a good reason.

On your own

- Present On Your Own Read the information aloud.
- Follow-up At the start of the next class, pairs read each other their sentences.

Now I can . . .

- Go over the Now I Can items. Put Ss in pairs to give one example each for the first four items. Call on Ss and ask for examples or explanations.
- Have Ss look over the four lessons and identify any areas they want to review.
- Tell Ss to complete the Now I Can items. Ss check (✓) the items they know and put a question mark (?) by items that they are not confident about. Check with individual Ss which areas need review to see if there are general problems to review in class. Help individual Ss as required. Have Ss hand in a piece of paper with their name and a schedule showing what they plan to review and when. Review or reteach these language items in a future class.

UNIT 2 Personal tastes

Language notes

Lesson A Makeovers

Grammar Comparisons with (not) as . . . as

(See Student's Book p. 13.)

Ss have already learned to make comparisons with more / less + adjective and adjective + -er, more and less as adverbs, and more, less, and fewer with nouns. The lesson teaches comparisons with as . . . as to mean "the same as" and not as . . . as to mean "less than."

Form

- (not) as + adjective + as
The pants are just as comfortable as my jeans.
I don't look as scruffy as I did.
- (not) as + noun phrase + as
She spends as little time as possible on her makeup.
She doesn't wear as many bright colors as she should.
- (not) as + adverb + as
I tried as hard as I could to find the right style.
I don't like short hair as much as long hair.

Use

- as . . . as
When two things or people are compared using as . . . as, it generally means they are the same in some way.
The pants are just as comfortable as my jeans. (= The jeans and pants are both equally comfortable.)
- not as . . . as
When things or people are compared with not as . . . as, it generally means that they are not the same. It has a meaning similar to "less than."

I don't like short hair as much as long hair. (= I like short hair less than long hair. OR I like long hair more than short hair.)

- In the lesson, the as . . . as structure is followed by: a noun phrase (The pants are just as comfortable as my jeans.); a verb phrase or clause (I don't look as scruffy as I did.); or an adjective (She spends as little time as possible.).

Corpus information (not) as . . . as

In conversation, about a third of the uses of as . . . as in comparisons are in negative sentences, and about two-thirds are in affirmative sentences.

Common errors with as . . . as Ss sometimes leave out the first as in as . . . as.

Correct: Jeans aren't as nice as pants.

Incorrect: ~~Jeans aren't nice as pants.~~

Speaking naturally Linking words with the same consonant sound

(See Student's Book p. 13.)

This section practices linking words that end and begin with the same consonant sound. When the same consonant sound is at the end of one word and at the start of the next, as in big glasses or stylish shoes, the sound is said only once, but is lengthened a little.

Lesson B Fashion

Grammar Negative questions

(See Student's Book p. 14.)

The lesson presents three functions of negative questions.

Form

Negative questions can be used in a variety of verb forms: present and past, as both simple and continuous verbs, and with modal verbs. The lesson presents negative questions with the present of be and the simple present.

- Present of be
Isn't that jacket great?
Aren't they expensive?
- Simple present
Don't you like it? Doesn't she like it?
It'd look good, don't you think?

Use

People generally use a negative question when they want another person to agree with them, even though they may think the other person will have a different opinion. The lesson presents three common uses of negative questions.

- To express an opinion
Isn't this jacket great? (= I love it.)
- To suggest an idea
It'd look good on you, don't you think? (= You may or may not agree it would look good, but I want you to think it would.)
- To express surprise
Don't you like it? (= It sounds like you don't, and I'm surprised.)
- Negative questions can also be used to check information (Aren't you Jackie Lee?), but this use is not taught here.

Corpus information Negative questions with isn't Negative questions with isn't are the most common. They account for about a third of the uses of isn't.

Vocabulary Describing clothes

(See Student's Book p. 15.)

- The vocabulary in this lesson consists of words for describing clothes in terms of colors, patterns, materials, and styles. The order that these adjectives are used in is also addressed.
- In Touchstone Student's Book 2, Unit 8, Lesson B, the typical order of adjectives was presented: opinion, size, shape, color, nationality, material. The order of adjectives in the Word Sort chart on p. 15 is a rough guide to a typical order when describing clothes: colors, patterns, materials, styles. However, there can be some variation in the order of adjectives for materials, patterns, and styles. Generally the most important thing that a speaker wants to say about the item is put just before the noun. So, for example, a long-sleeved wool sweater (= a type of wool sweater)

a cotton turtleneck sweater (= a type of turtleneck sweater)

Lesson C She has a big collection, then.

Conversation strategy Summarizing things people say

(See Student's Book p. 16.)

In conversation, people often summarize or paraphrase the things that other speakers say. This shows that they are involved or engaged in the conversation and that they are following what is said.

A She has hundreds of books already.

B She has a big collection, then.

Strategy plus Now

(See Student's Book p. 17.)

Now is often used to introduce a follow-up question. It can show that the speaker wants to move the conversation on to a different aspect of the topic.

A Yeah. She doesn't really need anything.

B Now, doesn't she travel a lot?

Corpus information Now

In conversation, now is one of the top 100 words. About 20 percent of its uses are to introduce questions.

Lesson D Personal style

Reading tip

The Reading Tip tells Ss that they should read the first sentence of each tip to see what the article covers. Doing this will give Ss a good overview of the content. In addition, they may start making personal connections with what they read, helping them activate background knowledge, which can lead to more efficient reading. This is a useful skill to acquire for academic reading to help determine whether an article is going to be worth reading as part of a S's research.

Help note Punctuation

(See Student's Book p. 19.)

The Help Note reviews the punctuation of commas to separate items in lists, and it adds one use of a dash and an exclamation mark.

- Dash

Dashes are often used when the writer wants to give extra information about something, either to add an idea or to add a fuller explanation of a preceding idea.

Silk may feel nice, but be careful — shiny fabrics can make you look heavier.

- Exclamation mark

An exclamation mark (also called an exclamation point) can be used when the writer wants to show something needs emphasis, perhaps because it is surprising or funny, or because it has a strong emotion attached to it.

Developing your own personal style is not as hard (or as expensive) as you might think!

Personal tastes

Teach this unit opener page together with Lesson A in one class period.

Introduce the theme of the unit Write the word taste on the board. Say, “This word can be used to talk about food. For example, you can say something tastes good, nice, bad, or tastes salty or sweet. It can also be used to talk about the type of things you like, for example, the type of clothes or type of furniture. You can say someone has good taste, which means the person likes nice things or things you like too, or someone has bad taste, which means the person likes things that you don’t like or things that seem unusual.” Ask, “Which celebrities do you think have good taste?” Have a few Ss respond. Say, “In this unit, we’ll talk about some of your personal tastes.”

In this unit, you learn how to . . .

- Unit aims Read the lesson headings and the key unit aims aloud. Tell Ss to listen and read along.

Extra activity INDIVIDUALS / CLASS

Write on the board:

Which part of the unit looks interesting?

Which part of the unit looks useful?

Which part of the unit looks like fun?

Ss look through the unit and choose a part to answer each question. Several Ss report their opinions to the class and give their reasons.

Before you begin . . .

- Introduce the categories for taste Have Ss look at the pictures. Say, “These pictures represent some of the things that people have different tastes in. What are they?”
[1. music 2. hairstyles 3. clothes 4. cars]

Recycle vocabulary This task recycles vocabulary for kinds of music (see Touchstone Student’s Book 2, Unit 2, Lesson B); clothes (see Touchstone Student’s Book 1, Unit 8, Lesson B); and hairstyles (see Touchstone Student’s Book 2, Unit 11, Lesson B).

- Have Ss work in pairs. Ask pairs to write the names of as many kinds of music as they can in one minute. Write Ss’ answers on the board (e.g., pop, rock, jazz, classical, hip-hop, heavy metal).
- Ask pairs to write the names of as many hairstyles as they can in one minute. Write Ss’ answers on the board (e.g., long, short, braids, ponytail, buzz cut, perm).
- Ask pairs to write the names of as many kinds of clothes as they can in one minute. Write Ss’ answers on the board (e.g., dress, suit, jeans, sweater, T-shirt, blouse, tie).
- Ask pairs to write the names of as many kinds of cars as they can in one minute. Write Ss’ answers on the board (e.g., convertible, sports car, SUV, smart car, hybrid, mini-van).

- Ask Ss to look at Before You Begin. Ask individual Ss to each read a question aloud. Tell Ss to read the complete question beginning with What kind of . . .
- Have Ss discuss the four questions in small groups. Have groups report which group members have similar tastes.

Extra activity PAIRS

Write on the board:

A day in the country

A special occasion in the evening

1. What clothes will I wear?

2. What kind of car will I go in?

3. What kind of hairstyle will I have?

4. What music will I listen to in the car?

Ss imagine they have a credit card with no spending limit. Partners choose one of the two situations on the board and answer the questions about it, using their personal tastes.

1 Getting started

- Set the scene Ask Ss if they know what a makeover is. Tell them to look at the pictures of Cindy and Scott for clues. Get ideas from Ss. If necessary, explain that it means that a person has done something major to change the way he or she looks. Ask, “When people get makeovers, what are some of the things they change?” Have a few Ss answer (e.g., makeup, hairstyle, clothes).

A

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Elicit answers about Cindy (e.g., Her hair is shorter. She's wearing more makeup. She's wearing different colors. She's wearing a dress.). Elicit answers about Scott (e.g., His hair is shorter. He's wearing nicer clothes. He's wearing darker colors.) Ask, “Would you let someone give you a makeover? Why or why not?” Have a short class discussion.

B 1.11

- Preview the task Tell Ss not to look at the text. Say, “Listen. What do Cindy and Scott think about their makeovers? Write brief notes about the likes and dislikes they mention.”
- Play the recording Ss listen and write. Have Ss compare their notes.
- Play the recording again Ss listen, read along, and review their answers. Check answers with the class [Cindy likes her dress and makeup, and Scott's haircut and overall look. She dislikes Scott's pastel shirt. Scott likes his pants and jacket. He likes Cindy's haircut and bright dress. There's nothing Scott dislikes.]. Help with new vocabulary as needed.
- Ask, “Do you agree with Cindy's comments?” Ask a S for his or her opinion. Ask Ss who disagree to raise their hands and say why. Repeat the task, this time asking about Scott's comments.

Extra activity PAIRS

Pairs look through their Student's Books and find a picture of someone they would like to give a makeover to. Partners decide what they would change and why. Pairs present their picture and their suggestions to another pair.

Figure

C

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class: Have individual Ss each read a sentence aloud. Write the answers on the board.

Answers

1. Scott They're just as comfortable as my jeans.
2. Scott Yeah, I don't look as scruffy as I did!
3. Cindy He doesn't pay as much attention to his appearance as he should.
4. Cindy I try to get ready as quickly as I can in the morning.

- Focus on the use Say, “You know how to make comparisons with more, less, and -er.” Write on the board: as . . . as. Say, “You can also make comparisons using as . . . as.” Underline as in all the answers.
- Ask Ss to look at sentence 1. Ask, “Which are comfortable?” [both pants and jeans] “Is one more comfortable than the other?” [no].
- Say, “Look at sentence 4. Can Cindy get ready more quickly?” [no] Write on the board next to sentence 4: She can't get ready any more quickly. Say, “When you make comparisons with as without not, you are usually saying that the two things are the same in some way.”
- Say, “Look at sentence 2. Is he more or less scruffy now?” [less] Write on the board next to sentence 2: He's less scruffy than before.
- Say, “Look at sentence 3. Does he pay more or less attention to his appearance than he should?” [less] Write on the board next to sentence 3: He pays less attention to his appearance than he should.
- Underline n't in answers 2 and 3. Say, “When you use not with a verb with comparisons with as . . . as, the comparison often means ‘less than.’”
- Try it out Say, “Find more examples of (not) as . . . as in Cindy's and Scott's comments.” Have individual Ss each read a sentence aloud [I tried as hard as I could to find a style that suits her personality better.; . . . I don't usually like short hair as much as long hair, . . . ; Actually, the pastel shirt I chose doesn't look as good on him as the bright colors he usually wears.].

- Present the grammar chart Play the recording. Ss listen and repeat.
- Understand the grammar Have Ss look at the section of the chart on adjectives. Ask, "Which are the adjectives?" [comfortable, scruffy] Say, "Look at the first sentence. Are the jeans more comfortable?" [No. The jeans and pants are the same.] Say, "Look at just in the first example sentence. Just is often used to emphasize that the two parts of a comparison are the same." Point out that just comes before the first as. Say, "Look at the third sentence, which is negative. Does he look the same now as he did, or does he look different?" [Different; he looked scruffier before.] Say, "Remember, as . . . as tells us two things are the same, and not as . . . as tells us they are different in some way."
- Have Ss look at the section of the chart on nouns. Have Ss call out the nouns that are in the comparisons [time, colors, attention]. Say, "Look at the first example. Can she spend any less time on her makeup?" [No. She spends as little time as possible]. Point out that adjectives and quantifiers such as much, many, little, and few come before the noun.
- Have Ss look at the section of the chart on adverbs. Ask Ss to call out the adverbs in the comparisons [hard, much]. Have Ss look at the first example. Ask, "Do you think Scott tried hard enough to find the right style?" [yes] Ask, "How do you know? Do you think he could try harder?" [No, he tried as hard as he could.] Say, "Look at the second sentence. Can you say this using 'more'?" [I like long hair more than short hair.]
- Point out that after as . . . as, there can be a noun (as comfortable as my jeans); an adjective (as little time as possible); or a clause (as scruffy as I did). (For more information, see Language Notes at the beginning of this unit.)
- Present Common Errors Books closed. Write on the board:
Pants are nicer than jeans. = Jeans . . .
- Ask, "Can you rewrite this sentence starting with Jeans?" Elicit the answer word by word. [Jeans aren't as nice as pants.] Ask, "Is this correct? Can you guess what error Ss make with this structure? Open your book and read the Common Errors box to find the answer." [yes; they forget the first as]

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Ask Ss to look at the words in parentheses and the example answer in sentence 1. Check that Ss understand the activity. Have Ss complete the task and compare their answers with a partner. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. Older people don't care as much as younger people about their appearance.
2. Makeover shows aren't as interesting as other reality shows on TV.
3. Men spend as much money on themselves as women do.
4. When I choose clothes, looks are as important as comfort.
5. I don't have as many clothes and shoes as I'd like.
6. I spend as little time as possible shopping for clothes.
7. Today's styles aren't as attractive as the styles of ten years ago.
8. Women get haircuts as often as men.

About you

B

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Have a Ss read aloud the first sentence in Exercise 2A again. Have several Ss give their views and explain why they agree or disagree.
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task in pairs. Remind Ss to use (not) as . . . as when possible.
- Follow-up Have a few Ss share one of their views with the class.

Extra activity GROUPS

Group members each write a noun related to appearance on a slip of paper. The slips are placed facedown on a table. Group members take turns choosing a slip and reading the noun aloud. Group members each write a sentence using the noun and just as . . . as or not as . . . as in a sentence (e.g., In my opinion, long sleeves aren't as comfortable as short sleeves). Ss take turns reading their sentences to the group.

Extra practice

Tell Ss to turn to Extra Practice 2A on p. 141 of their Student's Books. Have Ss do the tasks in class, or assign them for homework. (See the teaching notes on p. T-141.)

3 Speaking naturally

A 1.13

- Preview the task Ask, "What do you notice about these pairs of words?" [The same consonant sound ends the first word and begins the next word.] Read the instructions aloud.
- Play the recording Ss listen and repeat.

About you

B 1.14

- Preview the task Say, "Now listen and repeat the statements."
- Play the recording Ss listen and repeat. Say, "Are the statements true for you? Discuss with a partner." As Ss discuss, go around the class and listen for the linking. If necessary, replay the recording, and have Ss repeat.

Workbook

Assign Workbook pp. 10 and 11. (The answer key begins on p. T-182.)

1 Building language

- Set the scene Say, "Look at the picture. Yoko and Ben are shopping for a new jacket for Ben. Do you think Ben's having a good time?" [no] Ask, "Why not?" Ask Ss for their ideas (e.g., He doesn't look happy. Maybe he doesn't like shopping for clothes. Maybe he doesn't like the jacket that Yoko is holding.).

A 1.15

- Preview the task Books closed. Say, "Listen. Why doesn't Ben like the jacket? Write the answer."
- Play the recording Ss listen and write their answer. Tell Ss to compare their answer with a partner.
- Play the recording again Books open. Ss listen, read along, and review their answer [Ben thinks the jacket is too bright and too expensive.].
- Practice Tell Ss to practice the conversation in pairs, taking turns playing each role.

2 Grammar

- Present the grammar chart Books open. Play the recording. Ss listen and repeat.
- Understand the grammar Say, "Look at the chart. When you want or expect a person to agree with you, you can use negative questions to express an opinion, suggest an idea, or show surprise. Look at the example questions. What verb forms are used in this chart?" [present of be and simple present] Say, "You can also use aren't and doesn't; for example, 'Aren't these jackets great?' or 'Doesn't Ben look awesome in orange?'" (For more information, see Language Notes at the beginning of this unit.)
- Preview the task Say, "Look at the rest of Yoko and Ben's conversation. Rewrite the underlined sentences as negative questions. Notice the example. More than one question is possible."
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class: Have a pair read the rest of the conversation aloud. Then say each underlined sentence, have a S give an answer, and write it on the board. Ask Ss with a different answer to raise their hands, and write those answers on the board.

Answers

Ben Look at these jackets. Aren't they nice? / Don't you think they're nice? / They're nice, don't you think?

Yoko Well, I'm not sure about the color. Isn't it a bit plain? / Don't you think it's a bit plain? / It's a bit plain, don't you think?

B

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class: Have individual Ss each read a sentence.

Answers

1. Oh, don't you just love this jacket?
2. Well, don't you want to try it on, at least?
3. Don't you like it?

- Focus on the form and the use Write the answers on the board. Ask, "What kind of sentences are these?" [questions] Ask, "Are they affirmative or negative?" [negative] Say, "You can use a negative question when you want a person to express an opinion as in sentence 1, to suggest an idea as in sentence 2, or to show surprise as in sentence 3."
- Try it out Ask two Ss to read the conversation aloud. Have the rest of the class close their books and listen. Tell Ss to raise their hands when they hear a negative question.

Ben Really? Don't you like them? Look. Don't you think this one looks good? / This one looks good, don't you think? / Doesn't this one look good?

Yoko Um . . . Isn't it a bit small? / Don't you think it's a bit small? / It's a bit small, don't you think?

Ben Oh, isn't it the same price? Well, don't you think we should look around a bit more? / Well, we should look around a bit more, don't you think? / Well, shouldn't we look around a bit more?

- Practice Have Ss practice the conversations in pairs, taking turns playing each role.

Extra activity PAIRS

Pairs write a conversation in which a mother and daughter or a mother and son (or boyfriend / girlfriend; husband / wife) are shopping for clothes. They each choose an item that the other really dislikes (e.g., The son wants to buy a pair of pre-ripped jeans. The mother wants him to buy a nice pair of pants.). Remind Ss to use negative questions and as . . . as. A few pairs read their conversations to the class.

Extra practice

Tell Ss to turn to Extra Practice 2B on p. 141 of their Student's Books. Have Ss do the tasks in class, or assign them for homework. (See the teaching notes on p. T-141.)

3 Building vocabulary

A

- Preview the task Say, "Read the product descriptions on the website." Ask, "What do you think about each item?" Tell Ss to look at the boots in the bottom right. Have a S read the example.
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task. Ask a few Ss what they think of the items.

B

- Preview the task Have Ss look at the category headings in the chart. Read aloud each heading and its example. Have Ss work in pairs to locate each example answer in the pictures and the descriptions.
- Say, "Now complete the chart with the words in bold from the website. Add words of your own."
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task and then compare their charts in pairs. Check answers with the class: Write the column headings on the board. Have individual Ss call out the words from their chart, and then write them on the board.

Answers

Colors	Patterns	Materials	Styles
neon (green)	striped	leather	V-neck
dark (green)	solid (colors)	suede	turtleneck
light (green)	floral-print	cashmere	long-sleeved
turquoise	plaid	silk	boot-cut polka-dot	wool	flared
		cotton	fitted
		denim	skinny
		polyester	baggy
		rubber	short-sleeved

- Ask individual Ss to call out words that they added and which column they added them to. Add them to the chart.

Extra vocabulary CLOTHES

Present or have Ss suggest extra vocabulary for describing clothes, such as:

Colors: aqua, burgundy, chocolate, cream, fuchsia, maroon, navy, tan, teal

Patterns: checked

Materials: jersey, lace, nylon, satin, spandex, tweed, velvet

Styles: pleated (skirt / pants), crew-neck (sweater), single- / double-breasted (jacket), capris, leggings

- Say, "Can you use any of these words to describe what you and your classmates are wearing? Write sentences about yourself and two classmates." Have several Ss read their sentences aloud. Other Ss guess who they are describing.

Extra activity GROUPS

On slips of paper, group members write sentences describing their favorite weekend clothes. The slips are given to a group secretary, who reads each one aloud. Group members try to guess which group member's favorite outfit is being described. This activity can be repeated with favorite clothes for a special occasion or favorite clothes for relaxing at home.

Extra activity PAIRS

Ss look through their textbook and take turns describing the clothes people are wearing in the pictures. Ss also make comments about the clothes using negative questions.

Vocabulary notebook

Tell Ss to turn to Vocabulary Notebook on p. 20 of their Student's Books. Have Ss do the task in class, or assign it for homework. (See the teaching notes on p. T-20.)

4 Talk about it

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Have a S read the questions aloud. Check that Ss understand them. Ask a S to read the example comment aloud.
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task. Go around the class and help as needed.

Review a conversation strategy Read the example comment aloud. Does the speaker like skinny jeans?" [no] Ask, "What expression is used to 'soften' the comment about the jeans?" [kind of] Suggest or have Ss present other expressions to soften comments (e.g., probably, maybe, a little, in a way). (See Touchstone Student's Book 3, Unit 7, Lesson C.) Tell Ss to use the expressions as they do the task.

- Follow-up Group members report any items they decided would look good on someone in the group (e.g., Don't you think the suede jacket would look fabulous on Tara?).

Extra activity GROUPS

Ss list some current styles in clothing and share their lists in groups. Group members say if they disagree with any choices. Then they agree on one current style that they like and one that they do not like.

Sounds right

Tell Ss to turn to Sounds Right on p. 137 of their Student's Books. Have Ss do the task for Unit 2 in class, or assign it for homework. (See the teaching notes on p. T-137.)

Workbook

Assign Workbook pp. 12 and 13. (The answer key begins on p. T-182.)

Lesson C She has a big collection, then.

↻ Lesson C recycles vocabulary for talking about music and reading.

1 Conversation strategy

- Set the scene Books closed. Ask, "What was the last gift that you bought someone? Did you have trouble deciding what to buy?" Have several Ss answer. Ask a few Ss, "Who is the most difficult person you buy a gift for?"

A

- Preview and do the task Ask, "Who do you buy gifts for? What do you usually buy?" Have pairs answer the questions. Several Ss tell the class.

B 1.17

- Preview the task Ask, "What does it mean when someone says they have 'a ton of' something?" [They have a lot of something.]
- Say, "Listen to Janet and Don's conversation. What do you find out about Don's sister? Write brief notes."
- Play the recording Ss listen and write. Have Ss compare their answers in pairs.
- Play the recording again Books open. Tell Ss to listen, read along, and review their answers. Check the answers with the class [She likes: to read, music, to cook, and to sew. She has a lot of different interests. She has: hundreds of books, a ton of music, stuff for the kitchen. She has everything she needs. She travels a lot.]

- Present Notice Read the information aloud. (For more information, see Language Notes at the beginning of this unit.) Ask a S to read the example. Say, "Find two more examples in the conversation." [Janet: She has a big collection, then.; Sounds like she has everything she needs.]
- Practice Tell Ss to practice the conversation in pairs, taking turns playing each role. Have Ss practice again. This time, they talk about someone they know. Tell Ss to use true information about that person.

D

- Preview and do the task Have Ss read the statements and responses. Help with new vocabulary as needed. Say, "Match each statement with the best response. The response summarizes the statement. Write the letters a to g."
- When Ss finish, have them check their answers in pairs by practicing each conversation with a partner. Check answers with the class: Have different pairs each read a conversation.

Answers

1. g 2. f 3. e 4. b 5. a 6. c 7. d

- Follow-up Have Ss find a new partner and practice the conversations again. This time, encourage Ss to continue the conversations for as long as they can.

Extra activity PAIRS

Ss work with another partner and make conversations similar to those in Exercise 1D. S1 personalizes the sentences, and S2 responds with a summarizing comment. Ss continue their conversations as long as they can. Ss then switch roles.

Extra activity PAIRS

Pairs write a conversation similar to Janet and Don's. Have the class brainstorm different interests for which you might buy people gifts (e.g., sports, clothes, books). Say, "Decide with your partner who you want to get a gift for." Pairs join another pair to present their conversations. A few pairs present their conversations to the class.

2 Strategy plus

- Present Strategy Plus Read the information aloud. Say, "Using Now in this way helps you move to a new topic more smoothly." (For more information, see Language Notes at the beginning of this unit.) Tell Ss to look back at the conversation on p. 16 and find the example of Now [Janet: Now, doesn't she travel a lot?].
- Say, "Janet and Don talked about Don's sister's interests and all the things she already has. What interest does Janet's follow-up question introduce?" Ask a few Ss (e.g., travel).
- Present In Conversation Books closed. Say, "Now is one of the top 100 words." Write on the board: 20%, 40%, 60%, 75%. Say, "What percentage of the uses of now are for introducing a question? Write your guess." Books open. Ask a S to read the information aloud.

- Preview the task Tell Ss to read follow-up questions a to f and the three conversations. Check that Ss understand them. Say, "Find two follow-up questions for each conversation."
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. a, f 2. c, d 3. b, e

- Practice Tell Ss to practice the conversations in pairs. Then tell Ss to practice again. Say, "Ask the questions again and give your own answers."

↻ Recycle a conversation strategy Remind Ss that if they want to answer the questions by saying "No" that they can soften their answers by using Not really. (See Touchstone Student's Book 2, Unit 2, Lesson C.)

3 Listening and strategies

A 1.18

- Preview the task Write on the board:
compete get hooked ingredient biographies pressure on a person
- Ask, "Do you know any of these words or expressions? If yes, tell the class." Provide definitions for any vocabulary that the Ss don't know.
- Say, "Listen to three conversations. Who has broad tastes? Write the name or names. The speakers are Mary, Nick, and James." Write the names on the board.
- Play the recording Audio script p. T-165 Ss listen. Check the answer with the class [Mary and Nick].
- Say, "Now listen again. Answer the questions below." Ask a S to read the questions aloud.
- Play the recording again Ss listen and write. Have Ss compare their answers in pairs. Replay the recording if necessary. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. Two cooks have to make as many dishes as they can in half an hour with the same main ingredient. Mary learned to cook from her grandmother.
2. Nick is listening to a Brazilian band. Nick's brother got him into it.
3. James is exhausted because he stayed up half the night / until 1:00 a.m. reading. James had a roommate a few years ago who lent him some science fiction books.

B 1.19

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud.
- Play the recording Audio script p. T-166 Ss listen and circle the letter of the best response.
- Play the recording again Ss listen and review their answers. Have Ss compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class.

Answers

About you

C

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Ask a pair of Ss to read aloud the example conversation.
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task. Ask several Ss each to talk about their taste in one area, and to say whether they have broad or narrow tastes.

Extra activity PAIRS

Write on the board: clothes shopping, restaurants, school, work, keeping fit, vacation destinations. S1 chooses one of the topics on the board and talks about it for 30 seconds. S2 listens and then asks a Now follow-up question to get information about a different aspect of the topic. Partners switch roles, and S2 chooses a topic and talks for 30 seconds. Partners continue in this way until they have talked about all the topics on the board.

Workbook

 Assign Workbook pp. 14 and 15. (The answer key begins on p. T-182.)

1 Reading

- Set the scene Read the lesson title aloud. Ask, “What does it mean to have a personal style?” Get ideas from Ss (e.g., a style that’s special to you and perhaps unique to you).
- Ask, “What celebrities do you think have unique personal styles?” Have Ss call out names of celebrities. Write the celebrities’ names on the board, and ask Ss how they would describe the people’s styles. Have the class vote on the celebrity whose style they think is best.

Prereading

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Elicit ideas from the class (e.g., make your own clothes, take good care of your clothes, choose colors and fabrics that go well together, buy quality used clothes at thrift or consignment shops).

B

During reading

- Present Reading Tip Read the information aloud. Say, “Doing this will not only give you a good overview of the article. You might have a particular interest in what the writer has to say about some of the tips. This gives you a personal connection to the article. Making personal connections with what you’re reading helps activate background knowledge that makes the reading easier to understand.”
- Have Ss look at the first sentence of the first tip. Ask, “Did anyone think of this tip in Exercise 1A?” Ask Ss to suggest ideas that they think the tip will cover. Write them on the board.
- Preview the reading Say, “Read the article. Circle the vocabulary you don’t know, but don’t stop to find the meaning.”
- Have Ss read the article. When they finish, have them report to the class any words or expressions they circled. Have Ss call out the words and write them on the board. Have classmates give definitions or explanations of words they know. Supply definitions for any remaining vocabulary.
- Do the reading again Ask, “Does the article mention any more of the ideas we talked about in Exercise A?” Ss call out any more similar ideas. Ask, “Which ideas in the article are the best? Which ideas have you tried?” Have pairs discuss the questions. Have several Ss share their answers with the class.

Extra activity GROUPS

Write these questions on the board: Do you think everyone has a personal style? Do you wear clothes similar to those worn by everyone else, or do you try to be different? How would you describe your personal style? Groups discuss the questions and give their ideas. When Ss finish their conversations, they report their ideas to the class.

Extra activity GROUPS

Ss work in groups of three and create a one-minute report for a TV show, How to Develop Your Personal Style. Ss can add their own ideas or use those from the article. Ss then join another group and present their TV segment.

C

Postreading

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Have a S read the sentences aloud and check for any vocabulary questions. Do the first sentence with the class. Ask, "Which style tip does sentence a fit into?" [tip 5]
- Ask, "What helped you decide?" [Tip 5 talks about choosing the right clothes for your body type.]
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task. Then have Ss compare answers with a partner. Check answers with the class. (Note: The answers below are given two ways. First: in order according to this exercise. Second: in the order they appear in the article.)

Answers

- a. 5 b. 2 c. 8 d. 6 e. 1
1. e 2. b 5. a 6. d 8. c

Extra activity CLASS

With books closed, Ss write the main idea of as many of the style tips as they can remember in 3 minutes. Ss open their books and see which tips they remembered. Ss say if the tips they remembered were relevant to their own personal style.

Extra activity GROUPS

Group members say which of the tips in the article they already do and which ones they would like to try.

2 Listening and speaking

A 1.20

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Ask a S to read the five topics aloud.
- Play the recording Audio script p. T-166 Ss listen and number the topics.
- Play the recording again Ss listen and review their answers. Check answers with the class.

Answers

- 3 hairstyles 1 fashion 2 technology
4 sports and fitness

B 1.20

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud.
- Play the recording Audio script p. T-166 Ss listen and write.
- Play the recording again Ss listen and review their answers. Have Ss compare their answers with a partner. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. Maddy: No; She doesn't go through magazines to see what's in.
2. Frank: Yes; He waits in line for hours to get something on the first day it comes out.
3. Laura: Yes; She experiments and tries things. She colored her hair.
4. Nate: No; He doesn't follow the latest diet or drink vitamin drinks.

About you

C

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud.
- Do the task Ss discuss the questions with a partner.
- Follow-up Ss change partners and tell their new partner about one trend their previous partner kept up with and one he or she didn't keep up with. Ss explain why and why not.

3 Writing

A

- Present Help Note Ask a S to read the information aloud. (For more information, see the Language Notes at the beginning of this unit.)
- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss read the paragraph and add the appropriate punctuation. Check the answers with the class.

Answers

... comfortable – my old jeans, a T-shirt, and sneakers.
I look completely different!

About you

B

- Preview the task Say, "Write three questions about personal style." Tell Ss they can look back through Lessons A, B, and C for ideas.

- Do the task Have Ss exchange papers and write answers to their partner's questions.

C

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss take turns reading their partner's answers, checking punctuation. When they finish, have a few Ss share one interesting thing they learned about their partner.

Free talk

Tell Ss to turn to Free Talk 2 at the back of their Student's Books. Have Ss do the task. (See the teaching notes on p. T-129.)

Workbook

 Assign Workbook pp. 16 and 17. (The answer key begins on p. T-182.)

Vocabulary Notebook

If done for homework

Briefly present the Learning Tip and the task directions. Make sure Ss understand what they need to do.

If done in class

- Present Learning Tip Read the information aloud. Say, "Labeling a picture is an easy way to learn and remember vocabulary. It also helps you review words quickly."

- Present In Conversation Remind Ss that they studied shades of color in this unit; for example, light, as in light green. Books closed. Have Ss work in pairs and list as many shades of blue as they can. Books open. Have a S read the list aloud. Call on a few pairs to say how many they mentioned. Help Ss find examples of the shades of blue in the classroom. Explain that navy blue is a very dark blue and royal blue is a vivid, purplish blue.

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class: Have individual Ss each read a description for one of the people. Say, "If you have different information, tell the class."

Answers

Person 1: long-sleeved wool turtleneck sweater; baggy dark brown pants

Person 2: short-sleeved cotton polka-dot dress; leather purse; silk scarf

Person 3: turquoise floral-print fitted / skinny pants; cotton V-neck T-shirt

Person 4: leather jacket; striped shirt; flared pants; suede shoes

Person 5: neon orange cotton skirt; light blue short-sleeved top

- Preview the Word Builder task Read the instructions aloud.
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class.

Answers

Person 1: tweed jacket; beige turtleneck

Person 2: maroon scarf; gold purse

Person 3: mauve top

Person 4: navy blue flared pants

Person 5: ankle-length skirt; short-sleeved crew-neck top; plastic purse

On your own

- Present On Your Own Read the instructions aloud.
- Follow-up At the start of the next class, Ss form small groups and present their pictures of labeled clothing. Each group calls out any new vocabulary from their pictures.

Now I can . . .

- Go over the Now I Can items. Put Ss in pairs to give one example each for the first five items. Call on Ss and ask for examples or explanations.
- Have Ss look over the four lessons and identify any areas they want to review.
- Tell Ss to complete the Now I Can items. Ss check (✓) the items they know and put a question mark (?) by items that they are not confident about. Check with individual Ss which areas need review to see if there are general problems to review in class. Help individual Ss as required. Have Ss hand in a piece of paper with their name and a schedule showing what they plan to review and when. Review or reteach these language items in a future class.

Lesson A Traditional things

Grammar The simple present passive

(See Student's Book p. 23.)

Ss have already learned how to form the simple past passive. (See Touchstone Student's Book 3, Unit 12, Lessons A and B.) The lesson teaches Ss to form and use simple present passive statements and questions.

Form

The simple present passive is formed with the present forms of the verb be (is, are, am) and a past participle.

- Affirmative statements
subject + be + past participle
It's made with rice and vegetables.
The sculptures are carved out of ice.
- Negative statements
subject + be + not + past participle
It's not eaten hot.
They're not made locally.
- Information questions
question word + be + subject + past participle?
How is kimbap made?
What are the sculptures made out of?
- Yes-no questions
be + subject + past participle?
Is it eaten hot?
Are they made of ice?

Use

- Verbs can be active or passive. The active form of a verb focuses on the "doer," or the cause of action; it says what the "doer" does. The passive form of a verb focuses on the "receiver" of an action, rather than on the "doer."
- The passive is generally used when the "doer" or cause of an action is not known, not important, or is obvious from the context. The "doer" can be introduced, if needed, with the word by following the verb (e.g., The sculptures are carved by teams from all over the world.).

Corpus information Made, done, and called

The most common passive verbs are made, done, and called.

Common errors with the simple present passive

Ss may forget to use the verb be in the simple present passive. (The sculptures are carved out of ice. NOT ~~The sculptures carved out of ice.~~ AND It's eaten cold. ~~It's not eaten hot.~~ NOT ~~It eaten cold. It not eaten hot.~~)

Speaking naturally Silent syllables

(See Student's Book p. 23.)

The section gives Ss practice in pronouncing a variety of common words that all contain a "silent syllable," typically an unstressed vowel. Each word is said with one less syllable than it seems to have (usually there would be one syllable for each vowel). Here are some examples:

- Different appears to have three syllables but is pronounced with two syllables: /dɪfərənt/.
- Vegetable appears to have four syllables but is pronounced with three syllables: /vɛdʒ.tə.bəl/.
- Some words have more than one pronunciation, e.g. factory /'fæktəri/ or /'fæktəri/, and jewelry /'dʒuələri/ or /'dʒuləri/

Lesson B Manners

Vocabulary Kinds of behavior

(See Student's Book pp. 24–25.)

The lesson presents a number of verbs to describe actions and behavior that may or may not be considered acceptable in different cultures, such as tipping, bowing, and showing affection in public.

Grammar Verb + -ing and to + verb; position of not

(See Student's Book p. 25.)

The lesson teaches verb + -ing as the subject of a sentence or as the object of a preposition. It reviews and builds on the use of It's + adjective + to, which Ss previously learned. (See Touchstone Student's Book 2, Unit 7, Lesson A.)

Form

- verb + -ing as a subject
Eating in public is bad manners.
Not shaking hands is impolite.
- verb + -ing after prepositions
You can offend people by eating in public.
People might stare at you for not wearing shoes.
- to + verb after It's . . .
It's bad manners to eat in public.
It's impolite not to shake hands.
- Position of not
Not precedes the word it negates.
Be careful not to point at people.
You can offend people by not bowing.

Use

- Verb + -ing is often used as a subject.
Eating in public is bad manners. (= the act of eating)
- Verb + -ing is the form of the verb used after a preposition (e.g., You can offend people by eating in public.). This is an important rule in English for Ss to know.
- It is possible to use to + verb as a subject (e.g., To eat in public is bad manners.). However, in many cases, it sounds much more formal than the gerund (verb + -ing) and in some cases, a little old-fashioned for conversational use. The use of It as an “empty” subject followed by to + verb is much more commonly used (e.g., It's bad manners to eat in public.).

- Not generally comes before the word it negates. Changing the position of not will often change the meaning of the sentence.
It's acceptable not to tip. (= It's OK if you don't tip.)
It's not acceptable to tip. (= It's not OK to tip.)

Lesson C To be honest, . . .

Conversation strategy Sounding more direct

(See Student's Book p. 26.)

Ss have learned several ways to sound less direct or to soften their comments. In the lesson, they learn how to signal that they want to be more direct. Two basic types of expressions are used: adverbs and multiword expressions.

- Adverbs such as absolutely, definitely, and honestly are used before a verb. They “boost” or intensify the verb's meaning (e.g., I definitely don't miss the food.; I honestly don't know what I'd do.).
- Expressions such as To be honest and To tell you the truth can be used at the start or end of a sentence. They show the speaker is going to speak openly but doesn't want to be impolite or to offend the listener (e.g., I don't miss him too much, to be honest.).
- In fact can be used in many places in a sentence. It is used to present ideas — including opinions — as statements of fact or as what is true for the speaker (e.g., In fact, living back home would be boring.).

Corpus information Actually, definitely, certainly, absolutely

Actually, definitely, certainly, and absolutely are all in the top 600 words in conversation.

Strategy plus Of course

(See Student's Book p. 27.)

- Of course in statements generally means “What I'm saying is not surprising — it's what you would expect.” For example, I miss my family, of course.
- Of course can also be used as a response to show that you agree with or understand what someone has said. However, care should be taken to avoid using of course in answer to questions. It is not quite the same as the response absolutely and can sound rude or abrupt because it has the meaning of “What do you expect?” or “How could you suggest otherwise?”

Compare the two conversations:

A Do you miss your parents when you're away?

B Of course. (This can sound rude here because it implies B thinks there is no other answer but yes, and so to ask the question is therefore silly or pointless.)

A Will you miss me when you're away?

B Of course! (Here of course sounds reassuring. Please don't think I won't miss you.)

Corpus information Of course

Of course is one of the top fifty expressions in conversation. It can go at the beginning, middle, or end of a sentence, though it is most often used to introduce an idea. The negative response Of course not is much less frequent and accounts for about 1% of all uses of of course.

Lesson D Proverbs

Reading tip

The Reading Tip tells Ss to read the first sentence of each paragraph and to ask themselves what they think each paragraph will be about. Reading the first sentence is helpful because the first sentence of a paragraph is often its topic sentence.

Help note Useful expressions

(See Student's Book p. 29.)

The Help Note presents some useful expressions Ss can use in doing the writing activity, in this case, a short article on proverbs. The expressions include ones for giving a definition, stating a reason, and pointing out similarities.

World cultures

Introduce the theme of the unit Books closed. Write on the board: Culture. Say, “When you think about different cultures, what’s the first thing you think of?” Ask a few Ss, and write their ideas on the board (e.g., traditional food, traditional music, language). Say, “What other things do you think of? Make a list with your partner.” Have pairs tell their ideas to the class. Write Ss’ ideas on the board (e.g., traditional clothes / costumes, traditional musical instruments, traditional crafts, art, literature, religion, social rules). Books open. Say, “In this unit, we’ll talk about some of these aspects of different world cultures.”

In this unit, you learn how to . . .

- Unit aims Read the lesson headings and key unit aims aloud. Tell Ss to listen and read along.

Extra activity INDIVIDUALS

Write on the board:

1. A place worth visiting in Peru
2. Something that is very bad manners in your country
3. A word or expression used to sound more direct in conversation
4. A Chinese proverb

Ss look through the unit and find the things on the list. A few Ss report their answers for each item (e.g., 1. a local market [p. 22]; 2. Eating food on a subway or bus [p. 24]; 3. absolutely, definitely, to be honest [p. 26]; 4. You can’t expect both ends of a sugar cane to be sweet. [p. 29]).

Before you begin . . .

- Introduce the cultural traditions Tell Ss to cover the Before You Begin box. Say, “Look at the six pictures. Work with a partner and say the area of cultural tradition each picture shows.” Ask individual Ss to answer [1. a food / dish; 2. music / dance; 3. a symbol of the country or culture; 4. a festival; 5. traditional costume / clothes; 6. handicrafts].

Extra activity PAIRS

Pairs have one minute to guess which country’s tradition is shown in each picture. Pairs write their guesses and then compare their answers with another pair. Individual Ss report an answer for each picture [1. Thailand; 2. Brazil; 3. United States; 4. China; 5. Japan; 6. Mexico]. Pairs who guessed all six correctly raise their hands.

- Have Ss look at Before You Begin. Read the question and items aloud. Tell Ss to discuss their answers in small groups. If possible, have Ss from the same culture work together to name the traditions. Otherwise, have Ss name traditions in their cultures, and tell other group members to say if they are familiar with the tradition or if they have something similar in their country.

↻ Recycle conversation strategies The task recycles conversation strategies for agreeing with an opinion (see Touchstone Student’s Book 3, Unit 4, Lesson C) and for giving a different opinion (see Touchstone Student’s Book 3, Unit 9, Lesson C). Ask, “What can you say when you agree with another S’s opinion or suggestion?” Call on a few Ss to answer (e.g., I agree. Definitely. That’s for sure.). Ask, “What can you say if your opinion or suggestion is different?” Call on a few Ss to answer (e.g., I don’t know. / I’m not (so) sure. Don’t you think . . . ?).

- If Ss are in groups from the same country, have groups try to agree on the most typical item for each category (e.g., S1: Well, one of our traditional dishes is, let’s see, I’d say chicken with rice is probably the most typical dish. S2: Definitely. S3: I don’t know. Don’t you think beef and rice is more typical?). Tell Ss to use expressions for agreeing and disagreeing. Have each group report their answers to the class.

↻ Recycle vocabulary for food, clothing, and colors

Have Ss work in pairs to answer the questions. Ask, “What are common dishes in your country? Which foods do you make them with?” Have pairs share their answers with the class, and write words for foods on the board. Repeat the activity with these two sets of questions, writing words for clothes and colors on the board: (1) What is traditional clothing like in your country? What colors do you usually see in them? (2) What are traditional handicrafts in your country? What are they made of? What colors do you usually see in them?

1 Getting started

- Set the scene Say, "Imagine that someone asks you to name something that shouldn't be missed on a visit to your country. It can be anything; it doesn't have to be a place. What would you suggest?" Call on several Ss to answer.

A

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss work in pairs and make a list of things they know about for each country.
- Have pairs call out the information they know. Have other Ss listen and raise their hands if they knew the same information.

B 1.21

- Preview the task Books closed. Read the title of the magazine article aloud. Read the instructions aloud. Say, "Write the answers."
- Play the recording Ss listen and write.
- Check answers with the class [Min-hee: dish / food; Elena: handicrafts; Sachio: festival; Robert: music].
- Play the recording again Tell Ss to listen and read. Pause the recording after each section. Have Ss call out any words they don't understand. Have other Ss explain if they can.

- Preview the task Books open. Read the instructions aloud. Model the task by pointing to the first sentence. Say, "You eat kimbap cold. Where does Min-hee say that? Find what she says." Have Ss call out the answer. [And it's eaten cold.] Tell Ss to complete the sentences.
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task. Check answers with the class: Have individual Ss each read an answer.

Answers

1. Kimbap is eaten cold.
 2. Earrings like these are made locally.
 3. A lot of handicrafts are exported.
 4. The sculptures are carved by teams from all over the world.
- Focus on the form and the use Say, "Look at the sentences on the left. Are they active or passive?" [active] Say, "Look at the new sentences on the right. Are they active or passive?" [passive]
 - Write on the board:
 1. You eat kimbap cold.
 2. Kimbap is eaten cold.

- Say, "Look at the verb in sentence 1 on the board. What tense is it?" [simple present] Ask, "What tense is the verb in sentence 2?" [simple present] Say, "Look at sentence 2 again. What's the pattern for the verb in a passive sentence in the simple present?" [present of be + past participle]
- Ask, "Do these sentences describe a temporary activity or a permanent situation?" [permanent situation] Ask, "Do we know exactly who the 'doer' of the action is in these sentences?" [no]
- Say, "Passive sentences in the simple present without by + agent are often used to talk about regular events and permanent situations such as things found in traditions or culture."
- Try it out Write on the board:
 1. Kimbap . . .
 2. Peruvian handicrafts . . .
 3. Sculptures at the Sapporo Ice Festival . . .
 4. A didgeridoo . . .
- Say, "Look at the magazine article again. Complete these sentences in the passive simple present tense using information from the article." Have individual Ss each read a sentence aloud [1. Kimbap is made with rice and vegetables and wrapped in dried seaweed. 2. Peruvian handicrafts are exported nowadays, and they're sold all over the world. 3. Sculptures at the Sapporo Ice Festival are carved out of ice. 4. A didgeridoo is made out of wood and painted by hand.].

Extra activity INDIVIDUALS / PAIRS

Write on the board:

(Name of a food) is eaten ____.

It is prepared ____.

Individual Ss prepare a short talk on a food that a visitor to their country should not miss. Ss then present their talk to a partner. Have several Ss give their talk to the class. Call on several Ss to say which foods they would like to try.

2 Grammar

- Present the grammar chart Play the recording. Ss listen and repeat.
- Understand the grammar Tell Ss to look at the section of the chart on active sentences. Say, "Who's the 'doer' of the action in these questions and answers?" [they] Ask, "Do we know who 'they' are?" [no] Say, "When they is used in this general way to mean 'people' or 'some people,' it's often better to use passive sentences, to avoid repeating a subject that doesn't contain any important information."
- Have Ss look at the section of the chart on passive sentences. Ask, "What's the pattern for passive information questions in the simple present?" [information word + is / are + subject + past participle] Ask, "What's the pattern for passive yes-no questions in the simple present?" [Is / Are + subject + past participle]
- Point out the bottom section of the chart. Ask who the "doers" of the action are in the example sentence [teams from all over the world]. Point out that the "doers" can be introduced with by.
- Present In Conversation Ask a S to read the information aloud.
- Present Common Errors Read the information aloud.

About you

A

- Preview and do the task Say, "Rewrite the questions to be about your country." Read sentence 1 aloud. Ask a S to read the example passive sentence aloud. Have Ss rewrite the questions. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. When is the national anthem sung?
 2. How is your favorite traditional food made? Is it served cold?
 3. Are your country's national sports played by both men and women?
 4. When are your most important festivals celebrated? Are they celebrated by everybody?
 5. When is the national costume worn? Is it worn a lot?
 6. Is traditional folk music played?
 7. Are traditional handicrafts made? Where are they sold?
- Ask the example passive question for sentence 1 again. Elicit example responses. Say, "Now write true answers using the simple present passive."

About you

B

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Say, "Ask and answer the questions. Ask follow-up questions to get more information, or give your partner more information if you have it."
- Follow-up For each question, individual Ss report their answers to the class. Other Ss add information.

Extra practice

Tell Ss to turn to Extra Practice 3A on p. 142 of their Student's Books. Have Ss do the tasks in class, or assign them for homework. (See the teaching notes on p. T-142.)

3 Speaking naturally

A 1.23

- Preview the task Say, "Look at the four words above. How many syllables does each word appear to have? You can guess by counting the vowels." [every: 3; different: 3; interesting: 4; vegetable: 4] Say, "Now listen and repeat the four words. Notice the unstressed syllables that are not pronounced. They're in red with a line through them."
- Play the recording Ss listen and repeat. Ask, "How many syllables do you hear in each of the four words?" [every: 2; different: 2; interesting: 3; vegetable: 3]

B 1.24

- Preview the task Say, "Listen to people talk about their cities. Cross out the vowel that is not pronounced in the underlined words."
- Play the recording Ss listen and cross out the vowels. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. chocolate, interested, history of chocolate
2. average temperature, different for travelers
3. camera, Practically every
4. Emeralds, valuable, jewelry.

- Say, "Read the sentences aloud to a partner." As Ss do the task, go around the class listening for the syllable deletions. If necessary, replay the recording and have Ss repeat.

About you

C

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Have a S read the example aloud. Say, "Write a brief note to remind yourself of what you want to say."
- Do the task Ss write their ideas. Individual Ss take turns telling the class. The first classmate to guess the correct answer gets a point. Alternatively, put Ss into groups to do the task.

Extra activity GROUPS

Ss each choose a place they have visited. Ss think of something that visitors should not miss. Ss describe the event, place, food, etc., without saying where the place is. Ss in the group guess which place each S is talking about.

Workbook

1 Building vocabulary and grammar

- Set the scene Say, "Imagine you're at a dinner party. The food was delicious, but you're still hungry. Should you ask for a second helping? Do you feel comfortable asking for more food at a dinner party?" Ask a few Ss for their opinions. Say, "If your answer is no, then you think it's bad manners to ask for more food. Manners are rules for how to act socially."

A  1.25

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss read the twelve statements and make a list of any new vocabulary. Ask Ss to call out their words, and write them on the board. Have Ss give definitions or explanations of words they know. Help with any remaining vocabulary as needed. Read the instructions aloud.
- Play the recording Ss listen and check (✓) true or false.
- Check answers with the class: Have individual Ss each read a statement aloud. Ask the Ss who think the statement is true to raise their hands. Then do the same for the Ss who think the statement is false. Write the totals on the board. If Ss are all from the same country, ask Ss who disagreed with the majority to give their reasons for doing so.

Answers

Answers will vary according to country.

Extra activity GROUPS

If possible, have Ss from the same country work together. Group members discuss any of the twelve statements from Exercise 1A that they had a difficult time deciding on. For example, eating chicken on a subway or bus might be considered bad manners, but eating a candy bar might not. Groups report to the class.

B

- Preview the task Say, "What behaviors are considered acceptable in your country? Which are not? Complete the chart with ideas from Exercise 1A. Add your own ideas."
- Do the task Have Ss complete the lists and then compare them with a partner.
- Follow-up Ss share their other ideas with the class. Write Ss' other ideas on the board (e.g., It's acceptable to: stand in the street to hail a cab; shout out loud to get a waiter's attention; be a little late for appointments. It's not acceptable to: let an elderly person stand on a bus or train; chew gum in public; talk out loud in movie theaters; snap your fingers to call a waiter; interrupt people when they are speaking; let your phone ring in a restaurant). (Do not erase the board. These ideas will be used in Exercise 1C. They are also used for the Extra Activity.)

Extra activity CLASS

If Ss are mostly from the same country, class members vote on whether they agree or disagree with the lists on the board. Ss who disagree with the class majority give their reasons. If Ss are from different countries, Ss raise their hands if a custom is the same in their country, and the class finds out which countries have the same customs.

Vocabulary notebook

Tell Ss to turn to Vocabulary Notebook on p. 30 of their Student's Books. Have Ss do the task in class, or assign it for homework. (See the teaching notes on p. T-30.)

C

- Preview the task Say, "Look at statement 1 in Exercise 1A. What's the subject of the sentence?" [Eating food on a subway or bus] Ask, "What's the form of the verb eat in the subject?" [verb + -ing] Say, "Look at statement 5. What kind of word does walking follow?" [preposition] Say, "Look at statements 2 and 7. What's the subject of the sentences?" [It] Ask, "What form of the verb follows It's + adjective?" [to + verb] Tell Ss to complete the sentences in Exercise 1C with verbs in the correct form.
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task and then compare answers in pairs. Check answers with the class: Have individual Ss each read an answer.

Answers

1. Cutting in line is bad manners.
 2. You might offend someone by standing too close.
 3. You can offend your host by not taking off your shoes.
 4. It's polite to bow when you meet someone.
 5. It's customary not to tip cab drivers.
- Focus on the form and the use Say, "The statements in Exercise 1A show you ways to use verb + -ing and to + verb. The form verb + -ing can be the subject of a sentence. When you need a verb after a preposition, the form verb + -ing is also used."
 - Say, "When a sentence begins with It's + adjective, the verb form that follows is to + verb."
 - Try it out Write on the board:
Verb + -ing as a subject
preposition + verb + -ing
It's ... + to + verb
 - Say, "Choose from the list of Dos and Don'ts on the board and write three statements similar to those in the questionnaire in Exercise 1A. Use each of these patterns once." Have a few Ss read their statements aloud.

2 Grammar

1.26

- Present the grammar chart Play the recording. Ss listen and repeat.
- Understand the grammar Have Ss look at the section of the chart on verb + -ing as a subject. Say, "The form verb + -ing can act as a noun, so it can be the subject of a sentence. To make the subject negative, put not before it."
- Have Ss look at the section of the chart on verb + -ing after prepositions. Say, "If you want to use a verb after a preposition, use the form verb + -ing." Point out that not comes before verb + -ing to form the negative.
- Have Ss look at the section of the chart on to + verb. Say, "When you begin a sentence with It's + adjective + noun — for example, It's bad manners — or with It's + adjective — for example, It's impolite — use the form to + verb. Put not before the noun, adjective, or to + verb for the negative."
- Have Ss look at the right side of the chart. Say, "When part of your sentence is negative, put not before the word it negates. Notice that the position of not can change the meaning of your sentence." Read aloud the set of sentences in Notice the Difference in Meaning.

A

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss complete the task and then compare their sentences in pairs. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. If a friend invites you out to dinner, it's inappropriate to take another friend with you.
2. It's bad manners not to call the restaurant if you have a reservation and you decide to cancel your plans.
3. Arriving a little late when you meet a big group of friends at a restaurant is acceptable. Not showing up at all is impolite.
4. If you get to the restaurant before your friend, it's fine to sit down at the table.
5. It's not acceptable to complain to your server if you don't like your meal.
6. People might be upset with you for not paying your fair share of the bill.
7. Talking with your mouth full is considered rude. Taking phone calls during dinner is also bad manners.
8. You can offend the server by not leaving a tip. But giving a smaller tip is fine if the service is bad.
9. Asking the server for a box to bring your leftover food home is acceptable.
10. It's bad manners not to thank the person who paid afterwards. Not saying thank you is really impolite.

About you

B

- Preview and do the task Say, "Discuss the statements above. Which ones do you agree with? After you discuss the statements, add more etiquette advice." Based on the lesson title and the statements on p. 24, ask Ss what etiquette is [rules about what is considered polite and correct behavior]. Ask two Ss to read the example conversation. Have Ss complete the task.

- Follow-up Find out which statements Ss disagreed with. Have pairs tell the etiquette advice they added. Find out who agrees with it.

About you

C

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions and the three situations aloud. Ask a S to read the example aloud. Remind Ss to use verb + -ing or to + verb. Have Ss complete the task making a list of advice for each situation.
- When Ss finish, have pairs join another pair and compare their lists. Tell Ss to highlight any advice the other pair did not have.
- For each situation, ask Ss to read their advice to the class. Did anyone else in the class disagree with that advice?

Extra activity GROUPS

Group members discuss how some attitudes towards good and bad manners have changed. Write on the board:

My grandmother thinks it's bad manners / terrible ____.
I think ____ is ____.

Using the sentences on the board as a guide, members tell the group about some social behavior that they think is more acceptable now than in their grandmother's day. Group members agree or disagree (e.g., S1: My grandmother thinks it's terrible to see young people holding hands in public. I think holding hands is perfectly acceptable. S2: I'm with you. There's nothing wrong with holding hands. Kissing in public is inappropriate, though. S3: I don't know. I think it's fine to give someone a quick kiss on the cheek.). Groups report one of their discussions to the class and get others' opinions.

Extra practice

Tell Ss to turn to Extra Practice 3B on p. 142 of their Student's Books. Have Ss do the tasks in class, or assign them for homework. (See the teaching notes on p. T-142.)

Sounds right

Tell Ss to turn to Sounds Right on p. 137 of their Student's Books. Have Ss do the task for Unit 3 in class, or assign it for homework. (See the teaching notes on p. T-137.)

Workbook

Assign Workbook pp. 20 and 21. (The answer key begins on p. T-182.)

Lesson C To be honest, . . .

↻ Lesson C recycles verb + -ing, to + verb, and conditional sentences for imaginary situations.

1 Conversation strategy

- Set the scene Write homesick on the board. Ask, “What does it mean to be homesick?” Elicit the answer [to feel sad because you’re away from home]. Say, “The main reason people get homesick is because they miss certain things and people.”

A

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss make their list. Have several Ss share their list with the class (e.g., their family or friends, familiar food, hearing their own language).

- Preview the task Say, “Now listen. What would David miss if he left Brazil? Write the answers.”
- Play the recording Books closed. Ss listen and write the answers. Replay the recording if necessary. Have Ss compare their answers in pairs.
- Play the recording again Books open. Ss listen, read along, and review their answers. Check answers with the class [If David left Brazil, he’d miss the food and learning / speaking the language.].

C

- Present Notice Read the information aloud. Say, “Expressions such as absolutely, definitely, really, certainly, and honestly help people make their ideas sound stronger. Expressions such as to be honest and to tell you the truth allow speakers to state strong personal views while trying not to offend others. Actually and In fact present ideas as factual or as true for the speaker and also signal that the speaker is going to speak openly.” (For more information, see Language Notes at the beginning of this unit.)
- Ask a S to read the expressions. Say, “Find examples of these in the conversation.” [David: Um, I don’t miss too much, to be honest.; But I definitely don’t miss the food.; I’d absolutely miss the food here.; But actually, I think the biggest thing would be . . . ; In fact, living back home would be boring, I think. I honestly don’t know what I’d do.]
- Practice Tell Ss to practice the conversation in pairs, taking turns playing each role.

About you

D

- Preview and do the task Say, “Make these statements about living in another country more direct. Use the expressions given.” Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class. Say, “Tell the class if you put the expression in a different place. Sometimes, more than one answer is correct.”

Answers

1. I’d definitely miss my friends. In fact, I’d miss everyone. / I’d miss everyone, in fact.
 2. I certainly wouldn’t miss the weather. But I’d really miss the food.
 3. I’d actually enjoy living in a different culture. / I’d enjoy living in a different culture, actually.
 4. To be honest, learning the language would be a challenge. / Learning the language would be a challenge, to be honest.
 5. To tell you the truth, I wouldn’t miss the lifestyle here. / I wouldn’t miss the lifestyle here, to tell you the truth.
 6. I honestly think I’d be scared to go abroad on my own. / Honestly, I think I’d be scared to go abroad on my own. / I think I’d be scared to go abroad on my own, honestly.
- Say, “Look at the answers. When you use an adverb like definitely or certainly to sound more direct, where is a good place to put it?” [in front of the main verb] Ask, “When you use one of the phrasal expressions, where does it go?” [at the beginning or the end of the statement] Say, “Actually is an exception. It can go before the verb, or at the beginning or the end of a statement.”
 - Say, “Now discuss each statement with a partner. Do you agree?” Ask two Ss to read the example conversation aloud. Have Ss complete the task. Have several Ss tell the class about any surprising answers from their partner.

Extra activity PAIRS

Pairs write a conversation similar to Hilda and David’s, beginning with If I lived abroad . . . Ss can use ideas from the conversation, the statements in Exercise 1B, or their own ideas. Have each pair present their conversation to another pair. A few pairs present their conversation to the class.

2 Strategy plus

- Present Strategy Plus Tell Ss to look at the conversation on p. 26 and find of course [David: Um, I miss my family, of course. . . .].
- Read the information and the examples in Strategy Plus. (For more information, see Language Notes at the beginning of this unit.) Ask, "Which meaning of of course is David using?" [This idea is not surprising.]
- Present Note Read the information aloud. Have two Ss read aloud the example conversation. Point out that Of course as an answer to a question can sound rude. It does not mean the same thing as "yes." It means, "This is not surprising, so how can you think otherwise?"
- Present In Conversation Books closed. Say, "Of course is a popular expression. Do you think it's in the top 40, 50, or 60 expressions? Write your guess." Books open. Have a S read the information.

A

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss complete the task and compare their answers with a partner. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. b. Absolutely. Of course, I'd probably feel homesick at times.
2. a. Well, I guess I'd like to know all about its culture. And, of course, its traditions.
3. b. Probably. Maybe a photo of my cat. Of course, I couldn't take the cat with me, but . . .

About you

B

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss complete the task.

Extra activity PAIRS

Pairs choose one of the questions from Exercise 2A and write a conversation. Ss should try to include follow-up questions, and words and expressions to make their statements sound more definite. Pairs present their conversation to another pair.

3 Listening and strategies

A 1.28

- Preview and do the task Ask, "What's an exchange student?" [a student who goes to another country to stay with a student in that country] "What's a host family?" [the family an exchange student stays with] Ask, "What's a curfew?" Write it on the board [a time, especially at night, when people must be in their homes]. Read the instructions and the questions aloud. Say, "Just listen the first time. When you listen again, make a few brief notes to help you remember Val's answers."
- Play the recording Audio script p. T-167 Ss listen only. Replay the recording. Ss listen and write.
- Play the recording again Ss listen and review their answers. Have Ss compare their information in pairs by asking each other the questions. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. She's an exchange student.
2. She doesn't have much in common with her host sister, and at home she has more independence.
3. Her host family is really nice. They have a couple of little boys who are really cute. And she and the mom cook together a lot. She has gone to a couple of concerts with her host sister. She joined a soccer team, and got to know some people who play tennis.
4. She keeps in touch almost every day by email, and they have video calls on weekends.

B 1.28

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Ask a S to read the five sentences aloud.
- Play the recording Audio script p. T-167 Ss listen and check (✓) the sentences. Check answers with the class.

Answers

3. ✓ She's definitely learning about the culture. (The host mom is teaching her to make traditional dishes. / There is less independence.)
4. ✓ Of course, she doesn't like having to be home at ten. (She has to be home at eight on weeknights and ten on weekends.)

About you

C

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Ask a S to read the example aloud. Tell groups to use the questions in Exercise 3A for their discussions, but to also add ideas of their own. As groups discuss the questions, go around the class, and help as needed.
- Follow-up Groups report back to the class about an experience of one of their group members.

Extra activity GROUPS

Ss reread the questions in Exercise 3A. Groups brainstorm all the reasons they can think of why people live away from home (e.g., to go away to college, to move to a new job, to go on a home stay / study program overseas). Ss discuss all the reasons that parents might miss their children, all the different ways of keeping in touch, and all the different things people might miss about home. Remind Ss to use of course in their discussions for items that are not surprising (e.g., People will miss all their friends at home, of course.).

Workbook

 Assign Workbook pp. 22 and 23. (The answer key begins on p. T-182.)

1 Reading

- Set the scene Read the lesson title aloud. Give an example of a well-known or typical proverb from either your or the Ss' country and then ask, "What is a proverb?" Get ideas from Ss (e.g., a traditional saying that contains some kind of advice for everyday life).

A

Prereading

- Preview and do the task Write on the board: Nothing ventured, nothing gained. Too many cooks spoil the broth. Read the proverbs aloud. Ask, "What do you think these proverbs mean? When are they used and why?" Ss discuss with a partner.
- Ask the class to call out their ideas for each proverb. ["Nothing ventured, nothing gained" means that if you don't try something, there's no chance for you to succeed. It's used to encourage people to try something new or to take a risk. "Too many cooks spoil the broth" means that a lot of people trying to take charge of a project at the same time will ruin the project. It's used when too many people are giving different orders or directions at the same time.]
- Say, "Think of a similar proverb in your language. When is it used and why? Tell a partner." Have Ss discuss. Have several Ss tell the class.

B

During reading

- Present Reading Tip Tell Ss to read the first sentence of each paragraph. Ask Ss what each paragraph will be about (e.g., 1. How proverbs pass along "common sense" advice. 2. Ancient proverbs are still true today. 3. Proverbs might help us understand cultural differences. 4. Proverbs can apply to two sides of the same situation. 5. Proverbs may contain general truths, but they don't always provide an easy answer.).
- Preview the reading Say, "Read the article. How many proverbs can you find? As you read, circle the proverbs."
- Do the reading Have Ss read the article and circle the proverbs. When Ss finish, have Ss call out the proverbs and write them on the board. Ask, "Are any of the proverbs familiar to you?" Call on Ss to say which proverbs are familiar and where they heard them.
- Ask, "Do you have similar proverbs in your language?" Have Ss work in pairs and try to think of proverbs with similar meanings. Have Ss make notes of their answers. (Note: In classes made up of Ss from different cultural backgrounds, try to put together Ss from the same background.) When Ss finish, have pairs report the proverbs they thought of.
- Ask, "Are proverbs used in the same ways?" Have a short class discussion.
- Do the reading again Have Ss read the article again and underline any new words. Have Ss call out the words. Ask other Ss to explain the meanings of the words, and provide help as needed.
- Follow-up Read the title of the article aloud. Ask, "What does it tell us about the writer's point of view?" Get ideas from the class.

C

Postreading

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss do the task. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. Proverbs are a way of passing down folk wisdom from generation to generation.
2. Scholars use proverbs to understand cultural differences and to define a common wisdom that binds humans together.
3. Two proverbs that rhyme are "Haste makes waste" and "When the cat's away, the mice will play."
4. Three proverbs that are memorable because they repeat consonants, words, or structures are "Out of the frying pan and into the fire," "It takes two to tango," and "Once bitten, twice shy."
5. Two pairs of proverbs that are contradictory are "Absence makes the heart grow fonder" and "Out of sight, out of mind," and "Clothes make the man" and "You can't judge a book by its cover."
6. Two things we can learn when we study proverbs from different cultures are that proverbs can help us grasp some universally shared wisdom, but they also make us recognize that life is complex and that there are no easy answers.

Extra activity GROUPS

Write the following proverbs on the board:

1. Rome wasn't built in a day.
2. Don't count your chickens before they hatch.
3. The apple doesn't fall far from the tree.
4. Look before you leap.

Groups decide what the proverbs on the board mean. [Possible answers: 1. You have to be patient when you begin a big task.; 2. Don't assume you're going to be lucky or successful.; 3. A child will grow up to be like his or her parents.; 4. You should know what you are agreeing to before you say you'll do something.] Groups report their interpretations to the class.

Extra activity GROUPS

Groups discuss the proverbs one by one, thinking about whether they think the proverbs are good, sensible advice or not. Have several groups report what they discussed, supporting their views with examples.

2 Listening and speaking

A

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Ask individual Ss each to read a proverb aloud. Make sure Ss understand any new vocabulary. Have Ss work in pairs to discuss the meanings of the proverbs. When they finish, ask a few pairs to call out their ideas, and write them on the board under the language names.

B 1.29

- Preview the task Say, "Listen to four people talk about their favorite proverbs. Number the proverbs above 1 to 4."
- Play the recording *Audio script p. T-167 Ss listen and number the proverbs. Check answers with the class.

Answers

Spanish ; Russian ; Portuguese ; Chinese

- Ask, "What do these proverbs mean? Listen and write brief notes that explain each one."
- Play the recording again Ss listen and write. Pause the recording after each speaker to give Ss time to write. Check the answers with the class. ["Every Tuesday has its Sunday" means that there will be good days as well as bad days.; "If you're afraid of the wolves, don't go into the woods" probably means that you should know your own limits.; "Hard bread is better than nothing" means that when times are bad, you have to be grateful for the little you have.; "You can't expect both ends of a sugar cane to be sweet" means that you can't have the advantages of something without the disadvantages.]

- The class looks at their ideas on the board from Part A. Ask individual Ss to read the meanings they guessed correctly.

C 1.30

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Ask individual Ss to read each new proverb aloud. Make sure Ss understand any new vocabulary. Have Ss make guesses about which proverb in Exercise 2A is similar to each English proverb, and number them 1, 2, 3, or 4 (1 = Russian, 2 = Portuguese, 3 = Chinese, 4 = Spanish).
- Play the recording *Audio script p. T-168 Ss listen and review their guesses. Check answers with the class. Have Ss who got all the answers correct raise their hands.

Answers

- 3 (Chinese)
- 4 (Spanish)
- 1 (Russian)
- 2 (Portuguese)

About you

D

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Ask a S to read the example aloud. Have Ss discuss the questions with a partner.
- Follow-up Have several Ss report to the class.

3 Writing

A

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud.
- Present *Help Note Call on Ss to read the useful expressions. (For more information, see Language Notes at the beginning of this unit.)
- Do the Task Have Ss find and underline the expressions in the article. Check the expressions with the class: Have a S read aloud the underlined expressions.

Answers

One of my favorite Arabic proverbs is "You cannot carry two watermelons in one hand." It's often said when a person is taking on too much work or too many challenges. It means that you need to focus on one important task at a time and do it well. A similar proverb in English is "Don't bite off more than you can chew." I like the proverb about watermelons because it's an excellent metaphor. Whenever I have to decide about a new project, I can see myself trying to carry two watermelons, and I stop and think about how much work I can handle.

B

- Preview and do the task Say, "Write a short article about your favorite proverb. Say why you like it and what it means." Have Ss write about their favorite proverb.
- Tell Ss to see if any English proverbs in the reading are similar in meaning to the one they chose, and if so, to use the last two useful expressions. If Ss are doing the writing as homework, they can search for English proverbs with similar meanings on the Internet or at the library.
- When the Ss' articles are complete, tell Ss to read several of their classmates' articles. Say, "Find out if anyone chose the same proverb." Ss read the articles and report to the class.

Extra activity CLASS

Tell Ss to read four or five more articles and choose the one they think is most interesting. Then ask a few Ss to tell the class which proverb they chose and why.

Free talk

Tell Ss to turn to Free Talk 3 at the back of their Student's Books. Have Ss do the task. (See the teaching notes on p. T-130.)

Workbook

 Assign Workbook pp. 24 and 25. (The answer key begins on p. T-182.)

Vocabulary Notebook

If done for homework

Briefly present the Learning Tip and the task directions. Make sure Ss understand what they need to do.

If done in class

- Present Learning Tip Read the information aloud. Say, "When you find an expression on different websites, you'll also find different situations when you can use the expression."

↻ These tasks recycle vocabulary for making statements about etiquette in different cultures and for using verb + -ing or to + verb.

- Preview the task Read the lesson title aloud. Ask, "What do you think 'travel etiquette' means?" [things you should and shouldn't do when you visit a different country or culture]
- Read the instructions aloud. Ask Ss to read the sentences and the expressions in the box.
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task. Check answers with the class: Have individual Ss each read a completed sentence.

Answers

1. bowing
2. to shake hands
3. eating
4. to take off
5. kissing
6. walking around barefoot
7. having an argument; to keep your voice down
8. to cut in line

- Preview the Word Builder task Read the instructions aloud. Tell Ss to use a dictionary if they need help with the meaning of a word or expression.
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class: For each word or expression, have several Ss read their etiquette tip to the class.

Answers

Answers will vary.

On your own

- Present On Your Own Read the instructions and the example from the picture aloud.
- Follow-up At the start of the next class, Ss form small groups and present their information. Each group presents etiquette rules for one country to the class, without naming the country. Classmates guess the country.

Now I can . . .

- Go over the Now I Can items. Put Ss in pairs to give one example each for the first four items. Call on Ss and ask for examples or explanations.
- Have Ss look over the four lessons and identify any areas they want to review.
- Tell Ss to complete the Now I Can items. Ss check (✓) the items they know and put a question mark (?) by items that they are not confident about. Check with individual Ss which areas need review to see if there are general problems to review in class. Help individual Ss as required. Have Ss hand in a piece of paper with their name and a schedule showing what they plan to review and when. Review or reteach these language items in a future class.

Checkpoint Units 1–3

Before you begin the Checkpoint, write on the board: Grammar, Vocabulary, Conversation Strategies. Tell Ss to think about Units 1–3 and write down which area they are most sure about. Say each area, and ask Ss to raise their hands for the one they wrote.

1 Is it polite?

↻ This task recycles verb + -ing and to + verb and their uses, including as complements. It also recycles the conversation strategy of showing understanding by summarizing what people say.

A

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions and the example aloud. Write on the board: verb + -ing, to + verb. Say, “Use these verb forms. For some sentences, there may be more than one correct answer.”
- Have Ss complete the questions. Check answers with the class: Call on individual Ss to read the questions aloud.

Answers

1. Would you ever consider not tipping a server in a restaurant?
 2. Do you remember staring at people when you were little?
 3. Do you feel it's rude not to say / to not say hello to your neighbors?
 4. Is holding hands OK on a first date?
5. Do you bother bargaining / to bargain with street vendors when the items are already very cheap?
 6. Do you ever offer to help people with their bags on the bus or subway?
 7. Have you and a friend ever ended up arguing in public?
 8. Have you ever offended someone without intending to be rude?

B

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Model the task by asking question 1. Have a S read the example response, and then read the example summary. Then ask Ss a few of the other questions, and summarize their responses (e.g., T: Is holding hands OK on a first date? S: If you both feel comfortable, I think it's fine. T: Yeah. So, both people have to think it's OK.)
- Do the task Have pairs take turns asking and answering the questions in Exercise 1A and making summaries.
- Follow-up Read each question aloud, and call on a few Ss to tell the class their answers.

2 Think, Bob, think!

↻ This task recycles simple and continuous forms of verbs. It also recycles the vocabulary for colors, patterns, materials, and styles of clothing.

A

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Write on the board: simple verbs, continuous verbs. Ask, “When do you use simple verbs? For what kind of actions or situations?” [for completed actions or permanent situations] “When do you use continuous verbs?” [for ongoing actions or temporary situations]
- Say, “Use the simple or continuous form of the verbs in the present, the past, or the present perfect. For some sentences, there may be more than one correct answer.” Read the example aloud. Have Ss complete the conversation. Check answers with the class: Call on a pair to read their answers, and ask if other Ss have different answers.

Answers

- Officer* Have you seen these people before?
Bob Yes, they're my neighbors. They live upstairs.
- Officer* How long have they lived / been living there?
Bob I guess I've known them for six months. They moved here in August.
- Officer* When did you last see them?
Bob Um, about a week ago, I think. Last Tuesday.
- Officer* What were they doing when you saw them?
Bob Well, as I was coming home, they were carrying a big suitcase to the car.
- Officer* Did you speak to them?
Bob I said, “Hi! Where are you going?” And they replied, “On vacation.”
- Officer* What time did they finally leave?
Bob Oh, um, it was pretty late, around 11 at night, I guess.
- Officer* Can you remember what they were wearing?
Bob Let me think. . . .

B

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss look at the picture, write a description, and share it with a partner. Check answers with the class: Call on a few Ss to read their descriptions.

Possible answers

The man was wearing a black turtleneck sweater, jeans, and a blue jacket. He was carrying a black suitcase.
The woman was wearing a light blue top, mauve pants, and a maroon jacket. She had a black purse (shoulder-bag).

Extra activity PAIRS / GROUPS

Pairs study each other's clothes for fifteen seconds, sit back-to-back, and then write a detailed description of their partner's clothing without looking. Ss form groups, read their descriptions, and find out who remembered the most details.

3 Can you complete this conversation?

↻ This task recycles asking negative questions and the conversation strategies of sounding more direct, using the present tense to highlight a key moment, and using this and these, now, and of course.

- Set the scene Have Ss read the incomplete conversation quickly. Ask, "What's the conversation about?" [a woman who lived in Japan and how she got her job there]

A

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions and the example aloud. Tell Ss to use each expression only once. Have Ss complete the conversation. Check answers with the class: Have three Ss read the conversation aloud.

Answers

Anna Bella used to live in Japan. You loved living there, right?

Bella Oh, definitely. I lived there for nine years, working for a Japanese advertising company.

Chris Nine years? Wow! Didn't you ever get homesick?

Bella Occasionally. But, to be honest, I didn't really miss living at home. I was too busy. I mean, of course I missed my family.

Chris Oh, I bet you did. Now, how did you get that job? Did they hire you over here, or . . . ?

Bella Actually, I was already in Japan on an exchange program, staying with this family. And the father starts bringing home all these documents from his work to translate into English. Anyway, I started helping him, and his company ended up hiring me.

Anna And they transferred her here. It's a cool story, don't you think?

- Practice Have Ss practice the conversation in groups of three, taking turns playing each role.

B

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions and the topics aloud. Have two Ss read aloud the example conversation. Tell Ss to write down ideas for each of the four topics. When they finish, ask a few Ss for their ideas for each (e.g., T: What's something difficult you did once? S: I once ran in a 20-kilometer race.).
- Tell Ss to choose one of the topics and write details for a conversation. Tell Ss to highlight a key point by changing it to the present tense.
- Tell Ss to have their conversations. Tell them to ask follow-up questions.
- Follow-up Pairs present their conversations to the class.

4 As bad as that?

↻ This task recycles comparisons with (not) as . . . as and asking negative questions.

- Preview and do the task Read the list of things aloud. Have Ss write true sentences comparing the things. Give them two minutes to write sentences.
- When Ss finish, say, "Now compare your sentences with a partner. Try to use negative questions to give opinions or to suggest ideas." Have a pair read the example conversation aloud. Have Ss do the task.

- Follow-up Pairs report a thing they disagreed on.

Extra activity PAIRS

Ss each write four more comparisons similar to the ones in Exercise 4. Ss can look through the units for other things to discuss. Ss then discuss their opinions in pairs.

5 Guess the dish!

↻ This task recycles the simple present passive.

A

- Preview and do the task Say, "Write questions in the simple present passive, using the words below." Have Ss write the questions. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. Is it eaten hot or cold?
2. When is it eaten?
3. How is it cooked?
4. What's it made with?
5. What's it served with?
6. What's it called?

- Say, "Think of a traditional dish, and write answers to the questions. Don't let anyone see your paper, and don't give the dish's name."

B

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss work in pairs and take turns asking and answering their questions to guess the dishes. Tell them to guess the dish once they are pretty sure. Find out who guessed their partner's dish the soonest.

UNIT 4 Socializing

Language notes

Lesson A Party time

Grammar be supposed to; was / were going to

(See Student's Book p. 35.)

The lesson teaches Ss how to talk about fulfilled and unfulfilled expectations and intentions using be supposed to and was / were going to.

Form

- be supposed to with simple verbs
subject + be + (not) + supposed to + base form of verb
It's supposed to rain later.
He's not supposed to eat chocolate.
with continuous verbs
subject + be + (not) + supposed to + be + present participle
I'm supposed to be studying.
I'm not supposed to be talking on the phone.
- was / were going to subject + was / were + (not) + going to + base form of verb
He was going to give us directions.
I wasn't going to go to the party.

Use

- Be supposed to + verb can be used to talk about what people expect to happen (or not happen).
It's supposed to rain. (= They say it's going to rain. This is what we expect or believe.)
- It can also be used to say what someone should or should not do.
I'm supposed to work tomorrow. (= I have to work tomorrow.)
He's not supposed to eat chocolate. (= He shouldn't eat it.)

Note: The present of be supposed to can refer to the present or future.

- Be supposed to can be used to contrast what should happen with what, in fact, does or will happen.
I'm supposed to be studying now. (= I should be studying, but I'm not. I'm doing something else.)
I'm not supposed to stay out late. (= I shouldn't or can't stay out late, but maybe I will.)
- The past of be supposed to can mean either that what was expected to happen, did happen, or that it did not or will not happen. It can be used in statements about the past, present, or future.
They were supposed to come at 7:00 . . . and they did. They arrived on time.
but they didn't. They were late.
but they haven't arrived yet. They're still not here.
but they won't. They'll be late as usual.
- Was / were going to can also be used to talk about unfulfilled expectations — that what someone intended or expected to happen didn't or won't happen.
I was going to go to the party, but I didn't.
I wasn't going to go to the party, but I guess I will.

Corpus information Be supposed to Over 60 percent of the uses of be supposed to are in the present tense. About 10 percent of its uses are with negative verbs.

Common errors with be supposed to

Ss may not include the correct form of be with be supposed to. They sometimes forget to add the final "d" to "supposed." (~~He's not supposed to eat chocolate.~~ NOT ~~He not supposed to eat chocolate.~~ AND ~~I'm supposed to work tomorrow.~~ NOT ~~I suppose to work tomorrow.~~)

Lesson B We have to get going.

Vocabulary Expressions with get

(See Student's Book pp. 36–37.)

The lesson teaches a variety of expressions with get including phrasal verbs and phrasal prepositional verbs. (See Grammar below.) Many of these expressions are idiomatic — you cannot guess their meaning from the words that make up the expressions, which can make them difficult to learn.

Grammar Inseparable phrasal verbs

(See Student's Book p. 37.)

Ss have learned how to use separable phrasal verbs with a noun or pronoun object. (See Touchstone Student's Book 3, Unit 9, Lesson B.) In this lesson, they learn how to use two- and three-word inseparable verbs — verbs with an object that can only come after the final particle or preposition. The object may be a noun, a pronoun, or a gerund (verb + -ing form).

Form

- verb + particle + object
He'll never get over the disappointment.
He'll never get over it. (NOT He'll never get it over.)
- If the object is a verb, use a gerund (verb + -ing).
She'll never get over being embarrassed.
- verb + particle + preposition + object
Can you get out of the meeting?
Can you get out of it?
- If the object is a verb, use a gerund (verb + -ing).
Can you get out of going to the meeting?

Use

- Some two-word phrasal verbs, such as get through and get over with the meanings taught in the lesson, are inseparable — the two parts stay together when they are used with an object. The object comes after the particle.
- Some three-word verbs are also called phrasal-prepositional verbs — these are verbs that include a verb, a particle, and a preposition, such as get away with and get around to. The phrasal-prepositional verbs in this lesson are all with get, but examples with other verbs would be look forward to, look up to, and put up with. The object always comes after the preposition.

Lesson C You're going this time, right?

Conversation strategy Checking your understanding

(See Student's Book p. 38.)

- The lesson teaches Ss to use statement questions, or declarative questions. These are questions that have the word order of a statement. They are often used to check understanding and to check information that has been discussed in a conversation or situation, rather than to ask about new information. (See Speaking Naturally below for information on the intonation of statement questions.)
- Statement questions are often, but not always, follow-up questions. They can be preceded by So. People often add huh, right, or then at the end of the question. Huh is very informal and should be avoided in more formal conversations. Then means, "this must be true after what was just said."

So, parties aren't your thing, huh / right / then?

Strategy plus So

(See Student's Book p. 39.)

So has many uses in both spoken and written English. This section focuses on its uses in conversation management, which include the following:

- to start a topic or even a conversation, often with or followed by, a question
So, there's another work party on Friday. You're going, right?

- before a statement question to check understanding
So parties aren't your thing, huh?
- to pause, often to let the other person draw a conclusion about what has just been said
I'd rather talk one on one, so . . .
- to close a topic, especially when the speaker wants to summarize what he or she has just said
So, yeah. I'll just say I have other plans.

Corpus information So

So is one of the top 20 words in conversation.

Speaking naturally Being sure or checking

(See Student's Book p. 39.)

This section contrasts falling intonation in summarizing statements with rising intonation in statement questions. In general, falling intonation shows that the speaker is sure about something or confirming information. Rising intonation shows the speaker is checking or asking for confirmation.

Lesson D Social style

Reading tip

The Reading Tip tells Ss that writers often use the following words or expressions to say what people think or say: argue, believe, contend, explain, according to (someone). These expressions are useful in argument and opinion essays.

Help note Uses of as

(See Student's Book p. 41.)

The Help Note shows three common uses of the word as in writing.

- as* = being
As an extrovert, I love to socialize.
- as* = because
I enjoy parties as I like to meet new people.
- as* = while or at the time when I get excited as the weekend gets closer.

Socializing

Teach this unit opener page together with Lesson A in one class period.

Introduce the theme of the unit Say, “Having a good social life is important.” Ask Ss, “What kinds of activities do you think are part of a good social life?” Have Ss give ideas (e.g., parties, playing sports with friends, going out to a movie or a restaurant, having coffee with friends). Say, “When you do things with friends, you are socializing. When you go out to parties or other events with people, you are socializing.”

In this unit, you learn how to . . .

- Unit aims Read the lesson headings and key unit aims aloud. Tell Ss to listen and read along.

Extra activity INDIVIDUALS

Ss look through the unit and find the things on the list. Write on the board:

Find . . .

1. an expression that means “have to” or “should.”
2. three phrasal verbs that start with “get.”
3. what happens to the intonation when you’re checking information.
4. three different uses or meanings for the word “as.”

Ss report their answers for each item [1. be supposed to (p. 35) 2. get off, get out of, get over, etc. (p. 36) 3. It rises. (p. 39) 4. being, because, while (p. 41)].

Before you begin . . .

- Introduce the social activities Have Ss look at the pictures. Ask, “How are these people socializing?” [1. They’re cheering on their team at a game. 2. They’re chatting and joking at a café. 3. They’re at a club. 4. They’re having a picnic.]
- Have Ss look at Before You Begin. Ask, “Who do you usually socialize with? Current school friends? Work friends? Old friends? Do you usually go out in small groups, large groups, or with just one person? Does it depend on what you’re doing or where you’re going? Where are some good places to go out with friends? Think of specific places to go, such as restaurants, or places in general, such as a park. Is it expensive to go out in your city? Do you usually do some things with some people and other things with other people?”
- Have Ss discuss the questions in small groups and have each group decide on five places that are good to go to with friends. Have groups report to the class and see if the groups agree on any places.

Recycle grammar and a conversation strategy Review some of the ways to form comparatives (e.g., -er, more + adjective, less + adjective) and superlatives (e.g., -est, the most + adjective, the least + adjective). (See Touchstone Student’s Book 2, Unit 10, Lesson A, and Touchstone Student’s Book 3, Unit 3, Lesson A.) Also review the use of superlatives for emphasis (e.g., It’s the most amazing place.). (See Touchstone Student’s Book 3, Unit 3, Lesson C.) Tell Ss to use the forms as they discuss and compare good places to go (e.g., The café near school is the best place for coffee and conversation. It’s the greatest place to meet new people!; Soccer games at the stadium are more exciting than any other sports events. There is action all the time.).

Extra activity CLASS

Individual Ss say their favorite way to socialize with friends. The first time an activity is mentioned, write it on the board. Each time the same activity is mentioned, give it a point. The class finds out which socializing activity is their overall favorite.

Lesson A Party time

1 Getting started

- Set the scene Say, "Imagine you've received an invitation to a party. Do you ever call other friends who are invited to get more details about the party? What questions do you ask?" Write Ss' ideas on the board (e.g., What time are you going? Should we take anything? Are you taking a gift or anything? What are you wearing?).

A

- Preview and do the task Ask, "What do you do to get ready for a party? Tell the class." Ask several Ss.

B 2.01

- Preview the task Books closed. Say, "Listen. Brad and Gayle are having a party tonight, and their friends are getting ready. What do you find out about the party? Listen for the answers."
- Play the recording Ss listen only. Replay the recording. Say, "Listen and write short answers." Ss listen and write.
- Play the recording again Books open. Ss listen again, read along, and review their answers. Check answers with the class [The party is at Brad and Gayle's house. It's a barbecue. It ends at 11:00.].

C

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss complete the task and then compare answers in pairs. Check answers with the class: Have individual Ss each read an answer. Write the answers on the board without the underlining.

Answers

1. Phil I heard it's supposed to be really warm.
2. Sue Brad's not supposed to / Brad isn't supposed to eat chocolate.
3. Patty I'm supposed to get up early tomorrow.
4. Anna I'm supposed to be working on a paper.
5. Patty Jen and Martin were supposed to be here by 7:00.
6. Sue I was going to make a dessert, but I didn't.

- Focus on the form and the use Say, "Look at sentence 1 on the board. Does Phil know for sure that the weather will be warm, or does he expect it to be warm?" [He expects it to be warm.] Say, "Look again at sentence 1. What phrase tells you he expects it?" [it's supposed to] Underline it's supposed to.
- Say, "Look at sentence 2. Should Brad eat chocolate?" [no] Ask, "What phrase means 'shouldn't'?" [s not supposed to / isn't supposed to] Underline s not / isn't supposed to.
- Say, "Look at sentence 3. Can Patty sleep late tomorrow?" [No. She has to get up early.] Ask, "What phrase means 'I have to'?" [I'm supposed to] Underline 'm supposed to.

- Say, "Look at sentence 4. What should Anna be doing?" [working on a paper] Ask, "Do you think she's going to do it?" [no] Ask, "Why not?" [She'll probably go to the party.] Ask, "What phrase means 'I should'?" [I'm supposed to] Underline 'm supposed to. Ask, "What verb form is after to?" [be + verb + -ing]
- Say, "Look at the underlined phrases. What tense are they?" [present] Ask, "What time do they refer to?" [present and future] Say, "Be supposed to is used to talk about what you expect or what you intend to happen now or in the future. Sometimes the things may not happen."
- Say, "Look at sentence 5. What did Jen and Martin agree to do?" [be at Patty's by 7:00] Say, "Use the information in the conversation: Were they there at 7:00?" [no] Ask, "What phrase means 'agreed to'?" [were supposed to] Underline were supposed to. Ask, "What tense is this?" [past]
- Say, "Look at sentence 6. What did Sue intend to do?" [make a dessert] Ask, "Did she make a dessert?" [no] Ask, "What phrase means 'intended to'?" [was going to] Underline was going to. Ask, "What tense is this?" [past] Say, "Was or were supposed to and was or were going to can be used to talk about something you intended to happen in the past, but that did not happen."
- Try it out Say, "Look at the conversations. Find more examples of be supposed to and was / were going to." Have individual Ss each read a sentence aloud [Anna: Well, I wasn't going to go, but maybe I will.; Brad was going to call and give me the address, but he didn't.; Phil: I think it's supposed to be a barbecue.; Anwar: Are we supposed to bring anything?; Sue: I was going to make some potato salad, but I didn't have time.; Junko: I think the party's supposed to end at 11:00, but we can leave a bit earlier.].

Extra activity PAIRS

Pairs practice the four telephone conversations in Exercise 1A, and then choose one and rewrite it using their own ideas. Pairs present their conversation to another pair. Several pairs present their conversations to the class.

2 Grammar

2.02

- Present the grammar chart Play the recording. Ss listen and repeat.
- Understand the grammar Say, "The top section of the chart shows three ways to use be supposed to in the present tense." Remind Ss that although the form of the verb is in the present tense, it can refer to either the present or the future.
- Say, "Instead of beginning a statement about something you've heard about with They say . . . or I heard . . ., you can use be supposed to. It means 'many people believe this' or 'many people expect this.' You can talk about things such as a movie or a restaurant with be supposed to. For example, 'It's supposed to be a great movie' or 'The food's supposed to be fantastic there.'"
- Say, "Be supposed to can also be used instead of have to or should. When be supposed to is used in this way, it means that something is strongly expected or required; for example, 'You're supposed to call the boss if you can't come to work.'"
- Say, "You can also use be supposed to to contrast the difference between what should happen and what does happen or will happen. Sometimes the contrast is obvious from the situation. Sometimes people will add the word but; for example, 'I'm supposed to be studying for an exam, (but I'm not).'" Say, "Notice here the continuous form be studying to describe an ongoing or temporary activity. It means, 'I should be studying.'"
- Point out the bottom section of the chart. Say, "People use was / were supposed to to talk about something they previously expected to happen. It can be used in statements about the past, present, or future." Point out that the first example sentence talks about the past and that the second example sentence talks about the future. Say, "Was / were going to can be used in the same way as was / were supposed to." (For more information, see Language Notes at the beginning of this unit.)
- Present in Conversation Ask a S to read the information aloud.

- Present Common Errors Books closed. Write on the board: I suppose to work tomorrow. Elicit the correction [I'm supposed to work tomorrow.]. Books open. Read the information aloud.
- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss fill in the first blank. Check the answer with the class [It's supposed to]. Have Ss complete the task and compare their answers with a partner. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. A It's supposed to rain tonight. . . .
B Yeah. . . . It 's supposed to be good. I was supposed to see / was going to see it last weekend, . . .
 2. A . . . the weather 's not supposed to be / isn't supposed to be very good.
B Yeah. I 'm supposed to go / be going to a family reunion, . . .
A Why not? Reunions are supposed to be fun.
B Well, I 'm supposed to make 80 cupcakes. I was going to buy them, . . .
 3. A What did you do last night? Did you go out?
B No. I was supposed to cook / was supposed to be cooking / was going to cook dinner for a friend. I mean, I wasn't going to make anything special, . . . he was supposed to go / was supposed to be going to soccer practice or something, . . .
A Actually, I was supposed to go / was supposed to be going / was going to go to a movie, but then I decided to stay home.
- Practice Have Ss practice the conversations in pairs, taking turns playing each role.
 - Follow-up Ss ask and answer the questions with a partner using true information.

Extra practice

Tell Ss to turn to Extra Practice 4A on p. 143 of their Student's Books. Have Ss do the tasks in class, or assign them for homework. (See the teaching notes on p. T-143.)

3 Talk about it

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Ask individual Ss to each read a question aloud. Ask a pair of Ss to read the example aloud.
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task. Go around the class, and help as needed.
- Follow-up Ask individual Ss the first three discussion questions, one at a time. Say, "Listen to the answer. If you disagree, raise your hand and tell the class what you've heard" (e.g., T: What's the weather supposed to be like? S1: It's supposed to be really nice. S2: Actually, I heard it's supposed to rain on Sunday.).

Extra activity PAIRS

Pairs each think of an activity or event from some time in the past that they were supposed to take part in and then did not (e.g., childhood birthday party, a high school dance, a housewarming party). S1 tells his or her story; S2 asks follow-up questions. Partners switch roles. Partners tell each other's story to another pair. Have a few Ss tell their partner's story to the class.

Workbook

Assign Workbook pp. 26 and 27. (The answer key begins on p. T-182.)

Lesson B We have to get going.

1 Building vocabulary and grammar

- Set the scene Ask a few Ss, “Do you always want to attend the events you’re invited to?” Ask Ss who say no, “What kinds of events don’t you like to attend? Why not?”

A  2.03

- Preview the task Books closed. Say, “Listen. Where are Luis and Rosa going? Do they want to go? Write the answers.”
- Play the recording Ss listen and write.
- Play the recording again Books open. Ss listen, read along, and review their answers. Check answers with the class [They’re going to Luis’s cousin’s wedding. Luis wants to go, but Rosa doesn’t].
- Practice Tell Ss to practice the conversation in pairs, taking turns playing each role.

Word sort

B

- Preview the task Say, “Find a get expression from the conversation to complete each item in Exercise 1B. First, read the items to get the general meaning and then choose the expression.” Do the first sentence with the class. Have Ss call out the correct get expression to complete the sentence [get around to].
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class: Have individual Ss each read a completed sentence.

Answers

1. get around to
 2. get the feeling
 3. get through
 4. get it
 5. get used to
 6. get away with
- Ask Ss if there are any get expressions that they do not understand. Have the class help with definitions. Explain any get expressions that are still not clear.
 - Say, “Are the sentences true for you? Compare with a partner.” Tell Ss to take turns reading each item and saying whether it is true for them or not.

C

- Preview and do the task Say, “Find six more get expressions in the conversation above.” Have Ss call out the six verbs and write them on the board [get off, get out of, get over, get going, get home, get to know].
- Have a S read the example sentence with get off aloud. Say, “Write a sentence with each expression.” Have Ss complete the task and read their sentences aloud to a partner. For each expression, ask a few Ss to read their sentence to the class.

Vocabulary notebook

Tell Ss to turn to Vocabulary Notebook on p. 42 of their Student’s Book. Have Ss do the task in class, or assign it for homework. (See the teaching notes on p. T-42.)

Extra activity INDIVIDUALS / GROUPS

Book closed. Ss race to write as many get expressions as they can remember. Call “time” after one minute. Ss form small groups and put their lists together. Groups read their final list to the class. Each group gets one point for every get expression that no other group has. The group with the most points wins.

Recycle grammar Review separable phrasal verbs. (See Touchstone Student’s Book 3, Unit 9, Lesson B.) Write on the board, underlined as shown: I turned on the TV and I turned the TV on. Ask, “What kind of verb is this?” [phrasal verb] Ask, “What are the two parts of this phrasal verb?” [verb turned + particle on] Ask, “Are these sentences both correct?” [yes] Ask, “Where can the object, TV, go in the sentence?” [after the particle or between the verb and the particle] Say, “This phrasal verb is separable.”

- Write on the board: I turned on it and I turned it on. Ask, “Which of these sentences is correct and why?” [I turned it on because if the object is a pronoun, it has to go between the verb and the particle.]
- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Ask Ss to look at the words in bold in item 1. Ask, “What is the phrasal verb?” [get over] Ask, “What is the object?” [it] Say, “Find this phrasal verb in the conversation and circle the correct choice.”
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class: Write the answers on the board. Underline the phrasal verb. Ask, “What is the object in questions 1 and 2?” [it] Ask, “How about in sentence 3?” [wearing pants]. Ask, “What form of the verb follows the phrasal verb?” [-ing form]

Answers

1. get over it
 2. get out of it.
 3. wearing
- Focus on the form and the use Say, “There are two kinds of phrasal verbs in this task: a two-word phrasal verb in item 1 and three-word phrasal verbs in items 2 and 3. The three-word phrasal verb in sentence 2 has a verb (get), a particle (out), and a preposition (of).” Ask Ss to identify the three parts of the phrasal verb in sentence 3 [verb: get; particle: away; preposition: with]. Explain, “The phrasal verbs in the conversation are called ‘inseparable’ because the object cannot separate the parts of the verb. With two-word inseparable phrasal verbs, the object must come after the particle. With three-word inseparable phrasal verbs, the object must come after the preposition.” Say, “If you use a verb after a phrasal verb, use the -ing form.”
 - Say, “Find more phrasal verbs and objects in the conversation.” [get off work; get used to dressing up; get through the reception; get to know my family; get around to buying a gift]
 - Try it out Write on the board: What things are difficult to get through? Have pairs discuss answers (e.g., a reception, a class). Have a few pairs share their answers with the class. Repeat the task with the following: What are some things you might want to get out of? (e.g., an exam)

2 Grammar

2.04

- Present the grammar chart Play the recording. Ss listen and repeat.
- Understand the grammar Have Ss look at the left side of the chart. Have a S read the pattern for inseparable two-word verbs [verb + particle + object]. Say, "The chart shows verb + -ing pronouns, and nouns as objects of two-word verbs. If the object is a verb, the -ing form of the verb is used." Ask Ss to identify the kind of object in each sentence.
- Have Ss look at the right side of the chart. Have a S read the pattern for inseparable three-word verbs [verb + particle + preposition + object]. Point out that the object follows the preposition and can be a noun, a pronoun, or verb + -ing. (For more information, see Language Notes at the beginning of this unit.)

About you

- Preview the task Say, "Complete the questions. Put the words in order, and use the correct form of the verbs." Have a S read the example sentence aloud.
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. get out of it
2. get through the day
3. get out of going; get over feeling
4. get out of an invitation; get away with it
5. get around to choosing
6. get over an argument
7. get around to starting

Recycle a conversation strategy The task recycles "sounding more direct" (see Unit 3, Lesson C). Ask, "What expressions can you use to sound more direct?" (e.g., absolutely, actually, to be honest) Ask a few Ss to answer question 1 (e.g., Actually, no, I wouldn't. To tell you the truth, I tried it once. I lied to the teacher, but I didn't get away with it.).

- Say, "Now ask and answer the questions with a partner. Try to use the strategy of sounding more direct in responses." Have Ss complete the task. Ask a few Ss to share something they learned with the class.

Extra practice

Tell Ss to turn to Extra Practice 4B on p. 143 of their Student's Books. Have Ss do the tasks in class, or assign them for homework. (See the teaching notes on p. T-143.)

3 Speaking and listening

About you

A

- Preview the task Say, "Look at the four items." Have individual Ss each read an item and its choices. Say, "Discuss the sentences. Which choice is most like you? Tell a partner."
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task. Check answers with the class: Have individual Ss each read a sentence. Tell Ss to raise their hands when their choice is read. Assign a S to count hands and keep a tally on the board.

B 2.05

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Say, "Listen for the answer."
- Play the recording Audio script p. T-168 Ss listen. Replay the recording. Ss listen and write.
- Play the recording again Ss listen again and review their answers. Have Ss compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class [Roberto and Paula are supposed to go to a restaurant with Richard and Beth. Richard and Beth can't go because Beth has the flu. Roberto and Paula decide to go anyway].

C 2.05

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud.
- Play the recording Audio script p. T-168 Ss listen and circle Roberto's choices. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. b 2. a 3. b 4. b

- Follow-up Ss compare the way Roberto would complete the sentences with the tallies on the board from Exercise 3A. Ss decide if the majority of Ss are like Roberto.

About you

D

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions and the example aloud. Have Ss complete the task.
- Follow-up Ask several Ss to report one of their partner's other habits to the class.

Extra activity PAIRS

Pairs choose six inseparable verbs with get. After the partners have chosen their verbs, write on the board:

Dating Work School

Partners choose one of the topics and write a short conversation using as many of the verbs they chose as possible. Pairs present their conversation to another pair.

Sounds right

Tell Ss to turn to Sounds Right on p. 137 of their Student's Books. Have Ss do the task for Unit 4 in class, or assign it for homework. (See the teaching notes on p. T-137.)

Workbook

Assign Workbook pp. 28 and 29. (The answer key begins on p. T-182.)

Lesson C You're going this time, right?

↻ Lesson C recycles verb tenses for talking about past events (simple past, past continuous, present perfect).

1 Conversation strategy

- Set the scene Ask, "When friends, co-workers, or classmates have a party, how many people usually attend? Do you usually know all or most of the people who attend the parties you go to?" Elicit answers from the class.

A

- Preview and do the task Ask, "Which statements are true for you? Check (✓) them." Have Ss complete the task. Ask a S to read each statement aloud. Ss raise their hand if they checked the statement in their book.

B 2.06

- Preview the task Books closed. Say, "Listen to Hugo and Greg's conversation. How does Greg feel about parties? Greg is the second speaker. Just listen the first time."
- Play the recording Books closed. Ss listen only. Replay the conversation. Ss listen and write the answer. Have Ss compare their answers in pairs.
- Play the recording again Books open. Ss listen, read along, and review their answer. Check the answer with the class [Greg hates parties because he's not good at small talk and he doesn't like big groups of people.]

- Present Notice Read the information aloud. Add, "Statement questions can also be used to check an assumption — something you believe is true" (e.g., You're going this time, right?). Say, "Huh is very informal, so only use it with people you know well, like friends and family. You can use then when you want to say, 'I'm sure this is true after what you just said,'" (For more information, see Language Notes at the beginning of this unit.)
- Ask a S to read the example. Say, "Find more examples of statement questions in the conversation." [Hugo: You're going this time, right?; So, parties aren't your thing, huh?; So you're not going to go?]
- Practice Tell Ss to practice the conversation in pairs, taking turns playing each role.

D 2.07

- Preview and do the task Say, "Read more of Hugo and Greg's conversation. Change the questions to 'statement questions.'" Say, "You can add huh, right, or then at the end, but you don't have to." Point out the first example answer. Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs.
- Play the recording Audio script p. T-169 Ss listen, read along, and compare their answers with the ones on the recording. Ask Ss to raise their hands if their answers are different from those on the recording, and call on a few Ss with their hands raised to give their answers.

Answers

1. So you aren't going to show up at all, huh?
 2. You like them, huh?
 3. But you don't want to network?
 4. You don't want to work your way up in the organization?
 5. So you're pretty ambitious, huh?
 6. So, you know a lot of people in the company, then?
- Play the recording again, and tell Ss to listen for the intonation that Carlos and Greg use in their questions. Pause after each question for Ss to repeat.
 - Have Ss practice the conversation in pairs, taking turns playing each role. Tell them to try to imitate the pronunciation on the recording.

Extra activity PAIRS

Ss prepare an anecdote about one of the following:

1. a party they did not enjoy;
 2. a party where they met some interesting people;
 3. how they got out of a party they didn't want to attend;
 4. a party that they didn't want to attend, but that they really enjoyed.
- Ss take turns telling their anecdotes, and partners use questions in the form of statements to check their understanding.

2 Strategy plus

- Present Strategy Plus Tell Ss to look at Hugo and Greg's first conversation on p. 38 and find examples of so [Hugo: So, there's another work party on Friday.; So, parties aren't your thing, huh?; Greg: I'd rather talk one on one, so . . . ; Hugo: So you're not going to go? Greg: So, yeah. I'll just say I have other plans.].
- Read aloud the information and the examples in Strategy Plus. (For more information see Language Notes at the beginning of this unit.)
- Present In Conversation Books closed. Say, "So is used a lot. Do you think it's in the top 10, 20, or 30 words? Write your guess." Books open. Have a S read the information.

A

- Preview the task Say, "Find three places where you can use so in each conversation. Change the capital letters and add commas where necessary." Point out the first example answer. Ask, "Which use of so is this?" [to start a topic]
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class: Have pairs each read a conversation.

Answers

1. A So, what do you think of surprise parties?
B I don't know. I've never had one or been to one, so . . .
A So no one has ever given you one? Do you think your friends would ever do that?
B No. My friends don't do that kind of thing.
2. A So, have you thrown any parties in the past year?
B Actually, yes. I had one last month. A lot of people came.
A So all your friends came?
B Yeah, they did. So it was great.

- Practice Tell Ss to practice the conversations in pairs, taking turns playing each role.

About you

B

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Remind Ss to use so and statement questions with huh, right, or then in their conversations. Have Ss complete the task.
- Follow-up Ask several Ss to report something interesting they learned from their partner.

3 Speaking naturally

A

- Preview the task Say, "Look at the sentences in the If You Are Sure section. What kind of sentences are they?" [statements] Say, "Look at the sentences in the If You Are Checking section. What kind of sentences are they?" [statement questions] Read the instructions aloud. Add, "Notice that the intonation changes on the stressed syllables. The stressed syllables are in bright red." Ask Ss to read out the words with the stressed syllables. [Friday, came]
- Play the recording Ss listen and repeat.

B

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Tell Ss to write S if the speaker is sure and C if the speaker is checking.
- Play the recording Audio script p. T-169 Ss listen, punctuate the sentence, and write S or C. Check answers with the class: Have individual Ss each read an answer, using the correct intonation.

Answers

1. So you go out a lot. (S)
2. So you're a real people person. (S)
3. So you don't like parties very much? (C)
4. So you never celebrate your birthday? (C)

- Follow-up Say, "Read the sentences aloud to a partner, first saying them as if you are sure and then using them to check information." As Ss complete the task, go around the class listening for falling and rising intonation. If necessary, replay Exercise 3A and have Ss repeat.

About you

C

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Model the task by asking a S, "How often do you go to parties?" Respond to the S's response using so (e.g., So, you really like parties, huh? / So, you don't really like parties, huh?). Have Ss complete the task.
- Follow-up Have several Ss share information about their partner with the class.

Extra activity INDIVIDUALS / PAIRS / GROUPS

Ss write five questions on the topic of birthdays or parties to ask a partner or to ask their classmates (in groups) (e.g., So, do you always do something special for your birthday?). Ss use so in the ways they studied in the lesson as they discuss the questions.

Workbook

- Assign Workbook pp. 30 and 31. (The answer key begins on p. T-182.)

1 Reading

- Set the scene Read the lesson title aloud. Say, "Social style refers to how people behave in social situations, such as parties. Some people enjoy parties, and some people don't." Write these category heads on the board: I Like Parties and I Don't Like Parties. Add two examples of actions for each, such as try to meet new people and sit by myself. Say, "For example, if I like parties, I probably try to meet new people. If I don't like parties, I may sit by myself."
- Ask, "Why do you think people react differently to the same situation?" Get ideas from Ss (e.g., Their personalities are different. They've had different positive or negative experiences in the same situations.). Say, "A person who enjoys meeting new people and socializing is an extrovert. A person who prefers to spend time alone is an introvert."

A

Prereading

- Preview and do the task Write on the board as column headings: Introvert, Extrovert. Ask, "What kinds of behaviors are typical of introverts and extroverts?" Get ideas from the class (e.g., Introverts: are quiet, shy, avoid large, noisy groups; Extroverts: like to go to parties, tell jokes, give opinions freely). Have Ss work in pairs to list the behaviors.
- Call on Ss to report their ideas to the class. Write them on the board under the appropriate heading.
- Say, "Scan the article for more ideas. Add them to your list." Check answers with the class and add them to the board.

Possible answers

Introverts: sensitive to overstimulation, tend to enjoy quiet contemplative environments, think before they speak, are usually good listeners

Extroverts: socially confident, quick on their feet, are chatty, confident, charismatic

B

During reading

- Present Reading Tip Read the information aloud. Check that Ss understand the meaning of each word or expression. Ask, "In what kind of essay or article would these be useful?" [opinion, argument] Tell Ss to underline these words as they read because this may be useful vocabulary for their own academic writing.
- Preview the reading Read the instructions aloud.
- Do the reading Have Ss read the article and write answers to the questions. Have a few Ss read their answers. [There is a strong link between solitude and creativity. Being able to be quiet and collect your thoughts is a powerful thing.]
- Follow-up Point out the title of the article, and read it aloud. Ask, "What does the 'Extrovert Ideal' in the title of the article refer to?" Ss work in pairs to decide on an answer. Elicit ideas from the class [the idea that extroverts have better ideas and leadership skills].

C

Postreading

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Say, "The meanings are listed in the same order as the words and expressions appear in the article. Read through the article again slowly. When you come to an expression that you think has the meaning, check to see if it seems right by replacing the expression with the meaning."
- Do the first item with the class. Have Ss scan the article and find the word that means "too much activity," and underline it. Call on Ss to give the answer [overstimulation].
- Do the task Have Ss find the other words and expressions for the meanings and underline them. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. overstimulation (Paragraph 2)
 2. contemplative (Paragraph 2)
 3. in contrast (Paragraph 2)
 4. charismatic (Paragraph 3)
 5. discrimination (Paragraph 3)
 6. stand out (Paragraph 4)
 7. dominant (Paragraph 4)
 8. contends (Paragraph 5)
 9. retain (Paragraph 5)
- Follow-up Ss read the article again and circle any new words. As Ss call out the words, write them on the board. Ss explain the meanings of the words they know and look the remaining ones up in dictionaries.

Extra activity GROUPS / CLASS

Write on the board:

1. How would you organize an office workplace to accommodate both introverts and extroverts?
2. How would you organize meetings and brainstorming sessions?

Ss work in groups and discuss how they would organize their workplace. Groups present their ideas to the class. The class chooses the best ideas to create a "perfect" workplace.

D

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss complete the task. Then have them compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class.

Answers

- | | |
|------|------|
| 1. b | 4. b |
| 2. b | 5. a |
| 3. b | 6. b |

Extra activity GROUPS

Write on the board:

Do you think the article would be useful to employers?

Do you think either type of person can actually change or adapt their behavior in the workplace?

Groups discuss the questions and give reasons (e.g., I think it's useful. It helps people understand that being introverted isn't bad.). When groups finish, they share their opinions with the class.

2 Listening and writing

About you

A

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Ask two Ss to each read a column of questions. Have Ss read the quiz and circle their answers.
- Have pairs take turns asking and answering the questions. Have Ss take notes of the answers. To model the task, ask and answer a few of the questions with a S (e.g., T: Do you prefer to go out and socialize or to see friends at home? S: I prefer to go out with friends. I go out a few times a week.).
- Have partners review their answers to see how they are the same and how they are different. Pairs report some of the more interesting results.

B 2.10

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud.
- Play the recording Audio script p. T-169 Ss listen only.
- Play the recording again Ss listen and circle their answers. Check answers with the class.

Answers

- | | | | |
|------|------|------|------|
| 1. b | 3. b | 5. b | 7. a |
| 2. b | 4. b | 6. a | 8. b |

- Follow-up Ss work in pairs to compare their answers to Jessica's. They note which answers are the same and which are different, and see who is most similar to Jessica.

C

- Preview the task Ask a S to read the extract aloud.
- Present Help Note Read the information aloud. Tell Ss that as, with the meaning of because, is a formal use of the word. (For more information, see Language Notes at the beginning of this unit.)
- Say, "Find and circle examples of as in the extract. Decide what each one means." Have Ss complete the task. Check answers with the class.

Answers

As (being) an extrovert, I love to socialize. I can't even imagine myself as (being) an introvert. My friends say I am a real party person, and I think parties are a great way to make new friends.

I enjoy going out to new places as (because) I love to meet new people. I hardly ever invite my friends to my home as (because) I share an apartment with someone who is an introvert.

I get excited as (while) the weekend gets closer. I enjoy . . .

- Write sentences such as the following on the board:
 - Extroverts seem to feel entirely at ease as they chat with people they don't know well.*
 - Introverted people don't like to be interrupted, as it can make them feel disrespected.*
 - As an introvert, my colleague is sometimes not able to share his ideas in meetings.*
- Have Ss rewrite the sentences using being, because, or while. [Extroverts seem to feel entirely at ease while they chat with people they don't know well.; Introverted people don't like to be interrupted because it can make them feel disrespected.; Being an introvert, my colleague is sometimes not able to share his ideas in meetings.]

About you

D

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Say, "Use your answers from Exercise 2A. Choose the information that you think best supports what you think your social style is. Give examples for each of the points you choose." Have Ss write their articles.

E

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Say, "Keep count of how many classmates consider themselves introverts and how many consider themselves extroverts." Ss read the articles and compare their results with a partner. Ss share their results with the class.
- Follow-up Ask, "Do you think most of your classmates were correct about themselves?" Have a short class discussion. Tell Ss not to use names.

Free talk

Tell Ss to turn to Free Talk 4 at the back of their Student's Books. Have Ss do the task. (See the teaching notes on p. T-131.)

Workbook

 Assign Workbook pp. 32 and 33. (The answer key begins on p. T-182.)

Vocabulary Notebook

If done for homework

Briefly present the Learning Tip and the task directions. Make sure Ss understand what they need to do.

If done in class

- Present Learning Tip Read the information aloud. Say, "The context means 'the specific situation in which you use the expression.' Remember that when you give an expression some kind of context, it will become more meaningful for you. It's easier to remember things that you can relate to your own life or experience."

- Present In Conversation Have a S read aloud the information in the box. Have Ss work in groups to write context sentences for each example of get + particle and preposition (e.g., I've spent a lot of time studying at home lately. I need to get out more.). Tell Ss to look back through the unit and use a dictionary to check possible meanings if necessary. Have groups share their sentences for each example with the class.

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class: Have individual Ss each read an item.

Answers

- | | |
|---------------------|------------------|
| 1. get going | 5. get used to |
| 2. get to know | 6. get it |
| 3. get off | 7. get out of it |
| 4. get away with it | 8. get over it |

- Preview the Word Builder task Read the instructions aloud. Tell Ss to use dictionaries if necessary.
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task. Check answers with the class: For each get expression, have several Ss read their sentences to the class.

Possible answers

1. One of my girlfriends is so annoying. She's always gossiping about our other friends.
2. I've been so busy and stressed at work recently.
3. I want to study medicine, but I haven't taken the right classes. I should talk to my teachers.
4. I've borrowed some money to buy a car, but I'm worried I'm going to lose my job.

On your own

- Present On Your Own Read the instructions aloud.
- Follow-up At the start of the next class, Ss report the expressions they wrote for each verb. Write them on the board. Ss add new expressions to their lists.

Now I can . . .

- Go over the Now I Can items. Put Ss in pairs to give one example each for the first five items. Call on Ss and ask for examples or explanations.
- Have Ss look over the four lessons and identify any areas they want to review.
- Tell Ss to complete the Now I Can items. Ss check (✓) the items they know and put a question mark (?) by items that they are not confident about. Check with individual Ss which areas need review to see if there are general problems to review in class. Help individual Ss as required. Have Ss hand in a piece of paper with their name and a schedule showing what they plan to review and when. Review or reteach these language items in a future class.

Lesson A Rules and regulations

Grammar The passive of modal verbs

(See Student's Book p. 45.)

Ss have learned how to use modal verbs in active sentences. They have also learned how to use the passive of the simple past and simple present. The lesson teaches Ss how to use the passive of modal verbs, mainly for obligation and necessity. The forms taught are for the present. The grammar chart also presents a new use of must — to talk about obligation.

Form

- Passive of modal verbs
subject + modal verb + be + past participle
R-rated movies should be banned.
The law ought to be changed.
You shouldn't be allowed to marry at 18.

Use

- Detailed information about the use of active versus passive verbs can be found in the following units: simple past passive: Touchstone Student's Book 3, Unit 12, Lesson A; simple present passive: Touchstone Student's Book 4, Unit 3, Lesson A.

- The principle for using the passive of modal verbs is the same as for other verbs. Compare the active and passive sentences below:

Active: They should ban R-rated movies.

They ought to change the law.

Passive: R-rated movies should be banned.

The law ought to be changed.

Corpus information Must

The modal verb must can be used for speculating (see Touchstone Student's Book 3, Unit 11, Lesson A). Most uses of must are for speculation. It can also mean "have to." Only about 10 percent of its uses have the meaning of "have to"; with this meaning, it is often used in expressions such as I must admit and I must say.

Speaking naturally Saying conversational expressions

(See Student's Book p. 45.)

The section recycles some common conversational expressions that Ss have already learned in previous levels. Discourse markers such as I mean and You know, and vague expressions such as or something are usually reduced and said quickly, even when the speaker is speaking relatively slowly.

Lesson B Crime and punishment

Vocabulary Crime and punishment

The vocabulary of the lesson includes the names of common crimes, the names for the criminals who commit them, and types of penalties.

Grammar get passive vs. be passive

(See Student's Book p. 47.)

The lesson introduces the passive form with the verb get and contrasts this with the be passive. The grammar chart also includes an active and a passive sentence with the verb catch, which is followed by a gerund (verb + -ing).

Form

- get* passive in simple present statements subject + get + past participle
Some murderers get sentenced to only ten years.
People who speed don't usually get arrested.
- catch* + verb + -ing
Active: What happens if they catch you shoplifting?
Passive: What happens if you get caught shoplifting?

Use

The get passive is generally used in spoken, informal contexts rather than in newspaper reports or other written texts. It is often used to report newsworthy events, and those events are often — but not always — negative or problematic in some way; for example, get hurt / caught / killed / fired / shot. However, the form can also be used for more positive events (e.g., get promoted / elected). After modal verbs such as should, the be passive is more common than the get passive.

Corpus information The get passive

People use the get passive much more frequently in speaking than in writing. The top six get passive verbs are get paid, get caught, get hurt, get killed, get elected, and get fired.

Common errors with get passives

Ss may forget to include get in get passives. (Shoplifters often get fined. NOT Shoplifters often fined.)

Lesson C First of all, . . .

Conversation strategy Organizing your views

(See Student's Book p. 48.)

In friendly discussions when speakers have a number of things to say, they often use expressions to organize their ideas. This helps both the speaker and the listener keep track of what is being said. In the lesson, Ss learn some expressions for stating main ideas and introducing and listing opinions.

Note: A benefit of using an expression such as There are two problems . . . is that it can help avoid interruptions. A listener will generally wait for a speaker to give two items before speaking.

- Giving main ideas
(Well) basically . . .
The point / thing is . . .
- Adding ideas
Another thing is . . .
- Introducing a list
There are two problems . . .
. . . for a couple of reasons.

- Ordinal numbers
First (of all), . . .
Second (of all), . . . / Secondly, . . .
- Numbers or letters
(Number) One, . . . Two, . . .
A, . . . B, . . .

Note: In most conversations, it is not usual to go beyond third, three, or c.

Strategy plus That's a good point.

(See Student's Book p. 49.)

The section teaches useful expressions for responding to other people's opinions to show that someone has a valid argument: That's true; You've got a point (there.); I never (really) thought of it that way. People can use these expressions even if they do not completely agree with the other speaker.

Corpus information That's true.

In conversation, That's true is the second most common expression with That's, after That's right.

Lesson D Your right to privacy

Reading tip

(See Student's Book p. 50.)

The Reading Tip tells Ss that articles sometimes describe the background to a problem and then list a set of problems and possible solutions. This is a common structure in many kinds of texts, including journalism and academic writing. Understanding how a text is structured can help readers anticipate and follow the content, and thus read more efficiently.

Help note Giving reasons

(See Student's Book p. 51.)

The Help Note shows three conjunctions that can be used to give reasons: because, since, and as. These have similar meanings, but cannot all be used in exactly the same contexts. Because can be used in all contexts. Since is used to give reasons you think the reader already knows or can logically guess. As is more formal. The conjunctions introduce clauses, which can be at the end or at the start of a sentence.

I found this article very relevant because it gives . . .

We need more laws to protect our privacy since everyone now has a smartphone.

I also found it worrisome as it seems there aren't enough laws . . .

When these clauses begin a sentence, they need a comma at the end. Since everyone now has a smartphone, we need new laws.

Law and order

Teach this unit opener page together with Lesson A in one class period.

Introduce the theme of the unit Say, “In this unit, we’ll talk about law and order. Laws tell us what we can and can’t do. For example, societies have laws about driving (you have to stop at a red traffic light). When people obey the laws, we can say that there is order in our society. People follow the rules and laws, and so they are safe, and society is organized.”

In this unit, you learn how to . . .

- Unit aims Read the lesson headings and key unit aims aloud. Tell Ss to listen and read along.

Extra activity INDIVIDUALS

Write on the board:

1. What’s the “age of majority” in many countries?
2. What’s the topic on the website on page 46?
3. What’s happening in the photograph on page 49?
4. Why do you think there’s an article about smartphones in a unit about the law?

Ss look through the unit and find the answers to the questions on the board. Check answers with the class [1. It’s 18. (p. 44); 2. the most appropriate punishments for different crimes; 3. A man is walking through a metal detector / going through security. 4. They can be used to steal private data.].

Before you begin . . .

- Introduce the laws and rules Have Ss cover Before You Begin and look at the pictures. Say, “These pictures show people doing things that help keep order in our society. What laws or rules do you think these people are obeying?” Get ideas from Ss [Picture 1: recycling; Picture 2: driving at the speed limit, wearing a helmet; Picture 3: driving carefully, wearing a seat belt, using a hands-free phone]. Have Ss uncover the text.

↻ Recycle grammar This task recycles be (not) supposed to and don’t have to. Have a S read the items in Before You Begin aloud. Ask, “What are the laws about these things in this country? What are you supposed to do? What are you not supposed to do? Are there any that you don’t have to do? Discuss with a partner.” Have Ss report to the class (e.g., We’re supposed to recycle all our trash. We’re not supposed to leave trashcans on the street. You’re not supposed to ride a motorcycle until you’re 16. You definitely have to wear a helmet when you ride a motorcycle. You definitely have to wear a seat belt in a car. You can’t use cell phones while you’re driving, but you can use hands-free sets. You’re supposed to have insurance for your car.).

Extra activity GROUPS

Write on the board:

- Eat or drink*
- Comb one’s hair*
- Put on makeup*
- Allow the family dog to sit on the driver’s lap*

Tell Ss that some people do these things while driving. Group members say if doing these things while driving is against the law. If not, groups decide if they should be. Groups report their ideas to the class.

1 Getting started

- Set the scene Read the title of the article aloud. Ask Ss if they know what the phrase “age of majority” means [The age at which it becomes legal for a person to do something; for example, vote, drive, get married.]. In classes with Ss from different countries, ask several Ss about the age of majority in their country. Elicit answers from the class.

A

- Preview and do the task Ask Ss to cover the interviews. Read the instructions aloud. Ask a S to read the six activities aloud. Check that Ss understand what each one means. For each activity, ask Ss to say the age in their country. The class finds out the youngest and oldest ages for each activity.

B 2.11

- Preview the task Say, “Listen to these interviews. What five things do the people talk about? Briefly write the topic. Do they think 18 is the right age to start doing these things? Write yes or no.”
- Note the pronunciation: Maya Diaz /máya díyaz/, Aiko /áykow/.
- Play the recording Ss listen and write. Replay the recording if necessary.
- Play the recording again Ss uncover the interviews, listen, read along, and review their answers. Check answers with the class [1. the age to see an “R-rated” movie, no; 2. the age to get married, no; 3. the age to vote, yes; 4. the age to get a credit card, yes; 5. the age to drive, yes].
- Ask, “What are the laws for these things in your country?” If Ss are from different countries, ask a S from each country represented in the class. If Ss are all from the same country, call on individual Ss to answer, and then ask Ss what they know about the laws of other countries.

Figure
It out

C

- Preview the task Say, “Look at the sentences below. How do the people above say these things? Find the sentences in the article, and underline them.”
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class: Have individual Ss each read an answer.

Answers

1. Actually, I think R-rated movies should be banned altogether.
2. In fact, you shouldn't be allowed to get married until you're at least 21 or even older.
3. I mean, young people have to be given their freedom at some point.
4. The legal age for driving could easily be changed to 18 or 21 or something like that.
5. You know, they [young people] ought to be encouraged to manage their own finances and things.

- Ask, “Do you agree with these views? Discuss them with a partner.” Have Ss do the task.
- Follow-up Ask Ss about their views: read the answer sentences aloud one at a time, and for each, have several Ss say what they think.
- Focus on the form and the use Say, “Look at the sentences in Exercise 1C. Are they active or passive?” [active] Say, “Look at the sentences that you underlined in the article. Are they active or passive?” [passive]
- Write on the board:
 1. They should ban R-rated movies.
 2. R-rated movies should be banned.
- Say, “What's the pattern for an active sentence in the present with a modal verb?” [subject + modal verb + base form of verb + object] Write it on the board. Ask, “What's the pattern for a passive sentence in the present with a modal verb?” [subject + modal verb + be + past participle] Write it on the board.
- Say, “People often use sentences with a passive modal verb to make statements about what they think needs to happen or change. When they talk about rules and regulations, it's usually without by + agent.” Ask Ss why [We know someone with authority makes rules, but we usually don't know exactly who.].
- Try it out Tell Ss to look through the article, find more sentences with a passive modal verb, and underline them. Call on individual Ss to each read a sentence aloud [Bill: Well, I think the law ought to be changed — 18 is too young.; Maya: Actually, I think a law should be passed that says if you want to get married, you have to take marriage classes first.; Jared: I mean, young people have to be given their freedom at some point.; Pat: Too many teenagers get involved in traffic accidents, and something really must be done about it.].

Extra activity GROUPS

Write on the board:

At the age of 16, you should / shouldn't be allowed to ____.

At the age of 18, you should be allowed to ____.

At the age of 21, you should be allowed to ____.

Groups brainstorm ideas to complete the sentences and then share their ideas with the class.

Extra activity PAIRS

Write on the board:

Getting a job

Quitting school

Doing military service

Retiring

Pairs discuss how old people should be to do these things. Ss report their opinions to the class.

2 Grammar

2.12

- Present the grammar chart Play the recording. Ss listen and repeat.
- Understand the grammar Ask a S to say the modal verbs in the chart [should, shouldn't, have to, could, must, ought to]. Ask, "When do you usually use should, ought to, and have to?" [to give advice; to say what's necessary or obligatory] Say, "Here, must also means something is necessary; it means 'have to.' You can use these modals in passive sentences to talk about things that, for example, are necessary in your opinion." Ask, "When is could used?" [to say something's possible] Say, "The speaker probably also thinks something should be changed." (For more information, see Language Notes at the beginning of this unit.)
- Present In Conversation Books closed. Write on the board: necessity, speculation. Say, "These are two uses for must."
- Write on the board: 1. Drivers who break the speed limit must be banned. 2. Drivers who break the speed limit must not know the law. 3. I must say that drivers who break the speed limit are inconsiderate. Ask, "In which sentence(s) is must used for speculating or guessing?" [2] Ask, "In which sentence(s) is must used to talk about necessity?" [1 and 3]
- Ask, "Which of the two uses of must do you think is more frequent — necessity or speculation? Write your guess." Books open. Read the information aloud.

A

- Preview the task Read the instructions and the example sentence aloud.
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class: Have individual Ss each read a sentence.

Answers

1. Plastic shopping bags should be banned.
2. Employers ought to be stopped from reading . . .
3. Something has to be done about all the litter . . .
4. People shouldn't be allowed to eat food on . . .
5. People ought to be fined for making noise . . .
6. Something must be done about speeding . . .
7. Movies with violent scenes shouldn't be made.
8. People could be encouraged to stop smoking if . . .
9. Something has to be done about people who . . .
10. Children shouldn't be allowed to quit school . . .

About you

B

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Have two Ss read the example conversation aloud.
- Recycle conversation strategies The task recycles conversation strategies for giving an opinion and agreeing. Review expressions for giving opinions (see Touchstone Student's Book 3, Unit 4, Lesson C). Review expressions for agreeing such as Absolutely and Definitely. Remind Ss to use such expressions as they do the task.
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task. Go around the class, and help as needed.
- Follow-up Ss take turns leading the class by reading a statement and asking classmates who agree to raise their hands. The leader asks a few Ss to give their reasons.

Extra practice

Tell Ss to turn to Extra Practice 5A on p. 144 of their Student's Books. Have Ss do the tasks in class, or assign them for homework. (See the teaching notes on p. T-144.)

3 Speaking naturally

A 2.13

- Preview the task Say, "You have learned expressions such as I mean and you know, and why and when to use them in conversation. The section practices how to say them. Listen and repeat the sentences. Notice how the expressions in maroon are said more quickly, even when the speaker is speaking slowly."
- Play the recording Ss listen and repeat.

About you

B

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Say, "Look at the example. What expressions should be said more quickly?" [You know; You know what I mean?] Ask a S to read the example aloud.
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task. As Ss do the task, monitor how Ss say conversational expressions. If necessary, replay Exercise 3A, and have Ss repeat. Have each group report one law that should be passed, one thing that people should be encouraged to do, and one thing that people ought to be allowed to do.

Extra activity PAIRS / CLASS

مرجع زبان ایرانیان

Pairs think of two real laws from their country that should be changed. Partners prepare a presentation explaining what the law is now and how and why it should be changed (e.g., In my country, you don't have to wear a seat belt if you don't want to. I think people should be fined if they don't wear one. Lives can be saved in car accidents . . .). Pairs give their presentations to the class. The class decides if they agree or not.

Workbook

Assign Workbook pp. 34 and 35. (The answer key begins on p. T-182.)

Lesson B Crime and punishment

1 Building vocabulary and grammar

- Set the scene Read the lesson title aloud. Say, "When people break the law by committing a crime, they are usually punished. What punishments do you know?" Write Ss' answers on the board (e.g., pay a fine, go to jail).

A 2.14

- Preview the task Say, "Read the questions and answers on the website below. What questions are the people answering? Number the questions 1 to 8."
- Do the task Have Ss read the questions and opinions and number the questions. Point out the first answer.
- Play the recording Ss listen, read along, and review their answers. Check answers with the class.

Answers

- 8 What's the right penalty for jaywalking?
- 3 How should vandals be punished?
- 6 What kind of sentence should you get for kidnapping?
- 4 Should they arrest drivers who get caught speeding?
- 2 What punishment should you get for robbing someone?
- 1 What should happen if you get caught shoplifting from a store?
- 7 What should happen to someone who is convicted of burglary?
- 5 Should all murderers be sentenced to life in prison?

Extra activity GROUPS

Say, "It's expensive to keep someone in jail, so community service and house arrest are becoming more common punishments for nonviolent crimes." Groups discuss which crimes or offenses could be punished with these. Groups report their ideas to the class, giving reasons.

B

- Preview the task Say, "Make word webs like these." Point out the example answers with Crimes. Say, "Murder and having a gun without a license are crimes." Point out the next example. Say, "What do you call a person who commits the crime of shoplifting?" [a shoplifter] Say, "A shoplifter is a criminal." Say, "Use 'other' for expressions related to crime and punishment that don't fit into crimes, criminals, or punishments. Complete the word webs. Use your own ideas and look at the article for help."
- Do the task Have Ss complete the word webs. Check answers with the class: Draw each word web on the board. Have Ss call out the words they used. Add them to the appropriate word web on the board.

Possible answers

Crimes: murder, having a gun without a license, shoplifting, armed robbery, vandalism, speeding, kidnapping, burglary, jaywalking

Criminals: shoplifter, robber, vandal, murderer, burglar, jaywalker

Punishments: get fined, get sentenced to jail / prison, pay a fine, lose your license, get put on probation, do community service

Other: enforce a law, gun, knife, against the law, offense, take someone captive, break into, get arrested, graffiti

- Say, "Discuss each crime with a partner. Decide what punishment is appropriate." Ask a pair of Ss to read the example answer aloud. Have pairs complete the task. When Ss finish, call on pairs to talk about a crime and its punishment. Find out if the class agrees. If not, find out which punishment they chose.

Vocabulary notebook

Tell Ss to turn to Vocabulary Notebook on p. 52 of their Student's Books. Have Ss do the task in class, or assign it for homework. (See the teaching notes on p. T-52.)

C

- Preview the task Say, "Look at answer number 1 in Exercise 1A. What does the reader think should happen to shoplifters at first?" [They should be fined.] Say, "Look at answer number 4. What happens to some people who cause an accident by speeding?" [They get arrested.] Write on the board, underlined as shown:
 1. They are fined. They should be fined.
 2. They get arrested.
- Ask, "Are the sentences active or passive?" [passive] Ask, "What's different about the verbs?" [Sentence 1 uses be + past participle.] Say, "You can use get to make a passive, just like you use be."
- Say, "Look at answer number 1 again. When does the reader say shoplifters should go to jail?" [if they get caught stealing] Ask, "What's the verb form after caught?" [verb + -ing]
- Do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. sentenced 2. caught 3. shoplifting; arrested
- Ask, "Are the sentences true in your country?" Have a short class discussion.
 - Focus on the form and the use Say, "You know how to make passive sentences with be + past participle. You can also make passive sentences with get + past participle. Get passives are often used to talk about events that are negative in some way, such as get arrested." Ask, "What form of the verb is used after get caught?" [verb + -ing]

2.15

- Present the grammar chart Play the recording. Ss listen and repeat.
- Understand the grammar Have Ss look at the examples of get passives. Ask, "Where is the frequency adverb usually?" [before get] Ask, "How would you rewrite this sentence using the passive with the verb be?" [People who speed aren't usually arrested.] Write it on the board. Ask, "Where is the frequency adverb with the be passive?" [between aren't and arrested]
- Have Ss look at the examples of the be passive with should. Say, "You can use the get passive after should, but the be passive is more common."
- Have Ss look at the section on catch + verb + -ing. Say, "When you say you caught someone doing an action, it suggests that the action was something illegal, such as shoplifting. It can also suggest that the action is something that you think is wrong or dangerous; for example, I caught my little brother playing with matches."
- Say, "When you use catch in an active sentence, you need an object between catch and verb + -ing. In a passive sentence, verb + -ing follows catch."
- Present In Conversation Read the information aloud.

A

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Tell Ss that either the get or the be passive is correct but it is best to use be with should. Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. People who hack into computers should be / get punished more severely. . . .
2. Careless drivers hardly ever get stopped by the police. The laws . . . should be / get enforced more strictly.
3. Lots of executives are / get caught stealing . . . , and they often get sent to prison for a long time. . . .
4. When vandals are / get arrested, they shouldn't be / get punished so severely. I mean, they should just be / get sentenced to a month of community service.
5. More people are / get caught shoplifting these days . . . But most shoppers are honest, and they really shouldn't be / get recorded.
6. . . . most criminals never get caught, and the ones that are / get arrested often aren't / don't get convicted.

About you

B

- Present Common Errors Books closed. Write Shoplifters often fined. Ask a S to come to the board and correct the sentence. Books open. The class checks the correction on the board [Shoplifters often get fined.]
- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss complete the task.
- Follow-up Several pairs of Ss tell the class about a statement they could not agree on. Both partners give their reasons.

Extra practice

Tell Ss to turn to Extra Practice 5B on p. 144 of their Student's Books. Have Ss do the tasks in class, or assign them for homework. (See the teaching notes on p. T-144.)

3 Listening

A 2.16

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Ask a S to read the four questions aloud. Say, "Just listen for the answers the first time you listen."
- Play the recording Audio script p. T-170 Ss listen only. Replay the recording. Ss listen and write their answers. Have Ss compare their answers in pairs.
- Play the recording again Ss listen again and review their answers. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. The burglary was a couple of years ago (when they were away on a business trip).
2. A neighbor who was sleeping in the house came in and saw some things on the floor and a broken window.
3. They took two computers.
4. Yes, they did.

B 2.16

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud.
- Play the recording Audio script p. T-170 Ss listen and check (✓) the answers. Check answers with the class.

Answers

- ✓ She never expected it to happen.
- ✓ She thinks it was inconvenient.

Extra activity GROUPS

Ss think of someone they know who was a victim of a crime. Ss prepare a short speech to tell their group.

C

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have a S read the example aloud. Have Ss complete the task. Remind Ss to use both get and be passives.
- Follow-up Ss share their decisions with the class.

Workbook

Assign Workbook pp. 36 and 37. (The answer key begins on p. T-182.)

Lesson C First of all, . . .

↻ Lesson C recycles strategies used in opinion discussions.

1 Conversation strategy

- Set the scene Write security camera on the board. Ask, “Do you know if there are a lot of security cameras around the places you go every day?” Elicit answers.

A

- Preview the task Ask, “Where do you often see security cameras? Make a list.” Have Ss complete their list. Elicit ideas from the class. Write the places on the board. Ask, “Do you think they’re a deterrent? If so, what against? Or are they intrusive and an invasion of privacy?” Check that Ss understand the words deterrent, intrusive, and invasion of privacy. Tell Ss to use the context of the question to guess. Have Ss call out their ideas [deterrent: action that makes something less likely to happen; intrusive: involved in things which should be private; invasion of privacy: entering a part of someone’s life without permission].
- Say, “Raise your hand if you think security cameras are a deterrent.” Count hands. Say, “Raise your hand if you think they’re an invasion of privacy.” Count hands, and write both totals on the board. Do not erase. Have a short class discussion of both opinions.

B 2.17

- Preview the task Books closed. Say, “Now listen to Adam and Selina’s conversation. What do they think about security cameras on buses? First, just listen.”
- Play the recording Ss listen. Replay the recording. Ss listen and write the answers. Have Ss compare their answers in pairs.
- Play the recording again Books open. Ss listen, read along, and review their answers. Check answers with the class [Selina is in favor of security cameras on buses because they’re a deterrent and because they make people pay their fares. Adam thinks security cameras on buses are intrusive.]. Help with new vocabulary as needed.

C

- Present Notice Read the information and the examples aloud. Tell Ss the expressions are useful because they help both the speaker and listener keep track of what is said. (For more information, see Language Notes at the beginning of this unit.) Say, “Read the conversation and find the expressions that Adam and Selina use.” [Selina: for a couple of reasons, first of all, And second, another thing is, basically; Adam: The thing is]
- Practice Tell Ss to practice the conversation in pairs, taking turns playing each role.

D

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Have two Ss read aloud the arguments for and against security cameras. Have a different pair of Ss read the example conversation aloud.
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task. Go around the class, and help as needed.
- Follow-up Say, “At the start of the lesson, you voted on whether you think security cameras are a deterrent or an invasion of privacy.” Point out the totals on the board. Say, “Now that you’ve heard some arguments on both sides, what do you think? Raise your hand if you think they’re a deterrent.” Count hands. Say, “Raise your hand if you think they’re an invasion of privacy.” Count hands, and write the totals on the board. The class finds out how many Ss have changed their opinion. Class members say which arguments helped change their mind or helped reinforce their original opinion.

Extra activity PAIRS

Pairs write a conversation similar to Adam and Selina’s on the topic of security cameras, using ideas from Exercise 1D and its follow-up. Pairs present their conversation to another pair. A few pairs present their conversations to the class.

2 Strategy plus

- Present Strategy Plus Say, "In a discussion with 'for' and 'against' opinions, speakers want their ideas to be listened to." (For more information, see Language Notes at the beginning of this unit.) Say, "Look back at the conversation on p. 48 and find examples of expressions that Adam and Selina use to show they have considered each other's ideas." [Adam: That's true; you've got a point there; Selina: I never thought of it that way.]
- Read the information and the example in Strategy Plus aloud.
- Present In Conversation Read the information aloud.

A

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud.

 The task recycles conversation strategies for introducing a different opinion (see Touchstone Student's Book 3, Unit 9, Lesson C). Review expressions such as on the other hand; I know what you mean, but . . .; I'm not so sure. Remind Ss to use such expressions as they do the task.

- Have two Ss read aloud the first item and the example answer. Have Ss complete the task.

Possible answers

1. You've got a point, but we shouldn't be made to go through one in every building.
2. I never really thought of it that way. But really, I think kids should take responsibility for their own school attendance.
3. That's true. But it would also be expensive.
4. You've got a point there. But on the other hand, don't you think that's an invasion of privacy?
5. Well, you've got a point, but isn't that a little young to be sent to prison?

B

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss complete the task. For each item, tell Ss to take turns reading the opinion in the book and presenting a view opposing the one read. Tell them to continue each argument.

3 Listening and strategies

A 2.18

- Preview the task Say, "Listen to the class debate. Answer the questions." Read aloud question 1 and the four topics.
- Play the recording Audio script p. T-170 Ss listen and check (✓) the one topic that the class is discussing. Read question 2 aloud. Say, "Listen again for the answers to the questions. Write short notes to help you remember what the people say."
- Play the recording again Ss listen again and write.
- Play the recording again Ss listen again and review their notes. Give Ss time to write complete sentences to answer the questions. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. Raising the legal age for driving
2. In favor: Most young people are not responsible enough, and they cause most accidents. / All those accidents mean increased insurance premiums for young people.
Against: Young people who live far from town where public transportation isn't very regular wouldn't be able to get to school. / It's not fair to those young people who are responsible.

About you

B 2.19

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Have a S read the Useful Expressions aloud.
- Play the recording Audio script p. T-171 Ss listen and write. Pause after the first extract to give Ss time to write. Ask a few Ss to read their response aloud (e.g., That's a good point, but there's always carpooling. Parents could take turns driving students from the area to school.). Play the rest of the recording, pausing after each extract to give Ss time to write.

- Play the recording again Ss listen again and review their answers. Check answers with the class: For each extract, ask a few Ss to read their response.

Answers

Answers will vary.

About you

C

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Remind Ss to use expressions to organize their views and to respond. Have Ss complete the task.
- Follow-up A S from each group tells the class the main points of their discussion.

Extra activity PAIRS

Write on the board:

High school students have to do 50 hours of community service before they graduate, or they won't get a diploma.

Pairs decide on arguments for and against this idea and write a conversation. Several pairs present their conversation to the class. The class votes on whether they think it is a good idea or not.

Sounds right

Tell Ss to turn to Sounds Right on p. 138 of their Student's Books. Have Ss do the task for Unit 5 in class, or assign it for homework. (See the teaching notes on p. T-138.)

Workbook

 Assign Workbook pp. 38 and 39. (The answer key begins on p. T-182.)

1 Reading

- Set the scene Read the lesson title aloud. Say, “A right is a power or freedom that everyone has and that must not be taken away. Things such as privacy and free speech are usually considered rights.” Ask Ss to give other examples of rights (e.g., voting, going to school).

A

Prereading

- Preview and do the task Ask, “What kind of privacy issues do people worry about?” Get a few ideas from the class (e.g., identity theft, credit card fraud). Say, “Make a list.” Have Ss work in pairs, and give them one minute to brainstorm and write down their ideas. Ask, “Which other ideas did you think of?” Have Ss call out their answers and write them on the board (e.g., other people posting information or photos to social networking sites, computer spyware). (Note: Do not erase if you are using the Extra activity following Exercise 1C.)

B

During reading

- Preview and do the reading Read the instructions aloud. Say, “Before you read carefully, skim the article and underline any of the ideas on the board. When you finish, compare your underlined answers with a partner.”
- Do the reading again Have Ss carefully read the article. Ask Ss to make a note of the types of information it mentions. Have Ss complete the task. Check the answer with the class. [The article mentions information about who you call, what messages you send, where you are, your friends and personal tastes, private data such as bank account details, and passwords.] Ask Ss to call out the underlined ideas.
- Present Reading Tip Read the tip aloud. Ask, “What is the background of the problem?” [We’re all using smartphones, and they are too smart as they can lead to invasion of privacy] Ask, “Why is reading about the background first useful?” Elicit ideas (e.g., It gives you an introduction to the topic. It helps you think about what other topics the article will cover.) Ask, “Where does the article give solutions to the problems: at the end of the article or after each problem?” [after each problem]

C

Postreading

- Preview the task Read the instructions and the example aloud. Tell Ss to scan the article and find the word access. Call on a S to say where the expression is and read the sentence it is in [First paragraph: We use our smartphones to text, . . . access email and social networks, . . .].
- Say, “The expressions appear in the article in the same order as they are needed to complete the sentences. Read through the article again slowly. When you come to an expression that you think fits, check to see if it is right by using it in the sentence in the exercise. You may have to change the form of the word or expression.”
- Do the task Have Ss find the words and expressions to complete the sentences. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. access (Paragraph 1)
 2. underestimated (Paragraph 1)
 3. concerned (Paragraph 1)
 4. service provider (Paragraph 2)
 5. opt out (Paragraph 2)
 6. keep track (Paragraph 2)
 7. malware (Paragraph 4)
 8. hacked (Paragraph 4)
 9. outsmart (Paragraph 6)
- Follow-up Ss work in pairs and use the context of the article to guess the meanings of the expressions in the exercise. Ss check a dictionary to confirm their guesses.

Extra activity GROUPS

Write on the board:

Which of the issues on the board were you already concerned with?

How seriously do you take these issues?

Which of the smartphone precautions listed in the article have you already been using?

Groups discuss the questions and share their answers with the class. Which issues were the majority of Ss aware of?

D

- Preview the task Read aloud the instructions. Ask a S to read aloud the questions.
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task and compare their answers with a partner. Say, "If you and your partner have different answers, check the article again." When Ss finish, check answers with the class.

2 Speaking and writing

About you

A

- Preview the task Say, "Answer the questions about the article on page 50. Take notes on your answers." Ask individual Ss to each read a question aloud.
- Do the task Have Ss review the article and write their answers.
- Say, "Now discuss the questions in pairs. Take notes of your partner's answer. They will be helpful for your writing assignment." When Ss finish, have some pairs report their opinions and reasons.

B

- Preview and do the task Have Ss read the comment from Olivia95. Say, "Underline the clauses that give reasons." Ask individual Ss to read aloud a clause they underlined. [(Paragraph 1): because it gives helpful information . . . ; as it seems there aren't enough laws . . . ; (Paragraph 2): because I am very careful about . . . ; because she downloaded an app . . . ; (Paragraph 3): since everybody now has a smartphone, as it's difficult to know how to do this)]
- Ask, "What words begin these clauses?" [because, since, as]
- Present Help Note Read the information aloud. Say, "Because, since, and as introduce clauses to give reasons. The clauses can come before or after the main clause. When they are before the main clause, they are followed by commas." Write on the board: Because / Since / As it gives helpful suggestions I found this article very relevant. Have a S come to the board and put a comma in the correct place. [after suggestions]
- Have Ss share some of their opinions and reasons from Exercise 2A using because, since, or as. Write their ideas on the board. Have Ss change the order of some of the clauses.

C

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss write their comments.

Possible answers

1. There are few laws against smartphone invasion of privacy because lawmakers haven't kept up with changes in technology.
2. In order to keep your location private, turn off the tracking feature.
3. Third parties want to know your location and personal tastes so they can try to sell you things.
4. Before you download a new app, you should read the privacy statement.
5. You should choose a password that isn't easily guessed and you shouldn't let your smartphone remember your passwords.
6. I know that there are settings on a lot of electronic devices that let you disable the device remotely if it's stolen.

D

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss put their comments on their desks or chairs. Tell Ss to go around the class and read at least five other Ss' comments. Have Ss note the ideas that they agree or don't agree with. When Ss finish, have them report to the class about those ideas. Have a class discussion.

Extra activity GROUPS

Write on the board:

It will never be possible for lawmakers to keep up with the changes in technology.

Have groups discuss the question and report their ideas to the class.

Write on the board:

*location tracking
using public Wi-Fi
remembering passwords*

Ask, "What are some reasons people use these?" Elicit responses (e.g., Location tracking means you can get directions on your phone.; Public Wi-Fi makes it easy to go online.; It's hard to remember lots of different passwords.). Have groups discuss the pros and cons of using these options. Encourage Ss to use because, since, and as in their reasons. Remind them to use expressions to organize their views and to respond. Have a few groups share their ideas with the class.

Free talk

Tell Ss to turn to Free Talk 5 at the back of their Student's Books. Have Ss do the task. (See the teaching notes on p. T-130.)

Workbook

Assign Workbook pp. 40 and 41. (The answer key begins on p. T-182.)

Vocabulary Notebook

If done for homework

Briefly present the Learning Tip and the task directions. Make sure Ss understand what they need to do.

If done in class

- Present Learning Tip Read the information aloud. Say, "Writing vocabulary in word charts is useful because seeing related words with a brief definition helps you learn and remember them."

- Present In Conversation Books closed. Write on the board: caught, elected, fired, hurt, killed, paid. Say, "People use the get passive much more frequently in speaking than in writing. These are the top six verbs in speaking that follow get. Can you put them in order, starting with the most common? Write your guesses." Ss complete the task. Books open. Ss check their guesses. Have Ss who guessed paid as the top item raise their hands.

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class.

Answers

Crime	Criminal	Activity
burglary	burglar	breaks into a building to steal
vandalism	vandal	paints on public buildings
murder	murderer	kills or murders people shoplifting	shoplifter	steals from stores

- Preview the Word Builder task Say, "This Word Builder task will help you learn more vocabulary for talking about crime." Read the instructions aloud.
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class.

Answers

Crime	Criminal	Activity
arson	arsonist	sets buildings on fire
blackmail	blackmailer	demands money in exchange for keeping a secret hijacking	hijacker	takes control of a plane, train, or boat
joyriding	joyrider	drives recklessly, often in a stolen car
mugging	mugger	robs someone in a public place

On your own

- Present On Your Own Read the instructions aloud. Ask, "What crime-related words do you see in the newspaper?" [Prisoner escapes]
- Follow-up At the start of the next class, Ss form small groups and tell one another the words they found.

Now I can . . .

- Go over the Now I Can items. Put Ss in pairs to give one example each for the first five items. Call on Ss and ask for examples or explanations.
- Have Ss look over the four lessons and identify any areas they want to review.
- Tell Ss to complete the Now I Can items. Ss check (✓) the items they know and put a question mark (?) by items that they are not confident about. Check with individual Ss which areas need review to see if there are general problems to review in class. Help individual Ss as required. Have Ss hand in a piece of paper with their name and a schedule showing what they plan to review and when. Review or reteach these language items in a future class.

Lesson A Coincidences

Grammar The past perfect

(See Student's Book p. 55.)

The lesson presents the past perfect in statements, questions, and short answers.

Form

- Affirmative statements
subject + had / 'd + past participle
I'd set up camp.
I had just met my husband-to-be.
- Negative statements
subject + had not / hadn't + past participle
I hadn't spoken to anyone in days.
- Yes-no questions
Had + subject + past participle?
Had they been in touch?
- Information questions
question word + had / 'd + subject + past participle?
Where had he moved to?

Use

- The basic use of the past perfect is to talk about events in a time that leads up to a point in the past, or a time "before the past." When people talk about a past event using the simple past or past continuous, they can use the past perfect to talk about events or situations before the main event or events.

I'd set up camp (earlier event) and was cooking (main event) when this van appeared (main event).

- The past perfect is often used to give background information to the main events.
I'd just met my husband-to-be, and we hadn't known each other long. . . .
- The past perfect is also often used to give explanations or reasons why something happened in the past.
It was nice to have company because I hadn't spoken to anyone in days — I'd gone by myself.
- Other uses of the past perfect are taught in later units. See Unit 9, Lessons A and B, for its use in reported speech, and Unit 10, Lesson A, for its use in conditional sentences with if.

Corpus information Had

In affirmative statements, the full form had is generally more frequent than the contracted form 'd. Questions with the past perfect are not as frequent as statements.

Common errors with the past perfect

Ss may confuse the present perfect with the past perfect. (I had set up camp, and this van appeared out of nowhere. NOT ~~I have set up camp, and this van appeared.~~)

Lesson B Superstitions

Vocabulary Superstitions

(See Student's Book p. 56.)

The lesson teaches superstitions and related vocabulary from various cultures and countries around the world.

Grammar Responses with So and Neither

(See Student's Book p. 57.)

In Touchstone Student's Book 2, Unit 1, Lesson B, Ss learned how to use responses with too and either in conversation to show they had things in common with the speaker or that they agreed with the other person. Here they expand their range of such responses, learning about So and Neither.

Form

In responses with So and Neither, the verb comes after So or Neither, followed by I. The tense or verb form used by the first speaker appears in the second speaker's response.

- So is used to respond to or agree with affirmative statements.
A I'm hungry. B So am I. (= I am too.)
A I walk around ladders. B So do I. (= I do too.)
A I knew that. B So did I. (= I did too.)

- Neither is used to respond to or agree with negative statements.
A I'm not superstitious. B Neither am I. (= I'm not either.)
A I don't believe in that. B Neither do I. (= I don't either.)
A I didn't know that. B Neither did I. (= I didn't either.)

Use

- Responses with So and Neither show that the second speaker has something in common with the first speaker, or that they both agree on something.
- Speakers can also use short responses such as Oh, I'm not and Actually, I do to show they don't have the same ideas as the first speaker or that they don't agree with the first speaker.

Corpus information So and Neither

The most common responses with So and Neither are So am I and Neither am I. Responses that give the opposite views are much less common than the ones that tell what two speakers have in common.

Lesson C Weird and off the wall

Conversation strategy Making your meaning clear

(See Student's Book p. 58.)

- In conversations, it is very common for people to repeat their ideas to get their meaning across. Sometimes they repeat their ideas exactly, using the same words. Other times, they express the same ideas using different words, either of the same or different word classes. In this lesson, Ss practice repeating ideas using adjectives — either the same adjective or similar adjectives, but the same principle can be used with other word classes such as verbs, nouns, and adverbs.
- In the conversation on p. 58, Hugo repeats the word weird (I often have weird dreams), and he strengthens its repeated occurrence with really (really weird). He also uses other words with the same meaning as weird (just off the wall). Similarly, Olivia repeats the idea of nice dreams by using other words with the same meaning as nice (a happy dream, pleasant dreams), and she uses opposites to express the same idea: They're never bad or scary or . . . Practice in repeating ideas in these ways will help Ss develop their conversational fluency and give them a useful strategy for making their meaning clear.

Strategy plus just

(See Student's Book p. 59.)

In Touchstone Student's Book 2, Unit 10, Lesson C, Ss learned how to use just to soften the things they say in instructions (e.g., Just a minute.) and in explanations for actions such as a reason for calling (e.g., I was just calling to ask you something.). In the lesson, they learn that just can have the opposite meaning, too — to make what is said stronger. Just can be used to add emphasis with a meaning of “really” or “absolutely” (e.g., I just don't believe it.; It's just amazing.; It's just the weirdest thing.).

Speaking Naturally Stressing new information

(See Student's Book p. 59)

- New information in a sentence receives the strongest or primary stress. After a word or idea has entered the conversation, and becomes “old” information, then other words usually get the primary stress. This section gives practice in establishing a topic or new information with primary stress (dreams; scary), then changing the primary stress to other words (weird, really; always).

Corpus information just

Just is one of the top 30 words in conversation. It has many meanings, including “exactly,” “only,” and “a short time ago.” However, over half of the uses of just are to soften or strengthen ideas.

Lesson D Amazing stories

Reading tip

(See Student's Book p. 60.)

The Reading Tip tells Ss that the title of a news article is often a summary of the story.

Help note Prepositional time clauses

(See Student's Book p. 61.)

- The Help Note shows Ss how to use prepositional time clauses in sentences. These are prepositions + present participles (or verb + -ing), and they can be used to give more information about the main clause of the sentence: Before starting college, she had never ridden a bicycle. The clause Before starting college gives more information about the main clause.

- The subject of the present participle and the subject of the verb in the main clause should be the same.

Before starting college, she had never ridden a bicycle.
(= Before she started college . . .)

- A common mistake is to use a different subject for the two verbs: Before starting college, her bicycle had never been out on the road. This, in effect, means that the bicycle started college!
- Prepositional time clauses are not so frequent in conversation and could sound very formal in spoken English, but they are very useful for writing stories.

Strange events

Teach this unit opener page together with Lesson A in one class period.

Introduce the theme of the unit Say, “Imagine you start to call your best friend. Before the phone even rings, he or she is on the phone and starts to talk. He or she was calling you at exactly the same time.” Ask a few Ss, “Has this ever happened to you?” Say, “Now, imagine you’ve just moved to a new city, and you’re talking to your new next-door neighbor. It turns out the neighbor worked with your uncle twenty years ago.” Ask a few Ss, “What would you think if this happened to you?” Say, “Unusual occurrences such as these happen to most people at one time or another. In this unit, we’ll talk about strange events like these.”

In this unit, you learn how to . . .

- Unit aims Read the lesson headings and key unit aims aloud. Tell Ss to listen and read along.

Extra activity INDIVIDUALS / CLASS

Write on the board:

1. The names of two people who discuss their amazing coincidences.
2. A superstition from Peru.
3. Is the word “just” used often in conversation?
4. How old were Mary and Elaine when they first met?

Ss look through the unit and find the answers. Ss report their answers [1. Emma Rivers and Glen Hutt (p. 54) 2. “If you put clothes on inside out, you will get a nice surprise.” (p. 56) 3. “Just” is one of the top 30 words. (p. 59) 4. They were 30 years old, (p. 60)]. Ask, “Which of the lessons looks the most interesting?”

Before you begin . . .

- Introduce the unusual experiences Direct Ss’ attention to Before You Begin. Read the names of the four experiences aloud. Have Ss repeat. Note the pronunciation: déjà vu /deɪʒɑ vúw/.
- Have Ss read the information below picture 1. Ask, “What experience completes this sentence? Choose one of the words from Before You Begin.” [a UFO]
- Say, “Complete the sentences below the other three pictures. Then compare your answers in pairs.” Check answers with the class: Have individual Ss each read a sentence [1. a UFO 2. déjà vu; 3. telepathy; 4. a coincidence].
- Ask, “Have you ever had an experience similar to these? Do you know anyone who has?” Have a few Ss tell the class about experiences they or people they know have had (e.g., I’ve had déjà vu a lot. It usually only lasts a few seconds, but I always think, “Wow. This exact thing has happened before.”).
- Use this anecdote as an example, or tell the class a true story of your own: “My best friend and I were talking about this music teacher we used to have back in junior high school. She was our favorite. Anyway, the next day I go into this coffee shop, and who do you think is sitting there? That teacher. What a coincidence!”
- Have Ss tell their stories in groups.
- Follow-up Each group chooses a S to tell his or her story to the class. The class votes on the best story.

Extra activity PAIRS

Pairs make up stories to illustrate two of the four experiences. They tell them to another pair, who says which experience each story illustrates.

Recycle a conversation strategy This task recycles highlighting key moments in a story (see Unit 1, Lesson C). Say, “Think about a time you had one of these experiences and tell your group. What can you do to make your story sound more dramatic?” [Change to the present tense. Use this or these.]

Lesson A Coincidences

1 Getting started

- Set the scene Ask, “What was the strangest coincidence you heard about in the stories you just heard from your classmates?” Have a few Ss tell the class. Read the title of the article aloud. Say, “Emma and Glen talk about coincidences they experienced.”

A

- Preview and do the task Ask, “What kind of coincidences happen to people?” Read the example aloud. Say, “Make a list.” Elicit ideas from the class (e.g., You meet someone with the same birthday, You meet someone from your hometown in a foreign country).

B 2.20

- Preview the task Books closed. Write on the board: Emma, Glen. Say, “Listen. What coincidences did these people experience? Briefly write the main ideas for your answers.”
- Play the recording Ss listen and write. Then they compare their answers in pairs.
- Play the recording again Books open. Ss listen, read along, and review their answers. Check answers with the class [Emma’s husband was showing her pictures of an old friend from college when the friend called. Glen met a guy in the Australian outback who had graduated from the same college he did.].
- Help with new vocabulary as needed. Explain that out of the blue is an idiom that refers to something that happens without being anticipated.

Extra activity GROUPS

Write on the board:

Out of the blue

Group members each tell a story about a strange event that happened “out of the blue.” Groups choose a group member to tell the class his or her story.

C

- Preview the task Write on the board: One guy had graduated from the same college as Glen. Say, “Look at the sentence. What verb comes after the subject?” [had] Underline had. Ask, “What’s the main verb in the sentence?” [graduated] Underline graduated. Write on the board: He’d graduated from the same college as Glen. Underline ’d. Ask, “What word is ’d the contraction of?” [had]
- Read the instructions aloud.
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. He had moved to Spain years ago.
 2. Yes, but they hadn’t seen or spoken to each other in years.
 3. Because he’d gone on the trip by himself.
 4. Because he hadn’t spoken to anyone in days.
- Focus on the form and the use Say, “Sometimes when you talk about an event in the past, you also need to talk about other events that happened before it, at an earlier time. You can talk about these other events with the past perfect. The past perfect is formed using had — the past tense of have — and a past participle.”
 - Ask Ss to look at Glen’s anecdote. Ask, “What happened after Glen stopped driving?” [He set up camp, he started cooking, and some guys arrived.] Say, “When he is telling the story, the main events are that he was cooking dinner and some guys arrived. He uses the past continuous and the simple past for the main events. He uses the past perfect for the action or event in the past that happened first, before the main events — he had set up camp.”
 - Say, “You can also use the past perfect to give background information about a past event that is the main topic of your conversation.” Say, “Look at Emma’s anecdote. What background information does she give about her husband’s college friend Gerry?” [Her husband hadn’t seen or spoken to Gerry in years.]
 - Say, “You can also use the past perfect to give reasons why something in the past happened. Why was Glen pleased to see the guys?” [He hadn’t spoken to anyone in days.] “Why was Emma’s husband not in touch with his friend Gerry?” [Gerry had moved to Spain.]
 - Try it out Write on the board:
I was very tired / hungry when I got home last night because _____.
I was late for class / work yesterday because _____.
 - Have individual Ss complete the sentences. Then have them tell a partner their completed sentences.

2 Grammar

2.21

- Present the grammar chart Play the recording. Ss listen and repeat.
- Understand the grammar Tell Ss to look at the first use of the past perfect in the top section of the chart. Have a S read the first example sentence aloud. Say, "All three of these actions are in the past. We know that setting up camp was the first event because it's in the past perfect tense. What's the pattern for talking about an action in the past perfect?" Ask a S, and write the pattern on the board [subject + had + past participle].
- Ask a S to read the second example sentence aloud. Point out that the past perfect gives background information about Emma and her husband.
- Have Ss look at the second use of the past perfect. Say, "In the first example sentence, the clause with the past perfect is used to explain why Glen was glad to have company. The second example sentence gives background information. In Emma's anecdote, it helps us understand why it was unusual that Gerry called."
- Have Ss look at the bottom of the chart. Ask, "What's the pattern for yes-no questions with the past perfect?" [had + subject + past participle]. Write the pattern on the board. Ask, "What's the pattern for information questions with the past perfect?" [question word + had + subject + past participle]. Write the pattern on the board. Point out the short answers for yes-no questions: Yes, subject + had for affirmative and No, subject + hadn't for negative. (For more information, see Language Notes at the beginning of this unit.)

A

- Preview and do the task Say, "Complete the stories with either the simple past or the past perfect. Sometimes both are possible." Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class: Have three different pairs each read a story.

3 Listening

A 2.22

- Preview the task Find out if any Ss play chess online. Ask, "Why do you play online?" Read the instructions and the five questions aloud. Say, "First, just listen. Think about the questions as you listen."
- Play the recording Audio script p. T-171 Ss listen only. Replay the recording. Tell Ss to make short notes for their answers. Have Ss compare their notes in pairs.
- Play the recording again Ss listen again and review their answers. Say, "Use your notes to write complete sentences for answers." Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. Because it's hard to find people who play chess well.
2. She thinks he's a pretty good chess player.
3. Elena and Derek met at work. They had worked on a project together a year ago.

Answers

1. B Yeah. In fact, last week I was talking about a friend who I hadn't spoken to in a long time. I think he changed / had changed his cell phone number and he hadn't given me the number. Anyway, he texted me out of the blue because he had run into my brother at a restaurant, and they were talking about me. So he decided / had decided to get in touch. It was great to hear from him.
 2. B . . . I went to the post office because we had gotten someone else's mail. It had happened before, three or four times. So anyway, I was waiting in line, and I started talking to this guy who had come / came in right after me. He was there because he hadn't received some of his mail. So I asked, "You don't know a Mr. Ling, do you?" And he said, "Yeah, that's me." I couldn't believe it! I had his mail!
 3. B Actually, on my last birthday, my girlfriend decided to take me to this restaurant that she had gone to with some friends. I had heard about it, but hadn't had a chance to go there. Anyway, we showed up. . . .
- Have Ss practice the conversations in pairs, taking turns playing each role.

About you

B

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss complete the task. Have a few Ss tell one of their stories to the class.

Extra practice

Tell Ss to turn to Extra Practice 6A on p. 145 of their Student's Books. Have Ss do the tasks in class, or assign them for homework. (See the teaching notes on p. T-145.)

A 2.22

4. She discovered that Derek was her online partner. She found out when he told her his online name.
5. She says weird coincidences happen to her a lot.

B

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss complete the task. Replay the recording. Ss give themselves a point for every detail they remembered. Ask a few Ss to call out their total points.

Extra activity GROUPS

Write on the board: It's a small world . . . Group members each tell a story they know that proves the saying, "It's a small world." Groups choose a member to tell the class his or her story.

Workbook

Assign Workbook pp. 42 and 43. (The answer key begins on p. T-182.)

Lesson B Superstitions

1 Building vocabulary

- Set the scene Books closed. Ask, "Can you think of any things that are supposed to bring good luck?" Write answers on the board (e.g., finding a penny on the ground, a rabbit's foot). Say, "What about actions or items that are supposed to bring bad luck?" Write answers on the board (e.g., stepping on a crack in the sidewalk, the number 13). Say, "Some people believe that certain things can cause good or bad luck. These beliefs are called superstitions."

A

- Preview the task Books open. Say, "Different cultures have different superstitions." Read the instructions aloud.
- Do the task Have Ss read the article. Say, "Underline any new vocabulary." Ask Ss to call out any vocabulary they do not understand. Have other Ss try to provide definitions. Help with definitions for the remaining vocabulary words.
- Have individual Ss each read a superstition aloud. For each one, ask Ss to first raise their hands if they had heard of the superstition before. Then ask them to raise their hands if they have a similar superstition in their country. Call on a few Ss with their hands raised to tell the class.

Word
sort

B

- Preview and do the task Say, "Complete the chart with superstitions from the article." Ask a S to read the examples given aloud. Have Ss complete the task and then compare their charts in pairs.

Answers

It's good luck to . . .

- find a tea leaf floating upright in green tea.
- pick up any coins you find.
- dream of a snake holding you tightly.
- put clothes on inside out.
- stand between two people with the same name.

It's bad luck to . . .

- leave your purse on the floor.
- see a crow in the morning.
- give a boyfriend or girlfriend a pair of shoes.
- wear pearls when you are a bride.
- sweep over an unmarried woman's feet with a broom.

- Follow-up Say, "Add more superstitions you know to your chart." Have individual Ss read something they added to their chart. The class votes on whether they think it is good or bad luck (e.g., S: A groom sees a bride on their wedding day before the wedding [Class votes for bad luck.], S: That's right. It's bad luck.).

Vocabulary notebook

Tell Ss to turn to Vocabulary Notebook on p. 62 of their Student's Books. Have Ss do the task in class, or assign it for homework. (See the teaching notes on p. T-62.)

2 Speaking and listening

A

- Preview and do the task Have Ss look at the pictures. Ask, "What are these things?" Have Ss call out the answers. [a four-leaf clover, a butterfly, a black cat, a mirror.] Say, "Do you know any superstitions about these things?" Have Ss discuss the four pictures in pairs. Call on Ss to tell the class the superstitions they know about the things pictured.

B 2.23

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud.
- Play the recording Audio script p. T-172 Ss listen, number the pictures, and write L or U.
- Play the recording again Ss listen again and review their answers. Check answers with the class.

Answers

- four leaf clover – 3, L
- yellow butterfly – 4, L
- black cat – 1, U
- mirror – 2, U

C 2.23

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud.
- Play the recording Audio script p. T-172 Ss listen and write. Pause the recording after each superstition to give Ss time to write.

- Play the recording again Ss listen again, review their answers, and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class: Have individual Ss each read a superstition.

Answers

1. If a black cat walks toward you or crosses your path, something bad will happen / you'll have bad luck.
2. If you break a mirror, you'll have seven years of bad luck.
3. Finding a four-leaf clover is supposed to be lucky.
4. If you see a yellow butterfly, your wish will come true. If you see a yellow butterfly in the spring, you'll get a lot of new clothes.

Extra activity GROUPS

Groups discuss superstitions. Write on the board:

Do you have an object that you think is lucky?

Are there any actions you avoid because they're considered "bad luck"?

Do you do anything "for luck" before an exam or a sports event?

Group members discuss the questions and report anything interesting they find out to the class.

3 Building language

- Set the scene Say, "Some countries have a superstition about spilling salt. Raise your hand if you think it's lucky. Raise your hand if you think it's unlucky."

A 2.24

- Preview the task Books closed. Write on the board: Angie, Terry. Say, "Listen to the conversation. Is Angie superstitious? How about Terry? Write your answers."
- Play the recording Ss listen and write yes or no for each person. Check answers with the class [Angie: yes; Terry: no].
- Practice Books open. Have Ss practice the conversation in pairs, taking turns playing each role.

- Preview the task Ask, "When do people say Me neither?" [to agree with a negative statement] Ask, "When do people say Me too?" [to agree with an affirmative statement] Say, "Find responses with so and neither and underline them."
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task. Ask, "What responses did you find?" [So am I.; Neither did I.; Neither do I.; So do I.] Ask, "What do they mean?" Check answers with the class.

Answers

So am I. = I am too. / Me too.

Neither did I. = I didn't either / Me neither.

Neither do I. = I don't either. / Me neither.

So do I. = I do too. / Me too.

- Ask, "What do you notice about the responses with so and neither?" Elicit answers (e.g., The verb comes first and then the subject.; You add did for the past and do for the present.; So replaces too. Neither replaces not either.)
- Focus on the form and the use Write on the board: So ____ I. Say, "You can use this pattern to agree with another speaker's affirmative statement or to say that you are the same in some way. The verb or the auxiliary that you use depends on the verb that the speaker uses."
- Write on the board: Neither ____ I. Say, "This pattern is used to agree with a negative statement or to say that you are the same in some way."

2.25

- Present the grammar chart Play the recording. Ss listen and repeat.
- Understand the grammar Have Ss look at the top-left section of the chart. Say, "This is an example for agreeing with an affirmative statement with be." Write on the board: I'm hungry. Ask, "What's the verb in this statement?" [m / am] Underline 'm. Say, "Am is a form of be. so the verb in the response is also a form of be. The form of be agrees with the subject." Ask, "What's another way to say So am I?" (I am too.)
- Point out the top-middle section. Say, "The verb in this statement is an active verb in the simple present, so do is used in the response." Say, "You can also use I do too."
- Point out the top-right section. Say, "The verb in this statement is an active verb in the simple past, so did is used in the response." Point out the alternate expression, I did too.
- Have Ss look at the three bottom sections of the chart. Say, "These are examples for agreeing with a negative statement."
- Ask, "What's the pattern for responses with so or neither?" [So / neither + verb + I] (For more information, see Language Notes at the beginning of this unit.)
- Present in Conversation Have a S read the information aloud.

A

- Preview the task Say, "Respond to each of these statements with So or Neither." Read statement 1 aloud, and have a S read the example response.
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. Neither am I.

2. So do I.

3. Neither do I.

4. Neither did I.

5. So am I.

6. Neither have I.

7. So have I.

8. So was I.

- Practice Have pairs practice the exchanges, taking turns reading the statements and responding.

About you

B

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Ask two Ss to read the example conversation aloud. Have Ss complete the task. Encourage Ss to continue each conversation if they can, giving more information.

About you

C

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Ask two Ss to read the example conversation aloud. Have Ss complete the task.
- Have groups report any superstitions that they have in common, and write them on the board. Each time a superstition is mentioned, give it a point. The class finds out which superstitions are the most common.

Extra practice

Tell Ss to turn to Extra Practice 6B on p. 145 of their Student's Books. Have Ss do the tasks in class, or assign them for homework. (See the teaching notes on p. T-145.)

Workbook

 Assign Workbook pp. 44 and 45. (The answer key begins on p. T-182.)

Lesson C Weird and off the wall

↻ Lesson C recycles adjectives.

1 Conversation strategy

- Set the scene Books closed. Write the title of the lesson on the board. Ask, "What do weird and off the wall mean?" [very strange and unusual] Ask, "What's a nightmare?" [a bad or scary dream]

A

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have several Ss tell the class about their dreams.

B 2.26

- Preview the task Say, "Listen to Hugo and Olivia's conversation. What kinds of dreams does Olivia usually have? What about Hugo? First, just listen to the conversation."
- Play the recording Books closed. Ss listen only. Replay the recording. Ss listen and write. Have Ss compare their answers in pairs.
- Play the recording again Books open. Ss listen, read along, and review their answers. Check answers with the class. Ask, "What kinds of dreams does Olivia usually have?" [Olivia usually has recurring / nice / happy / strange / pleasant dreams.]. Ask, "What about Hugo?" [Hugo has weird / off the wall dreams.]

C

- Present Notice Read the information and the example aloud. (For more information, see Language Notes at the beginning of this unit.) Have Ss find examples in the conversation of repeating the same words or using different words for the same idea. Check answers with the class [Olivia: Yeah, sometimes. I mean, occasionally, not every time; the same dream, you know, a recurring dream; a nice dream, a happy dream . . . pleasant dreams; They're never bad or scary. Hugo: I often have weird dreams, really weird. I mean, just off the wall.].
- Practice Tell Ss to practice the conversation in pairs, taking turns playing each role. Have Ss practice again. This time, tell Ss to make up different details about Olivia and Hugo's dreams.

About you

D

- Preview the task Say, "Complete each sentence by using a word from the list to repeat the main idea." Tell Ss to read all the sentences and the word list before beginning. Help with new vocabulary as needed.
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class: Have individual Ss each read an answer.

Answers

1. fascinating
2. worried
3. frightening
4. terrible
5. scared
6. unusual

- Say, "Now discuss the statements with a partner. Do you agree with them?" When Ss finish, ask several pairs to tell the class which statements they disagree with and why.

Extra activity GROUPS

Write on the board:

Do you dream in color?

Do you ever dream in English?

Do you have any recurring (repeating) dreams?

Can you remember a dream you had recently?

Groups discuss the questions about dreams and report to the class. Tell Ss to repeat words or use words with the same meaning to make their meaning clear.

2 Strategy plus

- Present Strategy Plus Tell Ss to look back at the conversation on p. 58 and find the places where Olivia and Hugo use just. Have two Ss each read one of the examples aloud [Olivia: It's just a little strange.; Hugo: . . . really weird, I mean, just off the wall.].
- Read the information and the examples in Strategy Plus.
- Present In Conversation Books closed. Write on the board: top 25, 30, 35. Ask, "How often is just used in conversation? Is it in the top 25, 30, or 35 words? Write your guess." Books open. Ask a S to read the information aloud.

A 2.27

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Ask a S to read aloud the eight things that people said. Check that Ss understand them.
- Play the recording Ss listen and check (✓) the boxes. Have Ss compare their answers in pairs, making a note of any differences.
- Play the recording again Ss listen again and review their answers. Check answers with the class.

About you

B

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Ask a S to read the example aloud. Have Ss complete the task.

Extra activity PAIRS

Pairs look at the sentences in Exercise 2A again. This time they talk about the sentences that are not true for them and give their reasons.

3 Speaking naturally

A 2.28

- Preview the task Say, "Look at what the woman says about her dreams. What is the new information in the first sentence?" [dreams] Say, "This gets the strongest stress. After she mentions dreams, this becomes old information and other words — the new information — gets the strongest stress. The words which have the strongest stress are in red." Read the instructions aloud.
- Play the recording Ss listen and repeat.

B 2.29

- Preview and do the task Say, "Can you predict which words have the strongest stress in the conversation below? Underline one word in each sentence."
- Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs.
- Play the recording Ss listen, read along, and review their answers. Check answers with the class: Have individual Ss each read an answer, using the correct stress.

Answers

A Do you ever have bad dreams?

B You mean scary dreams? Like nightmares?

A Yeah. Dreams that make you all upset.

B No. I usually have nice dreams. Fun dreams. What about you?

A Oh, I never dream. At least, I never remember my dreams. So, do you ever have recurring dreams?

B Not really. My dreams are always different. But they're always happy dreams.

About you

C

- Preview and do the task Say, "Practice the conversation above with a partner, using your own information. Then switch roles and practice again." As Ss complete the task, go around the class listening for the stress. If necessary, replay Exercise 3B, and have Ss repeat.

Extra activity GROUPS

Ss take turns telling their groups about a dream they had that they remember. Groups report the most unusual dream to the class.

Sounds right

Tell Ss to turn to Sounds Right on p. 138 of their Student's Books. Have Ss do the task for Unit 6 in class, or assign it for homework. (See the teaching notes on p. T-138.)

Workbook

 Assign Workbook pp. 46 and 47. (The answer key begins on p. T-182.)

1 Reading

- Set the scene Read the title of the lesson aloud. Ask, “What makes a story amazing?” Elicit ideas from Ss (e.g., It has an unexpected ending. It involves a coincidence. Something really good happens in the story.) Ask Ss if there have been any amazing stories in the news recently. Ss who know of any tell the class.

Prereading

- Preview and do the task Ask, “What do you know about twins?” Have a S read aloud the examples. Tell Ss to work with a partner and make a list. Have Ss complete their lists and then tell the class (e.g., Some are identical and some are fraternal. Some twins say they know what the other twin is thinking or feeling even when they’re apart.).

Note

There are two types of twins — identical and fraternal. Identical twins develop from the same fertilized egg, which splits and develops into two babies with exactly the same genetic information. Fraternal twins develop from two fertilized eggs, which produce two genetically unique children. Fraternal twins are no more genetically alike than individual siblings born at different times.

B

During reading

- Present Reading Tip Read the tip aloud. Read the title of the article aloud. Ask, “What will the article be about?” [Twins who didn’t grow up together, but met each other when they were older.]
- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Ask, “What are some reasons it might have taken a long time for the twins to meet?” Get ideas from the class (e.g., They might have lived in different towns or countries. They might not have known about each other.)
- Point out the names Mary Holmes (paragraph 1) and Mary Black (paragraph 3). Explain that when Mary married, she took her husband’s last name (Holmes).
- Do the task Have Ss read the article and answer the question. Check the answer with the class. [Mrs. Black didn’t want the girls to meet. The girls knew about each other early on, but didn’t speak because they were respecting Mrs. Black’s wishes. After getting married, Mary moved to Singapore without contacting her sister.]

C

Postreading

- Preview the task Books open. Read the instructions aloud. Ask individual Ss to each read a question aloud.
- Do the task Tell Ss to read the article and answer the questions. Have Ss compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class.
- Ask several Ss for their answer to question 5. Have a short class discussion. Which reasons do most Ss agree with?

Possible answers

1. The Blacks did not want Mary to meet her twin sister.
 2. Mary learned about Elaine when a girl in the doctor’s office kept calling her Elaine. Elaine learned about Mary when her mother pointed Mary out on the street one day.
 3. The first time Elaine tried to contact Mary, she learned that Mary had moved to Singapore.
 4. The twins felt like they had known each other all their lives.
 5. Answers will vary.
- Follow-up Ask, “Do you think the story is amazing?” Ss give their opinions (e.g., Yeah, I think it’s a pretty incredible story. I mean, I just can’t imagine how I would feel if I suddenly found out I had an identical twin.).

Extra activity PAIRS

Pairs write down some of the main events in the story. Then they rewrite them in random order. Pairs exchange papers with another pair, who try to number the events in the correct order. Have the two pairs work together to check answers.

D

- Preview the task Ask Ss to cover the list of expressions on the left. Read the instructions and expression a aloud. Tell Ss to find the expression look after in the article. Have a S say where the expression is and read the sentence aloud. [Paragraph 2: Their mother, who was renting a small room in a house, was unable to look after the girls.]
- Say, “Now choose the meaning of look after from the expressions on the right.” Call on a S to answer [e. take care of].
- Do the task Have Ss uncover the expressions on the left and match them with their definitions. Check answers with the class: Call on individual Ss to say where the expression is and give their answer.

Answers

1. e (Paragraph 2)
2. c (Paragraph 3)
3. f (Paragraph 3)
4. a (Paragraph 4)
5. b (Paragraph 5)
6. d (Paragraph 6)

2 Speaking and writing

About you

A

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Ask individual Ss to each read a discussion question aloud.
- ◀▶ Recycle a conversation strategy Encourage Ss to make their meaning clear by repeating ideas. To model the task, have a S ask you the first question. In your answer, repeat ideas (e.g., My family background isn't very unusual. It's really pretty typical. My grandparents were from . . .).
- Do the task Have Ss discuss the questions in pairs. Tell them to make notes of the answers.

- Preview and do the task Have Ss read the example article. Ask, “What’s the topic of the article?” [how the writer’s parents met] Then ask some comprehension questions (e.g., Where did the writer’s parents meet? [in college] What club did they belong to? [the cycling club] What kind of bike did the writer’s mother buy? [a big heavy one]).
- Present Help Note Read the information aloud. Say, “Verb + -ing with before and (soon) after tells when something happened. Notice that in the prepositional time clause, the subject is not stated. The subject of the prepositional time clause is the same as the subject of the main clause. Find and underline the four examples of prepositional time clauses.” [Before starting college; Soon after arriving on campus; after seeing all the other cyclists with their bicycles; After realizing] (For more information, see Language Notes at the beginning of this unit.)
- Write sentences such as the following on the board:
After she got married, Mary moved to Singapore.
Before they met in person, they spoke on the phone.
Soon after they met, they became inseparable.

- Have Ss rewrite the sentences using prepositional time clauses with after, before, and soon after [After getting married, Mary moved to Singapore.; Before meeting in person, they spoke on the phone.; Soon after meeting, they became inseparable.]

About you

C

- Preview and do the task Say, “Use your notes and write a story about your family. Use at least three time clauses.” Have Ss write their stories. Tell them to use their ideas from Exercise 2A.
- Say, “Now read your classmates’ stories. Which one interests you the most? Tell the class.” Have Ss put their stories on their desks or chairs. Tell Ss to move around the class and read at least five other Ss’ stories. Have Ss note which story interests them the most and report back to the class.

Extra activity PAIRS

Ss read a partner’s story and then write two or three questions about it. Ss give their questions to their partner, who adds information to their story to answer the questions.

Free talk

Tell Ss to turn to Free Talk 6 at the back of their Student’s Books. Have Ss do the task. (See the teaching notes on p. T-132.)

Workbook

Assign Workbook pp. 48 and 49. (The answer key begins on p. T-182.)

Vocabulary Notebook

If done for homework

Briefly present the Learning Tip and the task directions. Make sure Ss understand what they need to do.

If done in class

- Present Learning Tip Read the information aloud. Say, "Word webs are useful to organize vocabulary around a topic. A word web will save you time. For example, instead of reading through lists of sentences with superstitions, you can just scan for the topic, and the superstition you want will be easier to find."

- Present In Conversation Books closed. Ask, "Do people talk about good luck or bad luck more often? Write your guess." Books open. Ask a S to read the information aloud.
- ↻ These tasks recycle talking about superstitions.

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class.

Possible answers

Love: If you give your boyfriend or girlfriend a pair of shoes, he or she will leave you. Dream of a snake, and you'll find your soul mate.

Money: If you leave your purse on the floor, your money will disappear. If you pick up coins, you'll come into money.

Good luck: It's lucky to find a tea leaf floating upright in a cup of green tea. It's good luck to find a four-leaf clover.

Bad luck: If you see a crow in the morning, you will have a bad day. If you break a mirror, you'll have seven years of bad luck.

- Preview the Word Builder task Say, "This Word Builder task will help you learn more superstitions." Read the instructions aloud.
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task. Check answers with the class.

Answers

Bringing a new broom into a new house is lucky.

Cut your nails on Friday, and you cut them for sorrow.

Finding a ladybug will bring you good luck.

If you open an umbrella indoors, it is bad luck.

Leave a house by the same door you came in for good luck.

Putting clothes on with your left arm first is unlucky.

On your own

- Present On Your Own Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss look at the picture. Say, "This student is carrying a four-leaf clover into the exam room for good luck. What other two things is she doing for luck?" [She's wearing a horseshoe around her neck. She has her fingers crossed.]

- Follow-up At the start of the next class, Ss work in small groups and report the superstitions the people had. Groups report any new superstitions to the class.

Now I can . . .

- Go over the Now I Can items. Put Ss in pairs to give one example each for the first six items. Call on Ss and ask for examples or explanations.
- Have Ss look over the four lessons and identify any areas they want to review.
- Tell Ss to complete the Now I Can items. Ss check (✓) the items they know and put a question mark (?) by items that they are not confident about. Check with individual Ss which areas need review to see if there are general problems to review in class. Help individual Ss as required. Have Ss hand in a piece of paper with their name and a schedule showing what they plan to review and when. Review or reteach these language items in a future class.

Checkpoint Units 4–6

Before you begin the Checkpoint, write on the board: Grammar, Vocabulary, Conversation Strategies. Tell Ss to think about Units 4–6 and write down which area they are most sure about. Say each area, and ask Ss to raise their hands for the one they wrote.

1 What are you supposed to do?

↻ This task recycles be supposed to.

- Set the scene Have Ss look at the pictures and say what each icon represents [1. a cell phone 2. food 3. a hard hat 4. a camera 5. a shoe on grass].
- Preview the task Tell Ss to look at the first picture. Ask, “What does this sign mean?” Call on Ss to give ideas using supposed to and not supposed to (e.g., You’re supposed to turn off your cell phone. You’re not supposed to use a cell phone.). Say, “Write sentences for each sign, with supposed to and not supposed to.”
- Do the task Have Ss write their sentences. When Ss finish, have them compare their sentences in pairs, and say where they might see the signs. Model the task by having a pair read the example conversation. Check answers with the class: Call on a few Ss to give answers for each sign.

Possible answers

1. This one means you’re not supposed to turn your cell phone on. You’re supposed to turn it off; This sign is often seen in hospitals and on planes.

2. This one means you’re not supposed to have food in this place. You’re supposed to eat outside of the area. It is seen in concert halls and stores.
3. This one means you’re supposed to wear a hard hat. You’re not supposed to be in the area without a hard hat. It is always seen at construction sites.
4. This one means you’re not supposed to take any pictures. You’re supposed to put your camera away. This sign is often seen in art galleries and museums.
5. This one means you’re not supposed to walk on the grass. You’re supposed to stay on the paths or sidewalks. It is often seen in parks or outside public buildings.

Extra activity INDIVIDUALS / GROUPS

Ss write three sentences about things they are or are not supposed to do at school. Ss take turns reading their sentences in groups and see if they agree.

2 You can say that again!

↻ This task recycles the conversation strategies of repeating your ideas to make your meaning clear, checking your understanding with “statement questions,” and using just and so.

A

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions and the example aloud. Have Ss complete the second sentence for each item. Then have Ss compare sentences in pairs.

Possible answers

1. I just love going to parties.
2. I just get anxious.

3. It just costs too much.
4. I’m just always late for everything.

B

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have two Ss read the example conversation aloud. Point out how B asks a statement question using so. Have Ss take turns reading their true sentences and responding with statement questions.

3 Crime doesn’t pay.

↻ This task recycles the passive of modal verbs and get passive. It also recycles vocabulary for rules and regulations, crimes, criminals, and punishments, and the conversation strategy of organizing your views.

A

- Preview the task Read the instructions and the example sentences aloud. Say, “Complete the sentence on the left with crimes and how people are usually punished, and the sentence on the right with the criminals and how you think they should be punished.”

- Do the task Give Ss three minutes to write as many sentences as they can. Ss compare their sentences in pairs.

B

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Have two Ss read the example conversation.
- Write First and Second on the board. Ask, “What other expressions can you use to organize views?” Call on a few Ss (e.g., Basically; There are two reasons.).
- Do the task Have Ss take turns reading their sentences, explaining their views, and responding.
- Follow-up Pairs report the points they agree on.

4 A weird week

↻ This task recycles the past perfect. It also recycles the vocabulary for superstitions.

A

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Ask individual Ss to each read a question aloud. Point out the example answer.
- Do the task Have Ss read the story and write answers to the questions. Then have them compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class: Call on a few Ss to read their answers.

Possible answers

1. Eric had to pay for his girlfriend's dinner because she had spent all her money on a sweater.
2. He wanted to apologize because he had yelled at her.
3. He overslept on Friday morning because he had had a strange dream.
4. His sweater was inside out because he had gotten dressed in a hurry.
5. It was a surprise to see Sarah because he hadn't seen her since their college graduation.
6. He had his last thought because he had remembered his dream.

B

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Tell Ss to compare the superstitions on p. 56 with the events in the story and make notes on how they can explain the events. Ask a S to read the example aloud. Have Ss complete the task and then compare their ideas in pairs. Have pairs report their ideas to the class.

Possible answers

- Maybe Eric had a bad day on Monday because he had seen a crow in the morning. (Taiwan: If you see a crow in the morning, you will have a bad day.)
- Maybe Eric's girlfriend broke up with him because he had given her a pair of shoes. (South Korea: If you give a girlfriend a pair of shoes, she will leave you.)
- Maybe he ran into Sarah by surprise because he had put his sweater on inside out. (Peru: If you put clothes on inside out, you'll get a nice surprise.)
- Maybe he thinks he's going to marry Sarah because he had dreamt about a snake winding itself tightly around his leg. (Thailand: Dream of a snake holding you tightly, and you will soon meet your soul mate.)

Extra activity INDIVIDUALS / GROUPS

Ss write a paragraph about what they think happened next to Eric. Then they share their endings in groups.

5 Get this!

↻ This task recycles expressions with get.

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions and the example aloud. Have Ss complete the conversation. Check answers with the class.

Answers

Ann My sister and her boyfriend just broke up. She's so upset.

Bill I don't get it. They were the perfect couple.

Ann I get the feeling that she was expecting it. She'll get over it soon.

Bill Did they ever get engaged? Or didn't they get around to it?

Ann They did, but she'll soon get used to being single again.

Bill It's a tough time, but she'll get through it.

- Practice Tell Ss to practice the conversation in pairs, taking turns playing each role.

Extra activity PAIRS

Pairs write conversations using four get expressions. A few pairs present conversations to the class.

6 Things in common?

↻ This task recycles responses with So and Neither. It also recycles was going to and be supposed to.

- Preview and do the task Have individual Ss each read an incomplete sentence aloud. Say, "Complete the first four items with a noun or a verb + -ing. Complete the last two with verb phrases." Model the activity by completing a few sentences (e.g., I believe in picking up coins I find.; Once I tried frying tomatoes.). Have Ss write sentences with their own information.

- When Ss finish, have two Ss read the example conversation aloud. Ask, "What other response could B give to A?" Call on Ss for ideas (e.g., Oh, I don't. They don't seem real.). Say, "Now compare your sentences with a partner. Say if you are the same or different. If you are the same, use So or Neither." Have Ss take turns reading their sentences and responding.
- Follow-up Pairs report to the class about what they have in common (e.g., We both believe in picking up coins.).

Lesson A Getting things doneGrammar Causative get and *have

(See Student's Book p. 67.)

The lesson teaches causative uses of the verbs get and have. Causative means to "cause something to happen" or "make something happen." The lesson recycles the use of get + person + to + verb and have + person + verb (see Touchstone Student's Book 3, Unit 4, Lesson A), and adds a new pattern get / have + object + past participle.

Form

- get + person + to + verb (to- infinitive)
I get my brother to fix my car.
- have + person + verb (infinitive without to)
I didn't pay to have someone repair my dishwasher.
- get / have + object + past participle
I always get my hair cut professionally.
We're having a new house built.

Use

- Get someone to do something and have someone do something mean "to make, ask, or persuade someone to do something." It is usually clear from the context whether the person is compelled or persuaded to do something.
Compare:
I get my kids to help me with the chores.
I get my brother to fix the car.
- Get or have something done is a type of passive structure meaning "to cause something to be done by someone else."
I cut my hair. (= I cut it myself.)
I had my hair cut. (= Someone else cut it for me.)

Lesson B What needs to be done?Grammar Need + passive infinitive and need + verb + *-ing

(See Student's Book p. 68.)

The lesson teaches two structures with the verb need: need to be done and need doing. These structures have a similar meaning: "should be done."

Form

- need + passive infinitive
The TV needs to be fixed.
- need + verb + -ing (gerund)
The TV needs fixing.

Use

Both structures mean that something should be done. The structure need + verb + -ing is commonly used with everyday chores around the house (e.g., changing, cleaning, fixing).

Vocabulary Problems around the house

(See Student's Book p. 69.)

The lesson teaches vocabulary for describing common problems around the home.

The lightbulb keeps flickering on and off.

The doorknob is loose. It's about to fall off.

Corpus information*Common errors with need + verb + *-ing

A common error is for Ss to use need + verb + -ing to say what they are going to do themselves. (I need to change my tire. NOT ~~I need changing my tire.~~)

This is not the same as saying what needs to be done (by someone else). (My tire needs changing.)

Lesson C You OK?

Conversation strategy Speaking in “shorter sentences”

(See Student’s Book p. 70.)

- In Touchstone Student’s Book 3, Unit 6, Lesson C, Ss learned how, in friendly conversations, expressions for good-bye could be shortened by leaving out words. The lesson builds on this common feature of conversation — ellipsis.
- Ellipsis occurs when speakers leave out words in conversations, either because they want to avoid repeating ideas or because the ideas are understood or implied in the conversation. There are different types of ellipsis, but this lesson focuses on the most common types in informal conversations, namely, where people leave out pronouns and auxiliary verbs or the verb be. Here are some examples of words that are left out:
 - I or I am (I’m)
(I) Think so.; (I) Just broke a nail.; (I’m) Ready.
 - Do you, Are you, and Have you
(Do you) Want some help?; (Are you) OK?; (Have you) Got it?
 - Is that / it, That / It is
(Is that / it) Better?; (That / It is) Done.
- The conversation in the lesson is of two people doing a job together. Because they are involved in the same task and their conversation is about an immediate and shared experience, they frequently use ellipsis.

Strategy plus Uh-oh!

(See Student’s Book p. 71.)

The section presents and practices a number of common words people use in conversation to show that something has gone wrong in some way.

- When you see / experience a problem
Ooh! It’s heavy.
- When you suddenly discover a problem
Uh-oh! I don’t have any soda.
- When you make a small mistake
Oops! / Whoops! I spilled my coffee.
- When you hurt yourself
Ow! / Ouch! Broke my nail!
- When something goes wrong — a general reaction / expletive Shoot! I missed the bus.
- When you find something disgusting
Ugh! / Yuck! There’s a dead fly in my soup!
- These expressions are used by people who see or have a problem themselves. They are also often used by people when they listen to an anecdote someone is telling them about things that go wrong and to show their involvement or understanding of the anecdote.

Corpus information Ooh!

Most of the expressions taught here are in the top 4,000 words in conversation. The most common general-purpose one is Ooh!

Speaking naturally Short question and statement intonation

(See Student’s Book p. 71.)

The section gives practice in hearing whether short elliptical sentences are questions or statements. In questions, the intonation rises. In the exercise, the statement intonation falls to show that the speaker is giving “news” to the listener.

Lesson D Thinking outside the box

Reading tip

(See Student’s Book p. 72.)

The Reading Tip tells Ss to highlight useful collocations they can use in their daily lives. It’s a reminder that they should look for phrases to learn, and not just single words.

Help note Presenting a solution

(See Student’s Book p. 73.)

The Help Note gives some useful guidelines for presenting advantages in order to persuade someone to agree with a proposal. These are:

- Present and explain the problem.
- Offer a solution and explain its benefits.
- Explain how the solution will be implemented.

Problem solving

Teach this unit opener page together with Lesson A in one class period.

Introduce the theme of the unit Ask, “Do you cut your own hair? Do you iron your own clothes? Do you repair things around the house or take care of minor problems with your car? Raise your hand if you do.” Ask Ss who raise their hands what kinds of jobs they can do themselves. Ask, “Do you think it’s better for a professional to do these things? Raise your hand.” Ask Ss who raise their hands to say what kinds of things they hire professionals to do. Say, “In this unit, we’ll talk about different repair problems and services that people use in everyday life.”

In Unit 7, you learn how to . . .

- Unit aims Read the lesson headings and key unit aims aloud. Tell Ss to listen and read along.

Extra activity PAIRS

Write on the board:

something you could fix or do yourself

something you'd never try to fix or do yourself

Ss look through the unit and find two examples for each category on the board. Ss form pairs and tell each other what they chose (e.g., I'd try to replace a showerhead [p. 68]; I could put oil in my car [p. 66]).

Before you begin . . .

- Introduce the services Have Ss look at the pictures. Read the caption for each picture aloud. Have Ss repeat.
- Tell Ss to look at Before You Begin. Ask individual Ss to each read one of the questions aloud. Then ask, “Where do you go when you need a haircut? Choose one of the places shown in the pictures.” Call on a S to answer [When you need a haircut, you go to a hair salon (or a barbershop).]
- Say, “Match each of the questions to one of the pictures. Then compare your answers in pairs.” Check answers with the class: Have individual Ss each read an answer [When you need a haircut, you go to a hair salon (or a barbershop).; When you need new glasses, you go to an optometrist.; When you need some photocopies, you go to a copy shop.; When there’s a big stain on your jacket, you go to a dry cleaner’s.; When you need a memory card for your camera, you go to a camera store.; When your car or motorcycle breaks down, you go to a garage.]

↻ Recycle vocabulary and grammar This follow-up task recycles vocabulary for talking about how often you do something (see Touchstone Student’s Book 1, Unit 5, Lesson B). Ask, “How often do you get a haircut?” Call on a few Ss to answer (e.g., about three times a year, every six weeks). Ask, “What other time expressions do you know for talking about how often?” Call on a few Ss to answer (e.g., once a week, almost every day, about every three months, never).

- Say, “Find out how often your partner uses each of the services in Before You Begin.” Have Ss complete the task.

Extra activity GROUPS

Write on the board: manicurist, personal trainer (for exercise), furniture mover. Say, “These are all workers who provide services that many people typically do themselves.”

Groups discuss who has used one of these services in the past, who would like to use one of these services in the future, and who would probably not use the services in the future. Groups report to the class.

Lesson A Getting things done

1 Getting started

- Set the scene Say, “Some people prefer to pay others to do things that they could probably do themselves, such as cut the lawn or take care of a garden. What are some other jobs that people can be hired to do?” Write Ss’ ideas on the board (e.g., clean windows, paint the inside / outside of a home, walk the dog, shovel snow, clean the house).

A

- Preview and do the task Ask, “Which of these things do you do yourself?” Have a S read the five items aloud. Using a show of hands, find out how many Ss do each thing. Ask, “What other jobs do you do?” Have Ss call out answers. Assign a S to write them on the board.

B 3.01

- Preview the task Read the title of the interview aloud. Say, “Listen. What jobs have these people done themselves? Were they successful? Write your answers.”
- Write the names of the people in the interviews on the board. (Note the usual American English pronunciation of these names: Min-sook /min su’k/, Marcus Aldóvar /márkəs aldóvvar/).
- Play the recording Books closed. Pause the recording after interview 1. Ask, “What job did Min-sook do herself?” [She cut her own hair.] “Was she successful?” [no] Play the rest of the recording, pausing after each interview to give Ss time to write. Ss listen and write.
- Play the recording again Books open. Ss listen, read along, and review their answers. Check answers with the class [1. Min-sook cut her own hair. She was not successful. 2. Marcus puts oil in his car. He is successful. 3. Martin and Jill have done their own decorating. They were successful. 4. Bella tried to fix her dishwasher. She was not successful.].
- Ask, “Who cuts Min-sook’s bangs?” [a friend] Ask, “Who looks at Marcus’s car?” [his uncle] Ask, “Do we know who’s building Martin and Jill’s house?” [no] Ask, “Do we know who repaired the water damage for Bella?” [no] Help with new vocabulary as needed.

Figure
It out

C

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Tell Ss to read the interviews carefully to help them complete the answers.
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class: Have individual Ss each read an answer.

Answers

1. I get my brother to fix things.
2. We’ll have my sister choose the colors.
3. I get my hair cut at a good salon.
4. I had to have the damage repaired.

 Recycle grammar The following task recycles causative get in active sentences (see Touchstone Student’s Book 3, Unit 4, Lesson A).

- Focus on the form and the use Write on the board:
 1. Min-sook always cuts her own hair.
 2. Min-sook gets a hairdresser at a salon to cut her hair.
 3. Min-sook gets her hair washed at the salon.
- Ask, “In sentence 1, who cuts Min-sook’s hair?” [Min-sook] Say, “Min-sook does the action of cutting herself.”
- Ask, “In sentence 2, who cuts Min-sook’s hair?” [a hairdresser] Ask, “What does gets mean here?” [asks, tells, makes, has]
- Ask, “In sentence 3, who washes Min-sook’s hair?” [someone at a salon] Write on the board underneath sentence 3:
 3. Min-sook gets her hair washed at the salon.
subject + verb get + object + past participle
- Say, “Look at sentences 2 and 3 on the board. Get is called a causative verb because it means ‘cause something to happen’ or ‘arrange for something to happen.’ In sentence 3, you can also use the verb have.” Write on the board: Min-sook has her hair washed at a salon.
- Try it out Ss look through the interviews and identify sentences with get and have. Ss underline the causatives. Call on Ss to read the causatives they found [Min-sook: ... had a hairdresser cut it again. I always get it cut ... I get a friend to cut my bangs occasionally.; Marcus: ... I get my brother to fix most things ... I have my uncle take a look at it ... I can get it fixed there ... I also have it serviced there ...; Martin and Jill: ... we’ll have her choose the colors and get her to pick out curtains ...; Bella: I didn’t want to pay to have someone come and repair it ... to have the water damage repaired.].

Extra activity PAIRS

Pairs ask and answer the four interview questions from Exercise 1A.

2 Grammar

3.02

- Present the grammar chart Play the recording. Ss listen and repeat.
- Understand the grammar Remind Ss that causative means “cause or make something happen.” Say, “When people want to say they caused something to happen or arranged for something to happen, they can use get or have as causatives. The words have a similar meaning.”
- Say, “Look at the sentences on the left side of the chart. Get and have have the same meaning in these sentences, but the patterns are different.” Write the patterns on the board:
get + person + to + verb
have + person + verb
- Ask, “What’s the difference?” [After get, you need to + verb. After have, you do not need to.] Tell Ss to circle get and to + verb and underline have and verb in the examples in the left side of the chart.
- Say, “Look at the sentences on the right side of the chart. When you use causative get or have in a passive sentence, both the meaning and the pattern are the same.” Write the pattern on the board:
get + object + past participle have + object + past participle
- For more information, see Language Notes at the beginning of this unit.

About you

A

- Preview the task Say, “Circle the correct options, and write your own answers to the questions.”

- Do the task Have Ss circle the answers and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class.

Answers

- | | |
|--------------|------------|
| 1. cut | 5. cleaned |
| 2. had | 6. to iron |
| 3. fixed | 7. done |
| 4. to change | |

- Say, “Now write your own answers to the questions. Then ask and answer the questions with a partner.”
- Follow-up For each question, have a few Ss report to the class.

B

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Ask a S to read the example answer aloud. Have Ss complete the task.

Recycle a conversation strategy Tell Ss to check their understanding or to comment by adding a question in the form of a statement as they do the task (e.g., S1: Well, people often get their cars cleaned professionally. We get a local company to clean ours. S2: They do a good job, right?). (See Unit 4, Lesson C.)

- Follow-up Several pairs report to the class.

Extra practice

Tell Ss to turn to Extra Practice 7A on p. 146 of their Student’s Books. Have Ss do the tasks in class, or assign them for homework. (See the teaching notes on p. T-146.)

3 Listening

A 3.03

- Preview the task Say, “Molly and Mark are talking about getting ready for their wedding. Look at the pictures. What topics are they going to discuss?” [invitations, photography / wedding pictures, the wedding cake, Molly’s dress, flowers, honeymoon plans] Say, “Listen. What topics do they agree on? Check the boxes.”
- Play the recording Audio script p. T-172 Ss listen and check (✓) the boxes. Check answers with the class.

Answers

Checked:

- ✓ invitations ✓ flowers
✓ wedding cake ✓ honeymoon plans

B 3.03

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Say, “Write the answers. If a family member is going to do it, write which family member it is.”
- Play the recording Audio script p. T-172 Ss listen and write.
- Play the recording again Ss listen again and review their answers. Check answers with the class.

Answers

Have done professionally

photography; wedding dress; flowers

Do themselves

invitations; wedding cake (Aunt Jackie); honeymoon plans

About you

C

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions and the example aloud. Have Ss complete the task.
- Follow-up Have pairs present their event to another pair.

Extra activity GROUPS

Group members tell about a time they or someone close to them did something themselves to try and save money. Were they successful? Would they have it done professionally the next time?

Workbook

Assign Workbook pp. 50 and 51. (The answer key begins on p. T-182.)

Lesson B What needs to be done?

1 Building language

- Set the scene Have Ss look at the picture. Say, "Look at Isaac and Anna's bathroom. What isn't working properly?" [the shower] Ask, "What's the problem?" [It's dripping / leaking.] Ask a few Ss, "If you had this problem, would you fix it yourself or would you have a professional fix it?" Count hands for each choice, and write the totals on the board.

A  3.04

- Preview the task Books closed. Say, "Listen to the conversation. What is Isaac good at fixing? Write the answer."
- Play the recording Ss listen and write.
- Play the recording again Books open. Ss listen, read along, and review their answer. Check the answer with the class [He's good at fixing the TV.]. Help with new vocabulary.
- Practice Tell Ss to practice the conversation in pairs, taking turns playing each role.

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Add, "Look for the forms of the verb after need."

- Do the task Have Ss complete the task. Check answers with the class: Write the answers on the board, underlined as shown. The showerhead needs to be replaced. The showerhead needs replacing.
- Focus on the form and the use Direct Ss' attention to the answers on the board. Say, "Both of these sentences have the same meaning." Ask, "In the first sentence, what form of the verb comes after need?" [to be + past participle] Ask, "Is this active or passive?" [passive] Ask, "In the second sentence, what form of the verb comes after need?" [verb + -ing] Say, "This sentence also has a passive meaning. Both these sentences mean: Someone needs to replace the showerhead."
- Try it out Write on the board:
I need to replace my _____. I need to fix my _____.
- Have Ss think of two things they need to replace and two things that they need to fix. Tell Ss to write four new sentences using need and the patterns in the grammar chart. (e.g., The batteries in my mouse need replacing / to be replaced.) Have Ss read their sentences to a partner.

2 Grammar

 3.05

- Present the grammar chart Play the recording. Ss listen and repeat.
- Understand the grammar Say, "Both need + passive infinitive and need + verb + -ing are used to talk about things that should be done." Have Ss look at the left side of the chart. Write on the board: The TV needs to be fixed. Say, "The passive infinitive is made up of to be + past participle."
- Have Ss look at the right side of the chart. Say, "You can say the same thing using verb + -ing." Have Ss look at the bottom of the chart. Say, "These are some verbs that are used with everyday chores around the house. What are things around the house that need changing?" (e.g., lightbulbs, batteries, sheets on a bed) (For more information, see Language Notes at the beginning of this unit.)
- Present Common Errors Books closed. Write on the board:

1. I need ____ my tire. 2. My tire needs ____.

Ask, "Which sentence can you complete with changing?" [2] Books open. Have Ss read the information.

A

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. needs to be upgraded. / needs upgrading.
2. need to be adjusted. / need adjusting.

3. needs to be recharged. / needs recharging.
4. need to be replaced. / need replacing.
5. needs to be changed or tightened. / needs changing or tightening.
6. needs to be cleaned. / needs cleaning.
7. needs to be fixed. / needs fixing.
8. need to be filed. / need filing.
9. needs to be tuned. / needs tuning.

About you

B

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have two Ss read the example conversation aloud. Have Ss complete the task. Have several Ss tell about a problem that needs to be fixed.

Extra activity PAIRS

Write on the board: adjusting, recharging. Pairs write as many things as they can that can need adjusting or recharging in two minutes. Then pairs read their lists aloud. Pairs get one point for each item that no other pair has.

Extra practice

Tell Ss to turn to Extra Practice 7B on p. 146 of their Student's Books. Have Ss do the tasks in class, or assign them for homework. (See the teaching notes on p. T-146.)

3 Building vocabulary

A

- Preview the task Ask Ss to look at the picture. Say, "Write the names of as many objects in the picture as you can. You have one minute." Have Ss write. Call time after one minute. Have Ss call out the names they wrote. Write them on the board. Elicit the names of any that were missed and add them to the board.
- Read the instructions aloud. Say, "The words in bold describe different problems. Use those words and the pictures to help you answer." Ask a S to read the example answer aloud.
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class: Have individual Ss each read a completed item aloud. Write the name of each household item on the board.

Answers

1. The microwave isn't working. Nothing's happening. It won't turn on.
2. The refrigerator is leaking. And there's a dent in the door.
3. The lamp keeps flickering on and off. And I got a shock from it.
4. The doorknob is loose. If it falls off, we won't be able to open the door.
5. The ceiling fan is making a funny noise.
6. The table has a big scratch on it.
7. That curtain / drape is torn. And look — there's a big hole in the other one.
8. There's a coffee stain on the rug.
9. The clock is a half hour slow. Actually, it stopped. The battery must be dead.

Word
sort

B

- Preview the task Ask three Ss to each read the items in one of the categories in the chart. Say, "Can you think of two items for each of the problems in the chart?"
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task. Check answers with the class: For each problem in the chart, have several Ss call out the items they thought of. Write the items on the board.

Possible answers

Things that often . . .

leak: refrigerator, pen, sink, toilet, pipes, radiator, air conditioner fall off: doorknob, handle, picture make a funny noise: fan, refrigerator, microwave, car

Things that are often . . .

scratched: glasses, car, refrigerator, stove, furniture torn: rug, curtains, clothes, paper loose: doorknob, screw, table leg

Things that often have . . .

a dent in them: refrigerator, stove, car

a stain on them: rug, carpet, counter, tablecloth, clothes

a hole in them: rug, curtains, pipes, sheets, clothes, socks

Things that often . . .

won't turn on: microwave, light, lamp, TV, Internet, DVD player, stove are slow: watch, clock, Internet have dead batteries: camera, phone, watch, flashlight, laptop

- Ask, "Do you have any things like these that need to be fixed? Tell a partner." When Ss finish, call on several Ss to report something their partner has that needs to be fixed.

Vocabulary notebook

Tell Ss to turn to Vocabulary Notebook on p. 74 of their Student's Books. Have Ss do the tasks in class, or assign them for homework. (See the teaching notes on p. T-74.)

C

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Have two Ss read the example conversation aloud. Say, "Write the tasks in the order that you think Isaac or Anna should take care of them. Use the picture and sentences in Exercise 3A for the problems."
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task. Tell pairs to name the tasks, say how to do them, and then decide which things need to be done right away.
- Follow-up Ss imagine they are in the same situation as Anna and Isaac. Ss choose one thing that they would get fixed / fix as a priority. Ss tell the class which thing and why, and what they would do and why.

Extra activity PAIRS

Pairs use items from their charts in Exercise 3B that were not in Exercise 3A, and write five problems on a piece of paper (e.g., The table leg is loose. The cell phone has gone dead.). Pairs exchange their list of problems with another pair. Pairs decide if they think the other pair can fix the problem themselves or if it should be fixed professionally (e.g., The table leg needs to be tightened. You can do it yourself with a screwdriver.). Pairs share their ideas with the other pair.

Workbook

Assign Workbook pp. 52 and 53. (The answer key begins on p. T-182.)

Lesson C You OK?

Lesson C recycles vocabulary for talking about problems and their solutions.

1 Conversation strategy

- Set the scene Books closed. Ask, “What are some home decorating jobs that are probably easier with two people?” Write Ss’ ideas on the board (e.g., painting, wallpapering, rearranging furniture).

A

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss write their list. Ask Ss to call out the jobs they get friends to help them with. Add them to the board.

B 3.06

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Say, “Listen to Kayla and Hector’s conversation. What are they trying to do? Do they succeed? Just listen first. Then listen again and write the answers.”
- Play the recording Books closed. Ss listen only. Replay the recording. Ss listen and write the answers. Have Ss compare their answers in pairs.
- Play the recording again Books open. Ss listen, read along, and review their answers. Check answers with the class [They’re trying to hang a picture on the wall. Yes, they succeed.].

C

- Present Notice Read the information aloud. Say, “This helps speakers avoid unnecessary repetition, and it is a typical way to conduct a conversation when two speakers are working on the same task.” (For more information, see Language Notes at the beginning of this unit.) Have Ss find and underline the examples in the conversation. Ask a S to read the shorter sentences [Hector: Got it? Kayla: Think so. Hector: Ready? Kayla: Want me to fix it? Better? Hector: . . . up a bit on the left. Kayla: Done. Hector: Like it? Kayla: Love it. Hector: Want some coffee? Kayla: Can’t drink it. Got any soda? Hector: Don’t have any. Sorry.].
- Note: Hector tells Kayla to move the picture up on one side. He leaves out the verb — move or push — and just uses the adverb up . . . up a bit on the left. This is also an example of a shorter sentence, although the ellipsis of main verbs is not covered in the lesson.
- Practice Tell Ss to practice the conversation in pairs, taking turns playing each role.

D

- Preview and do the task Say, “Rewrite the conversation with shorter sentences.” Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class: Have two Ss read the conversation aloud. Ask Ss who made different changes to read their version aloud.

Possible answers

A Need this screwdriver? Here.

B Thanks. Can’t get this shelf off the wall.

A Want me to try?

B Thanks. Sure you got time? / Yeah. You have time?

A Yes. OK. Done. Need help with anything else?

B Thank you. No, nothing. Like / Want a drink?

A Love one. Got / Have any green tea?

Extra activity PAIRS / GROUPS

Write on the board:

Rearranging furniture

Having a meal and asking for / offering more

Your idea

Pairs choose one of the situations or think of one of their own. Pairs then write a conversation using shorter sentences. Three pairs of Ss form a group. Each pair presents their conversation to the group. Several pairs present their conversations to the class.

2 Strategy plus

- Present Strategy Plus Say, "There are a number of words and 'sounds' that people use to show that something has gone wrong." (For more information, see Language Notes at the beginning of this unit.) Read aloud the information and examples in Strategy Plus. Say, "These expressions can also be used by listeners as responses to an anecdote someone else tells."
- Tell Ss to look back at the conversation on p. 70 and find examples of the items in Strategy Plus [Ooh! Oops! Ow! Ouch! Shoot! Uh-oh!].
- Present In Conversation Books closed. Write on the board: Ouch!, Yuck!, Uh-oh!, Oops!, Shoot!, Ooh!, Ow! Say, "List the expressions in order from most to least common." Have Ss compare their lists in pairs. Books open. Ask a S to read the list aloud.
- Preview and do the task Say, "Write an expression you can use in each situation." Ask, "What expression is used in situation 1 — dropping a hammer on your toe?" [Ow!] Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class. Have any Ss who chose a different expression tell the class.

Possible answers

1. Ow! / Ouch!
2. Shoot! / Uh-oh!
3. Uh-oh! / Oops! / Whoops! / Shoot!
4. Ooh! / Ow! / Ouch!
5. Uh-oh! / Shoot!
6. Ugh! / Yuck!

- Ask, "Can you think of more situations and expressions you can use?" Have the class brainstorm situations and write them on the board. Call them out one at a time. Quickly call on individual Ss to respond with an appropriate expression.

3 Speaking naturally

A 3.07

- Preview the task Say, "When you leave out pronouns, auxiliary verbs, or be to speak in shorter sentences, the grammar patterns that make the difference between questions and statements are also left out. You can use intonation to show whether you are saying a question or a statement. Notice the stressed syllables in red. This is where the intonation changes." Read the instructions aloud.
- Play the recording Ss listen and repeat.

B 3.08

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud.

- Play the recording Ss listen and punctuate.

- Play the recording again Ss listen again and review their answers. Check answers with the class. Have individual Ss each read a sentence using the correct intonation and say whether a question mark or a period was added.

Answers

1. Better?
2. Got it?
3. Broke a nail.
4. Left a bit.
5. Done.
6. You need help?
7. Got a drink?
8. Ready.

4 Listening and strategies

A 3.09

- Preview the task Say, "Look at the pictures. With a partner, decide what each problem is." [Left to right: The vase is broken. The car door is dented. The barbecue won't light. The basket came off a bicycle / The basket is loose. There's something wrong with the computer.] Read the instructions aloud.
- Play the recording Audio script p. T-173 Ss listen and number the pictures. Check answers with the class.

Answers

- 2 vase 1 basket
4 barbecue 3 computer

B 3.09

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud.
- Play the recording Audio script p. T-173 Ss listen and write Yes or No. Check answers with the class.

Answers

- vase: Yes basket: Yes
barbecue: No computer: No

C

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Give Ss time to write their conversation. Go around the class, and help as needed. Have several pairs present their conversations to the class.

Extra activity PAIRS

Pairs look at the expressions in the Strategy Plus box. For each expression, pairs write three situations when the expression might be used (e.g., Ooh! A pan on the stove is boiling over.). When Ss finish their lists, they join another pair. Ss read aloud a situation from their list. The other pair has to guess the expression to use in that situation.

Sounds right

Tell Ss to turn to Sounds Right on p. 138 of their Student's Books. Have Ss do the task for Unit 7 in class, or assign it for homework. (See the teaching notes on p. T-138.)

Workbook

Assign Workbook pp. 54 and 55. (The answer key begins on p. T-182.)

1 Reading

- Set the scene Read the lesson title aloud. Ask, “Do you remember what thinking outside the box means?” Call on a S to answer [thinking creatively].
- Write on the board: What kinds of situations require you to think outside the box? Get ideas from Ss (e.g., Finding answers to school assignments. Solving a problem at work.). Have Ss work in pairs and discuss the question. Have several pairs report their answers. Write them on the board.

Prereading

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have different Ss read each sentence aloud. Have Ss raise their hands if it is something they do and ask, “Why do you do this? Do you think this is an effective thing to do?” Get ideas from Ss (e.g., T: Why do you ignore the problem and do something else? S: Sometimes if I stop concentrating on a problem or question, the answer just pops into my head later. T: Do you think this is an effective thing to do? S: It’s probably not the most effective thing, but it often works. Eventually, I solve the problem.).

Extra activity PAIRS

Pairs use one of their problems from the Set the Scene task or look back through the unit and choose a problem. They write a short conversation (no more than thirty seconds) to show one of the problem-solving styles. A few pairs act out their conversations for the class. The class tries to guess which problem-solving style the conversation shows.

B

During reading

- Preview the reading Read the title of the article aloud. Say, “Before you read, look at the two classic puzzles.” Have a S read the puzzles aloud. Say, “Work with a partner. Close your books and try to think of solutions. You have five minutes.” When the time is up, ask Ss who thought of a solution to tell the class. Write their ideas on the board. (Do not erase.)
- Books open. Ask, “Which of the ideas in Exercise 1A do you think are recommended in the article?” Have Ss underline their guesses.
- Do the reading Have Ss read the article and make a note of which ideas are recommended. Check answers with the class: Call on Ss to name the ideas. Find out how many Ss guessed every answer correctly.

Answers

Ignore the problem and do something else.

Watch your favorite comedy before you start.

- Ask, “Why are these ideas recommended?” [The problem-solving area of the brain seems to work better when it is relaxed.]
- Check with the class for any vocabulary problems.
- Say, “Relax and chat with a partner about any topic — sports, TV, music and so on.” Give Ss a couple of minutes to talk and then say, “Look at the ‘classic puzzles’ in the box again. Can you think of a solution or a new solution now?” Check ideas with the class. Say, “Turn your book upside-down and read the solutions.” Ss compare the ideas on the board with the solutions.
- Present Reading Tip Say, “The reading tip suggests finding useful collocations. Read the article again and highlight or underline some useful collocations.” Have Ss complete the task. Have Ss call out the collocations they found. Write them on the board [Paragraph 1: tackle an assignment, solve a problem, take an approach; Paragraph 2: concentrate on a task, find a solution; Paragraph 3: focus on a task, burst of activity; Paragraph 6: flash of inspiration].

Extra activity GROUPS

Write these questions on the board: Do you think the article is useful? Do you agree with all of the ideas in the article? What other suggestions do you have for solving problems? Groups discuss the questions and report their ideas to the class (e.g., The ideas seem useful, but I’m not sure they’d work for urgent problems. Sometimes you just have to think fast.).

Extra activity GROUPS

Ss in groups take turns describing a time they had a problem and how they went about solving it. Ss say if, looking back, they would do anything differently. Other Ss add their views and advice, saying what they would do in a similar situation.

C

Postreading

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Have a S read the statements aloud.
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task. When Ss finish, check answers with the class.

Answers

1. F (Paragraph 1)
2. T (Paragraph 3)
3. F (Paragraph 3)
4. F (Paragraph 4)
5. T (Paragraph 5)

D

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Ask different Ss to read each question aloud.

- Do the task Have Ss find and write down the answers to the questions. Then have them compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. Traditional techniques may not be the most effective way to solve problems. (Paragraph 2)
2. Three things that happen in the brain's right temporal lobe are facial recognition, connecting memories, and understanding language. (Paragraph 3)
3. In the moments before you find a solution to a problem there's a burst of high frequency activity in the right temporal lobe. (Paragraph 3)
4. You should watch funny videos to improve your problem-solving ability. (Paragraph 4)
5. You shouldn't focus on the problem. (Paragraph 6)

2 Speaking and writing

A

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss read the paragraph about the problem.
- Do the first two problem-solving steps as a class. Ask, "What's the main problem?" [A serious fire has destroyed the concert hall where the event is supposed to be.] Say, "Step 1 is to state the problem. How can it be stated in a question form?" Call on a S to answer (e.g., Where can we find a venue (place for an event) large enough for all the people who will attend?).
- Say, "Step 2 is to gather accurate information. The paragraph outlines the other information we know. What do we know?" Call on Ss to list the other information [1. We have only five days to find a new location. 2. The Events Management Company could lose millions of dollars. 3. The city is depending on the ceremony to boost its tourism industry.].
- Say, "Now work in groups and try and find a solution. Use the question and the information we gathered in steps 1 and 2. Make notes of your ideas."
- Do the task Have Ss work in groups to brainstorm ideas, examine and try alternatives, and choose a solution.

B

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Explain, "A proposal is a formal plan for something you want to do or have done."
- Present Help Note Read the information aloud. (For more information, see the Language Notes at the beginning of this unit.) After you read each bullet point, call on a S to read aloud the paragraph indicated in the example proposal. Ask Ss for their ideas to complete the second and third paragraphs.

- Do the task Have Ss write their proposals using their ideas from Exercise 2A and the structure outlined in the Help Note.

C

- Preview and do the task Ss work in groups and take turns reading their proposals. Groups decide who has written the best or most interesting proposal. That S reads his or her article to the class.

Extra activity CLASS / GROUPS

The class brainstorms issues or problems that the school or community is currently facing. Write the ideas on the board.

Groups choose an issue or problem from the board and use the three steps in the Help Note to explain it, to offer a solution and its benefits, and to explain how the solution will be implemented.

Free talk

Tell Ss to turn to Free Talk 7 at the back of their Student's Books. Have Ss do the task. (See the teaching notes on p. T-132.)

Workbook

 Assign Workbook pp. 56 and 57. (The answer key begins on p. T-182.)

Vocabulary Notebook

If done for homework

Briefly present the Learning Tip and the task directions. Make sure Ss understand what they need to do.

If done in class

- Present Learning Tip Read the information aloud. Say, "Organizing your vocabulary in this way will help you learn different forms of words. When you learn one word and its basic meaning, you can study other forms that can express the same meaning. This will increase your vocabulary and will give you different ways to express your ideas."

↻ These tasks recycle vocabulary for identifying problems and repairs that need to be done.

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. There's a big dent in the wheel of Mark's mountain bike. It's dented.
2. There's a dark stain on his T-shirt. It's stained.
3. His shorts are torn. There's a tear in them.
4. His sunglasses are scratched. They have a scratch on them.
5. There's a leak in his water bottle. It's leaking.

- Preview the Word Builder task Say, "This Word Builder task will help you learn more ways to describe things that are damaged." Read the instructions aloud.
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task. Tell Ss to use dictionaries to find the correct forms of words. Check answers with the class: Have individual Ss each read an answer aloud.

Answers

1. There's a chip in my coffee mug.
2. There's a crack in the mirror.
3. My car is rusty / rusted.
4. My shower is moldy.

On your own

- Present On Your Own Read the instructions aloud. Ask a S to read the problem in the example.
- Follow-up At the start of the next class, Ss read their problems aloud in small groups. Ss say which problems they think they can fix themselves and which ones they think they should have done by a professional.

Now I can . . .

- Go over the Now I Can items. Put Ss in pairs to give one example each for the first four items. Call on Ss and ask for examples or explanations.
- Have Ss look over the four lessons and identify any areas they want to review.
- Tell Ss to complete the Now I Can items. Ss check (✓) the items they know and put a question mark (?) by items that they are not confident about. Check with individual Ss which areas need review to see if there are general problems to review in class. Help individual Ss as required. Have Ss hand in a piece of paper with their name and a schedule showing what they plan to review and when. Review or reteach these language items in a future class.

Lesson A Reactions

Speaking naturally Reduction of have in past modals

(See Student's Book p. 76.)

The section gives Ss practice in hearing and saying past modal structures. In all the sentences, have is reduced to /əv/.

- Affirmative sentences
The final /d/ in would, should, and could is linked to the /ə/ in reduced have.
She could have apologized. = /kʊdəv/
- Negative sentences
The final /t/ in wouldn't, shouldn't, and couldn't is either deleted and the /n/ is linked to the /ə/ in reduced have, or the final /t/ is linked to the /ə/ in reduced have.
I wouldn't have yelled at him. = /wʊ'nəv/ or /wʊ'dntəv/

Grammar Past modals

(See Student's Book p. 77.)

The lesson teaches the use of past modals to talk hypothetically about the past.

Form

Here are the forms of past modals:

- Statements
subject + modal (+ not) + have + past participle
She should have said no politely.
She shouldn't have lost her temper.
She could have told him not to call again.
- Information questions
information question word + modal + subject + have + past participle?
What would you have done?

- Yes-no questions
modal + subject + have + past participle?
Could she have been more polite?
- Short answers
Yes / No, + subject + modal (not) + have.
Would you have gotten mad?
Yes, I would have.
No, I wouldn't have.

Use

The past modals can all be used to describe hypothetical events and situations in the past.

- Use would / wouldn't have to talk hypothetically about someone's possible or imagined behavior in the past.
I would have lost my temper. What would you have done?
- Use should / shouldn't have to say what the right thing to do was in a situation in the past.
She shouldn't have yelled at him.
- Use could / couldn't have to say what other possibilities there were for a situation.
She could have told him not to call again.

Corpus information Contractions with would

People usually do not contract the modal would in the past modal structure. I would have + past participle is approximately 20 times more common than I'd have + past participle.

Short answers are not very common in the corpus.

Lesson B Emotional intelligence

Vocabulary Emotions and personal traits

(See Student's Book p. 78.)

The section teaches words to describe emotions and personal traits. It concentrates on noun and adjective forms from the same word family, such as confidence — confident.

Grammar Past modals for speculation

(See Student's Book p. 79.)

Ss have already studied modals for speculation. (See Touchstone Student's Book 3, Unit 11, Lesson A.) The lesson teaches the use of past modals must have, could / couldn't have, may have, and might have to speculate about the past, that is, to make guesses about what happened with varying degrees of certainty, or to say what the speaker thinks is possible or logical.

Form

- subject + must / may / might / could + have + past participle
They must have gotten tied up in traffic.
She could have tried to call.
They may / might have had a fight.

Use

- Of all the past modals, must is used to indicate the strongest certainty.
They must have gotten tied up in traffic. (= I bet, or I'm pretty sure that they got tied up in traffic.)
- Could, may, and might are all used to indicate less than 100 percent certainty. Could shows a little more certainty than may and might, and may is a little more certain than might. The negative couldn't have suggests strong certainty.

- Notice the difference in meaning between couldn't have and might / may not have.
She couldn't have called. (= It's not possible that she called.)
She might not have called. (= It's possible she didn't call.)

Corpus information Past modals

Affirmative statements with past modals are much more frequent than negative statements, especially with must and might, where affirmative statements are up to 60 times more frequent than negative ones.

Common errors with past modals

Ss sometimes use the base form of the verb instead of the past participle when using past modals. A past modal is always followed by a past participle (e.g., They could have tried to call. NOT ~~They could have try to call.~~).

Lesson C I had that happen to me.

Conversation strategy Sharing experiences

(See Student's Book p. 80.)

- In general conversation, when people relate anecdotes or talk about their experiences, it is common for the listener to tell a similar or related experience as a way of keeping the conversation going or to show understanding of and engagement in what is being said. The lesson teaches a number of expressions people use to do this.
- Note the slightly different use of causative have in I had that happen to me. Here it is used to mention an experience that happened to the speaker, but which the speaker didn't cause to happen.
- The first four expressions in Notice (I had that happen to me.; That happened to me.; I had a similar experience.; That reminds me (of) . . .) generally introduce similar experiences.
- That's like . . . can introduce people, things, or events.
That's like my dad — he hates the subway.
That's like when you're on the subway, and people won't let you off.
- Speaking of . . ., is generally followed by the topic being discussed — usually a noun — and then a comment or question about a related aspect of the topic.
A It's so rude.
B Speaking of rude people, how about . . . ?

Strategy plus Like

(See Student's Book p. 81.)

- Like has several uses in both conversation and writing; for example, the verb to like, and the expression to be like meaning to be “similar to.” It is also a way to introduce examples.
- Like also has some special uses in informal conversation, which are generally not used in writing or in more formal conversations. These include its use as a “highlighter” to emphasize something (e.g., They were like totally blocking the doors.), to introduce what someone said (e.g., They were like, “What's your problem?”), and to mean “approximately” (e.g., He's like 80 years old.). These three should generally be used only in informal conversations and should not be used too much, as they can annoy some speakers of English.

Corpus information Like

Like is one of the top 15 words in conversation. It is approximately six times more frequent in conversation than in writing.

Lesson D Saying you're sorry

Reading tip

(See Student's Book p. 82.)

The Reading Tip tells Ss to read the subheadings in an article first to see what they say, as they often summarize the points the writer wants to make. Getting a general idea of the scope of an article first can help the reader follow the detail more effectively.

Help note Writing a note of apology

(See Student's Book p. 83.)

The Help Note gives some useful expressions for Ss to use when writing a note of apology:

- I just wanted to say I'm sorry for (not) verb + -ing.*
- I would like to apologize for . . .*
- I feel I should apologize for . . .*
- I promise not to . . . again.*
- It was my fault entirely.*

Behavior

Teach this unit opener page together with Lesson A in one class period.

Introduce the theme of the unit Say, “Every day, people do things or react to situations. Sometimes, they think their reaction was appropriate, but other times, they might look back at something they did and regret it. They might discuss with friends what other possibilities there were for reacting to a situation. What things affect how people react to an event or situation?” Call on a few Ss to answer (e.g., their mood, personality, other things that are happening in their lives). Say, “In this unit, we’ll talk about behavior — that is, people’s actions and reactions. We’ll look at ways people reacted and why they reacted that way and what they think about their reaction now, if they regret it.”

In Unit 8, you learn how to . . .

- Unit aims Read the lesson headings and key unit aims aloud. Tell Ss to listen and read along.

Extra activity CLASS

Say, “Look through Unit 8 at the conversations. People are talking about their reactions to different situations. What situations are they talking about? What topics are they discussing?” [Lesson A: a phone call, someone who tries to sell you something on the phone; Lesson B: standing outside a movie theater; why friends are late for a movie; Lesson C: rude behavior; how people are sometimes rude in public places, like on subways]

Before you begin . . .

- Introduce the reactions Have Ss cover Before You Begin. Say, “How do you think the people in each of these pictures feel? Why do you think they are feeling this way? Discuss with a partner.” Then get ideas from Ss [Possible answers: 1. happy; 2. angry, frustrated; 3. upset, angry; 4. sulky, upset].
- Tell Ss to look at Before You Begin. Read the questions aloud. Help with new vocabulary as needed.

↻ Recycle grammar This task recycles causative make (see Touchstone Student’s Book 3, Unit 4, Lesson A) and conditional sentences with if to talk about imaginary situations in the present or future (see Touchstone Student’s Book 3, Unit 8, Lesson A). Use the following example to model the task: What would make me lose my temper? I would lose my temper if I waited all day for a repair person to come to my place, and then the person never showed up. That would make me lose my temper. I’d get mad for sure.

- Say, “Ask and answer the questions in Before You Begin with a partner.” When Ss finish, have several Ss tell the class about a situation that could make their partner react in each way listed in Before You Begin.

Extra activity PAIRS / GROUPS

Pairs choose one of the pictures and write a paragraph describing the events that came before and after the picture. Pairs read the paragraph in a group. The group chooses a paragraph to read to the class.

Lesson A Reactions

1 Getting started

- Set the scene Write on the board: telemarketer. Ask the Ss if they know what a telemarketer is [someone who calls you at home to try to sell you something]. Ask, “Do you ever get calls from telemarketers? How often do you get them? What time of day do they usually call? How do you respond?” Have a short class discussion.

Culture note

In the United States, people can limit their calls from telemarketers. Individuals can put their phone numbers on a national registry, and commercial telemarketers are not allowed to call their numbers.

A

- Preview the task Read the instructions and the example response aloud. Have Ss call out the various calls they might get (e.g., calls from: politicians / political parties, charities, salespeople). Ask a few Ss to report what they say.

B 3.10

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Books closed. Say, “Listen. Why did Amelia lose her temper? How did she behave toward the caller? Write your answers.”
- Play the recording Ss listen and write.
- Play the recording again Books open. Ss listen, read along, and review their answers. Check for vocabulary questions. Check answers with the class [He was the fourth caller, and it was after 10:00 at night. She yelled at him, and then she hung up on him.].

Figure
it out

C

- Preview the task Say, “This activity asks you to write what Amelia says, and what you think about it.” Ask, “Do you think Amelia regrets losing her temper?” [Yes] Ask, “What does she say about losing her temper?” Write on the board: I shouldn't have lost my temper. Ask, “What does she say she should or could have done?” Write on the board: I could have asked him to put me on their "do not call" list. Ask, “What modals do you see in these sentences?” [shouldn't, could] Ask, “What verb follows the modals?” [have] Ask, “What's the main verb in the first sentence?” [lost] Ask, “And in the second?” [asked] Ask, “What form of the verbs are these?” [past participle]

2 Speaking naturally

A 3.11

- Preview the task Say, “The pronunciation of have with past modals is the same as, for example, the pronunciation of have with the present perfect. It is reduced. When you reduce have, what word does it sound like? [of] Notice that have and its contraction, 've are in maroon to indicate that they are unstressed.” Read the instructions aloud.
- Play the recording Ss listen and repeat.

- Write on the board: I would ____ Ask, “What do you think you would have done?” Elicit responses, and write one on the board (e.g., I would have been more polite). Ask, “What's the modal in this sentence?” [would] Ask, “What verbs come after would?” [have + past participle]
- Say, “We can use modals to talk about what we think was the right or wrong thing to do in a situation in the past and imagine our own reactions.”
- Read the instructions aloud. Explain that in sentences 4–6, Ss are giving their own reactions.
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class: Call on a few Ss to read their answers for each sentence.

Possible answers

1. I shouldn't have lost my temper.
2. I could have apologized. / I could have asked him to put me on their “do not call” list.
3. What would you have done?
- 4.–6. Answers will vary.

- Focus on the form and the use Write on the board: hypothetical. Ask, “What does hypothetical mean?” [imaginary, not real] Say, “You learned how to talk about hypothetical situations in the present or future by using if + simple past and would. You can talk about hypothetical situations in the past with a past modal.” Tell Ss to look at the sentences on the board. Ask, “What's the pattern for past modals?” [modal + have + past participle]
- Write on the board:
would have could have should have
- Say, “You can use I would have to imagine your behavior in the past. Use I could have to say, ‘This was a possibility, but I didn't do it.’ I should have means, ‘This was a good idea, but I didn't do it.’”
- Try it out Say, “Review what Amelia told her friends. Find and underline the verb phrases with past modals.” Have Ss complete the task. Check answers with the class [would have been (more polite); would have just said no and then hung up; couldn't have done (much else); shouldn't have lost (my temper); would you have done; could have apologized; could have asked (him to put me); should have done].

About you

B

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have two Ss read the example conversation. As Ss complete the task, go around the class listening for the reduction of have. If necessary, replay Exercise 2A, and have Ss repeat.

Extra activity PAIRS

Pairs take turns reading Amelia's story to each other, being sure to reduce have.

3 Grammar

3.12

- Present the grammar chart Play the recording. Ss listen and repeat.
- Understand the grammar Have Ss look at the first set of questions and answers in the chart. Say, "Look at the information questions with would have, should have, and could have. What's the pattern for these information questions with past modals?" Write the answer on the board [information question word + would / should / could + subject + have + past participle].
- Have Ss look at the answers to the information questions. Ask, "What's the pattern for affirmative statements?" [subject + would / should / could + have + past participle] Write the pattern on the board. Ask, "What's the pattern for negative answers?" [subject + would / should / could + not + have + past participle] Write the pattern on the board.
- Have Ss look at the column on the right. Say, "Look at the yes-no questions. What's the pattern for yes-no questions with past modals?" [would / could / should + subject + have + past participle] Write the pattern on the board.
- Have Ss look at the answers to the yes-no questions. Ask, "What's the pattern for short answers?" [Yes / No, + subject + would / could / should + have] Write the pattern on the board. (For more information, see Language Notes at the beginning of this unit.)
- Present In Conversation Books closed. Write on the board:
I would have been mad.
I'd have been mad.
- Say, "The contraction of I would in the phrase I would have is I'd have. Which form with would on the board do you think is more common in spoken English with past modals? Write your guess." Books open. Ask a S to read the information aloud.

4 Talk about it

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud.
- Have Ss complete the task. For each situation, the person telling the story decides which suggestion would have been the best thing to do.
- Follow-up Each group chooses one of the situations they talked about and tells the class what happened and how the person reacted. A few Ss say what they think the person could have done differently.

About you

A

- Preview the task Say, "Read the situations and complete the questions. Then write your own answers." Point out that the first question has been completed. Ask a S to read the completed question aloud. Ask a few Ss how they would complete the answer.
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task. Check answers with the class: Ask individual Ss to each read a situation and its questions. Have a few Ss read their answers.

Answers

1. Should he have thrown it back in? What else could he have done?
2. What other excuses could she have made? Should she have told the truth?
3. What could Dan have said? What should the driver have done?
4. Should she have hung up? How else could she have reacted?
5. Should he have lost his temper? How else could he have responded?
6. Could she have offered to clean it up? Should she have apologized?

B

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions and the example aloud. Remind Ss to use the reduced form of have in their answers. Have Ss complete the task.

Recycle a conversation strategy Remind Ss that they can use just to strengthen or soften their suggestions (see Unit 6, Lesson C). To model, say, "For example, Amelia should have just said she wasn't interested."

- Follow-up For each situation, ask Ss who agreed to raise their hands and tell their solutions. Then ask a few pairs to report other possible solutions.

Extra practice

Tell Ss to turn to Extra Practice 8A on p. 147 of their Student's Books. Have Ss do the tasks in class, or assign them for homework. (See the teaching notes on p. T-147.)

Extra activity GROUPS

Write on the board:

The waiter spilled coffee on your jacket.

Your brother crashed your computer.

Your neighbor's dog dug up your garden.

A friend told a few people one of your secrets.

Each group member imagines these things happened to him or her and writes a sentence saying what they would have done. For each situation, group members take turns reading their sentence aloud. Group members see how many of them would have done the same thing.

Workbook

Assign Workbook pp. 58 and 59. (The answer key begins on p. T-182.)

Lesson B Emotional intelligence

1 Building vocabulary

- Set the scene Read the lesson title aloud. Ask a S to read aloud the explanation of emotional intelligence at the top of the article.

A

- Preview the task Have Ss read the article. Ask Ss to call out any vocabulary they do not understand. Have other Ss try to provide definitions. Help with definitions as needed. Say, “Read the article again. Are these statements true for you? If they are, check Agree. If they aren’t, check Disagree.”
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task. Check answers with the class: Have individual Ss each read a statement aloud. After each statement, have Ss who agree with the statement raise their hands. Tell Ss to turn their book upside down. Ask a S to read the quiz results information aloud.

About you

B

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Ask a S to read the example. Ask, “How does this answer compare to the statement in the chart?” [The answer includes a frequency adverb (usually) and a “softening” expression (pretty). They make the answer less definite.]
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task. When Ss finish, have a few Ss report a fact about their partner.

Word sort

C

- Preview the task Say, “Complete the chart with nouns and adjectives from the article.”
- Do the task Have Ss complete the chart and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class: Have individual Ss read a noun and the related adjective.

Answers

Noun	Adjective	Noun	Adjective
aggression	aggressive	intelligence	intelligent anger	angry	jealousy	jealous
confidence	confident	motivation	motivated depression	depressed	realism	realistic determination	determined	sadness	sad
flexibility	flexible	self-discipline	self-disciplined guilt	guilty	sensitivity	sensitive happiness	happy	shame	ashamed
honesty	honest	sympathy	sympathetic

Recycle a conversation strategy The task recycles softening comments (see Touchstone Student’s Book 3, Unit 7, Lesson C). Ask, “If you’re using a word in the chart to describe some behavior that’s negative, what expressions can you use to soften it?” Write Ss’ suggestions on the board (e.g., kind of, sort of, a bit, in a way).

- Say, “Now choose five words from the chart, and make true sentences about people you know.” Tell Ss not to use real names with negative comments. Tell them to use expressions such as, ‘A friend of mine’ or ‘my cousin’ instead.
- Have Ss complete the task. Have pairs take turns reading their sentences to their partner.

Extra activity PAIRS

Pairs each choose two of their sentences from Exercise 1C and tell a short anecdote to illustrate the personality trait (e.g., My parents aren’t flexible at all. Most of my friends can stay out until midnight on the weekends, but I have to be home by 11:00. I’ve asked and asked, but they won’t change their minds.).

Vocabulary notebook

Tell Ss to turn to Vocabulary Notebook on p. 84 of their Student’s Books. Have Ss do the task in class, or assign it for homework. (See the teaching notes on p. T-84.)

2 Building language

- Set the scene Have Ss look at the picture. Ask, “How do these people look to you?” Have a few Ss respond (e.g., upset, worried). Say, “Paul and Ella are waiting for friends who are late for a movie. Think of a time you were late to meet someone.” Ask a few Ss, “What was the reason?”

A 3.13

- Preview the task Books closed. Say, “What guesses do Paul and Ella make about why their friends are late? Just listen the first time. Then listen again and write their guesses.”
- Play the recording Ss listen only. Replay the recording. Ss listen and write.
- Play the recording again Books open. Ss listen, read along, and review their answers. Check answers with the class [Paul thinks his friends have forgotten. Or they have had a fight. Or Alexis has forgotten her cell phone. Ella thinks they have gotten tied up in traffic.].

B

- Preview the task Say, “Look at the conversation again. Why do Paul and Ella think Alexis and Sam are late?” Ask a S to read the reasons aloud. Write them on the board, underlined as follows:

They might have forgotten.

They must have gotten tied up in traffic.

They might have had another one of their fights.

- Ask, “Does Ella think it’s possible that Alexis tried to call?” [yes] Ask, “What exactly does Ella say?” Write the answer on the board, underlined as follows:
So she could have tried to call and not gotten through.
- Ask, “What kind of verbs do Paul and Ella use to make their guesses about the past?” [past modals] Ask, “Which past modals do they use?” [must have, might have, could have, may (not) have]
- Read the instructions aloud.
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class: Have a few Ss read their completed sentence.

Possible answers

1. They must not have found a place to park.
2. They could have decided to stay home instead.
3. They may have gone to the wrong theater.

- Focus on the use Say, “The past modals must have, may have, might have, and could have can be used to speculate, or guess, about the past.”

3 Grammar

3.14

- Present the grammar chart Play the recording. Ss listen and repeat.
- Understand the grammar Have Ss look at the chart. Ask a S to read the first example sentence. Say, “When you use must have to speculate about the past, you feel pretty certain.”
- Ask a S to read the second example sentence. Say, “Could have states a possibility or a guess.”
- Ask a S to read the third example sentence. Say, “When you use may have or might have to speculate, you’re also stating a possibility, but the guess sounds less certain.”
- Have Ss look at the fourth example sentence. Say, “When you use may/might not have remembered, it means it’s possible the person didn’t remember.” Point out the bottom of the chart. Read the example sentence aloud. Say, “Use couldn’t have when you feel very strongly that something did not happen in the past.” (For more information, see Language Notes at the beginning of this unit.)
- Present Common Errors Read the information aloud.
- Present In Conversation Read the information aloud.

A

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class: Have pairs each read a situation and its possible explanations.

Answers

1. have forgotten, have gotten
2. not have received, have died
3. have lost it, not have finished
4. not have seen, have had
5. have broken, not have remembered

B

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss complete the task. For each situation, elicit other explanations from the class.

Extra practice

Tell Ss to turn to Extra Practice 8B on p. 147 of their Student’s Books. Have Ss do the tasks in class, or assign them for homework. (See the teaching notes on p. T-147.)

Sounds right

Tell Ss to turn to Sounds Right on p. 138 of their Student’s Books. Have Ss do the task for Unit 8 in class, or assign it for homework. (See the teaching notes on p. T-138.)

Workbook

 Assign Workbook pp. 60 and 61. (The answer key begins on p. T-182.)

Lesson C I had that happen to me.

↔ Lesson C recycles expressions with get.

1 Conversation strategy

- Set the scene Have Ss look at the picture. Ask, “Why do these people look annoyed?” [The man bumped into / pushed / shoved them when he got off the elevator. He probably didn’t apologize.] Ask, “Would you be annoyed? Would you say anything?” Elicit reactions from the class.

A

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Ss call out their answers. (Note: If there is no subway in the city / town, ask about buses.)

B 3.15

- Preview the task Books closed. If block the door wasn’t mentioned in Exercise 1A, check that Ss understand the phrase. Say, “Listen to Mara and Hal’s conversation. What annoys them? Listen and write the answers.”
- Play the recording Ss listen and write. Have Ss compare their answers in pairs.
- Play the recording again Ss listen, read along, and review their answer. Check the answer with the class [Mara and Hal get annoyed when people are rude and pushy or block the doors.].

C

- Present Notice Read the information aloud. Say, “Listeners often respond by relating similar anecdotes or experiences. This keeps the conversation going and shows that the listener understands.” (For more information, see Language Notes at the beginning of this unit.) Ask a S to read the examples aloud. Have Ss find the examples in the conversation. Check answers with the class [Mara: Yeah, and speaking of rude people, how about the people who stand right in front of the subway doors and won’t let you get off?; Hal: Oh, I had that happen to me just last night.; Mara: That reminds me of the time I got on the subway with my grandfather, and all these people pushed ahead of him to get seats.].
- Practice Tell Ss to practice the conversation in pairs, taking turns playing each role.

D

- Preview the task Say, “Match the comments and the responses. Remember to read all the comments and all the responses before you begin.”
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class: Ask individual Ss to each call out the letter of the correct response.

Answers

1. b 2. d 3. a 4. c

- Practice Have Ss practice the comments and responses in pairs and then switch roles and practice again.

Extra activity PAIRS

Ss work together to write a new response to each comment in Exercise 1D. Pairs then read the comments and their responses aloud to another pair. Pairs see if they have any similar responses.

About you

E

- Preview the task Read aloud the instructions and the example. Ask if anyone in the class has a parking experience to tell the class. Elicit a few examples. If no S has a story to relate, tell one of your own. Tell Ss to think of experiences for the places and situations in Exercise 1D. Call on a few Ss for ideas for each situation.
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task. Go around the class, and help as needed.
- Follow-up A few Ss report their unpleasant experiences to the class.

Extra activity GROUPS

Ss take turns telling one of their unpleasant experiences to the group. Group members respond by saying what they would have done or what they think the speaker should have done.

2 Strategy plus

- Present Strategy Plus Tell Ss to look back at the conversation on p. 80 and find examples of like [Hal: He acted like we were in his way.; Mara: I get so annoyed with people like that.; Hal: Like, I get upset when people push on the subway.; These guys were like totally blocking the doors.; And when I tried to get past them, they were like, "What's your problem?"; Isn't he like 80 years old?].
- Read aloud the information and the examples in Strategy Plus. (For more information, see Language Notes at the beginning of this unit.) Have Ss identify which uses of like should never be used in formal writing. [The ones with an asterisk.]
- Present In Conversation Books closed. Write on the board: Is like in the top 15, 20, or 25 words? Say, "Write your guess." Books open. Have a S read the information aloud.

3.16

- Preview and do the task Say, "Read the comment below. Use like to replace the underlined words, and add other words you need." Have Ss complete the task.
- Play the recording Audio script p. T-174 Have Ss listen, read along, and check their answers. Check answers with the class.

Answers

One of my friends is kind of sensitive. Like, she thinks I'm criticizing her all the time when I'm just — like — trying to make a suggestion. She's like, "Stop telling me what to do all the time." I guess I'm just more decisive than she is. I know I annoy her sometimes, but otherwise we get along really well. I guess we've been friends for like ten years. It's funny. In other ways we're just like each other.

3 Listening and strategies

A 3.17

- Preview and do the task Say, "Listen to two people talk about their experiences with taxicabs. Number the incidents 1 to 5 in the order that they talk about them." Check the following vocabulary from the conversation. Write on the board:
*1. to fiddle with a. the cost to take a bus, taxi, plane, etc.
2. fare b. to change direction suddenly
3. to swerve c. to touch something to adjust it*
- Read expressions 1 to 3 aloud and say, "You'll hear these in the conversation. Can you guess the correct definition for each one?" Have the class call out their guesses [1. c; 2. a; 3. b].
- Play the recording Audio script p. T-174 Say, "First, just listen. Then listen again and number the experiences." Ss number the experiences and compare their answers with a partner.
- Play the recording again Say, "Listen again and check your answers." Check answers with the class.

Answers

- 3 The cab driver wanted a tip.
- 5 The cab driver scratched another vehicle.
- 4 The cab driver nearly caused an accident.
- 2 The cab driver got lost.
- 1 The cab driver was having an argument on his phone.

B 3.17

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Say, "When you answer the questions, just write brief notes to help you remember. You can write a full sentence later."
- Play the recording Audio script p. T-174 Ss listen and write. Have Ss compare their answers with a partner.

- Play the recording again Ss listen and review their answers. Play the recording again if required. Have Ss write complete answers. Check answers with the class.

Possible answers

- on the train (A woman was having a loud personal conversation on her cell phone.)
- from a party (The cab driver said they had given him the wrong directions. / The cab driver was lost.)
- drive too fast (They speed down those small side streets.)
- hit a car (The cab driver scratched another car and just kept driving.)

Extra activity PAIRS

Pairs write a conversation similar to Mara and Hal's. Ss can use ideas from the lesson or their own experiences. Pairs present their conversation to another pair.

About you

C

- Preview and do the task Ask, "Have you had any similar experiences with taxicabs? How about with cyclists or pedestrians who don't obey traffic rules? Discuss with a partner." Have Ss complete the task.
- Follow-up Ask a few Ss to share their experiences with the class.

Free talk

Tell Ss to turn to Free Talk 8 at the back of their Student's Books. Have Ss do the task. (See the teaching notes on p. T-133.)

Workbook

Assign Workbook pp. 62 and 63. (The answer key begins on p. T-182.)

Lesson D Saying you're sorry

1 Reading

- Set the scene Read the lesson title aloud. Ask “How easy is it for you to say you're sorry about something?” Get ideas from Ss (e.g., It's pretty easy for me to apologize. If I've done something wrong, I take responsibility; It's hard for me to apologize. I don't like to be wrong.).

A

Prereading

- Preview the task Say, “Think of a time when you apologized to someone. How did you do it? Elicit answers from the class (e.g., I just said I was sorry. I emailed an apology. I apologized and explained the circumstances. I bought the person a little gift.). Ask, “What advice do you have for someone making an apology?” Read the two examples aloud. Say, “Make a list of ‘dos and don'ts.’”
- Do the task Have Ss work with a partner to make their list. When Ss finish, call on a few to share some of the ideas on their lists (e.g., Do it in person. Don't do it by email or on a social networking site.). Write ideas on the board.

B

During reading

- Preview the reading Read the title of the article aloud. Ask, “What do you think the article will be about?” Elicit ideas from the class (e.g., If you don't apologize or if you apologize badly, it can hurt or destroy a friendship.). Read the instructions aloud.
- Do the reading Have Ss read the article and then compare the ideas in each paragraph to the ideas on the board. Have Ss call out any ideas that are the same, and circle them.
- Ask, “Do you do the things the article advises?” Get ideas from Ss (e.g., I use good timing. I always apologize for things right away.).
- Have Ss skim through the article and underline any words they don't know. Have Ss call out the words and get other Ss to explain the meanings.

C

Postreading

- Present Reading Tip Read the tip aloud. Ask, “What idea and advice do you think is in the paragraph with the subheading, 1. Apologize right away?” Write the answer on the board (e.g., Don't wait too long.).
- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Ask a S to read the subheadings aloud. Check that Ss understand the meanings of the words or expressions in each one. Have Ss complete the task and compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. b. Apologize right away.
2. e. Admit you did something wrong.
3. d. Acknowledge any damage caused.
4. a. Offer to make things right.
5. c. Promise to act differently in the future.

Extra activity PAIRS

Pairs write four questions about the information in the article (e.g., Why don't we see how our actions make others feel? What's the first step in apologizing? Why is it important to show your regret?). Each pair then joins another pair. Pairs take turns quizzing each other. Tell Ss not to look in their books. Find out which pair got the most answers right.

Extra activity CLASS / PAIRS

The class brainstorms a list of situations that require apologies (e.g., posting photos on the Internet without permission, not repaying a loan, sharing someone else's private information.). Pairs choose a situation and role-play an apology. S1 apologizes to S2 using the ideas from the article. Ss then switch roles. After Ss finish practicing their conversations, call on a few Ss to act them out for the class.

D

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Say, "The expressions to use are listed in the same order as they appear in the article. When you come to an expression that you think has a similar meaning, try it in the sentence."
- Do the task Have Ss write the questions using expressions from the article and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class. Have Ss read aloud each question.

Answers

1. preoccupied
2. deep down
3. awkward
4. get in the way of
5. make this up to you

Extra activity PAIRS

Ss work together to write a response to each comment in Exercise 1D. Pairs read the comments and responses to another pair. Pairs see if they have any similar responses.

www.irLanguage.com

2 Speaking and listening

- Set the scene Ask a S to read aloud the list of reasons to apologize. Ask, "Are you ever guilty of doing any of these things?" Call on a few Ss to answer (e.g., Yes. I've completely forgotten that I was supposed to meet someone somewhere.).

A 3.18

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud.
- Play the recording Audio script p. T-174 Ss listen and match.
- Play the recording again Ss listen and review their answers. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. b
2. a
3. d
4. e

B 3.18

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud.
- Play the recording Audio script p. T-174 Ss listen and write their answers. Pause the recording after each conversation to give the Ss time to write.

- Play the recording again Ss listen and review their answers. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. Alex: Yes. He said he was sorry for being late and putting her to extra trouble, and he said it wouldn't happen again.
2. Nora: No. She didn't apologize right away, and she was reluctant to pay her friend for the unused ticket.
3. Gregory: No. He doesn't sound like he believes he did anything wrong. / He wasn't very sincere.
4. Adriana: Yes. She apologized even though it wasn't all her fault.

About you

C

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have pairs decide on an effective apology for each situation.
- Follow-up For each situation, pairs tell the class about their apology. The class decides if it is effective.

3 Writing

A

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss do the task. Have Ss call out the underlined expressions.

Answers

Dear Angela,

I just wanted to say that I'm truly sorry for getting into an argument with John at your party last night. The argument was totally my fault. You warned me before the party that I shouldn't discuss politics with him, and I did it anyway! I could see that you were very upset, and I feel really terrible about it. I promise never to get into an argument at your house again, and I will always listen to your advice in the future. I just hope that you can forgive me for this.

- Ask, "Does Jason's email follow the advice from the article on page 82? Raise your hand if you think it does." Count the raised hands. [Yes: Jason's email follows the advice.]

- Present Help Note Read the apology expressions aloud. Have Ss complete them with things they need to apologize for. Write these steps on the board to help guide them:

1. Express your apology.
2. Accept responsibility.
3. State exactly what you did wrong.
4. Repair the damage and promise not to do it again.

About you

B

- Preview and do the task Say, "Think of a time when you apologized or should have apologized to someone. Write an email to apologize." Have Ss complete the task.
- Say, "Read your classmates' emails. Are the apologies effective?" Ask a few Ss to choose an apology note that they consider both effective and sincere and read it to the class. Have Ss share their notes in groups. When Ss finish, find the most sincere apologies.

Workbook

- Assign Workbook pp. 64 and 65. (The answer key begins on p. T-182.)

Vocabulary Notebook

If done for homework

Briefly present the Learning Tip and the task directions. Make sure Ss understand what they need to do.

If done in class

- Present Learning Tip Read the information aloud. Say, “Real-life associations and connections help make vocabulary real in a way that makes it easier to remember.”

- Present In Conversation Books closed. Write on the board: happy, sad, unhappy. Ask Ss to guess the one that people use least frequently. Books open. Have Ss check their guess. Ask them whether they are surprised by the information.

↻ These tasks recycle nouns and adjectives for talking about emotions and personality traits.

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss complete the task. Check answers with the class: Have individual Ss each read a completed statement aloud.

Answers

Answers will vary.

2

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Ask a S to read the example answer aloud. Have Ss complete the task. Check answers with the class: Have individual Ss each read a sentence aloud.

Answers

Answers will vary.

3

- Preview the Word Builder task Say, “This Word Builder task introduces new expressions for describing emotions and behavior.”
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task. Check answers with the class: Have individual Ss each read an answer.

Possible answers

be / feel down in the dumps: be depressed / sad

be full of yourself: be selfish / arrogant be / turn green with envy: be jealous be heartless: be cruel / mean

be set on doing something: be determined go nuts / bananas: go crazy / wild / be / get excited

On your own

- Present On Your Own Read the instructions aloud. Point out the example in the picture.
- Follow-up At the start of the next class, Ss form small groups and read their notes about people.

Now I can . . .

- Go over the Now I Can items. Put Ss in pairs to give one example each for the first six items. Call on Ss and ask for examples or explanations.
- Have Ss look over the four lessons and identify any areas they want to review.
- Tell Ss to complete the Now I Can items. Ss check (✓) the items they know and put a question mark (?) by items that they are not confident about. Check with individual Ss which areas need review to see if there are general problems to review in class. Help individual Ss as required. Have Ss hand in a piece of paper with their name and a schedule showing what they plan to review and when. Review or reteach these language items in a future class.

Lesson A Possessions

Grammar Reported speech

(See Student's Book p. 87.)

The lesson teaches how to report things people have said without quoting the other person directly. Reported speech is sometimes called "indirect speech." The lesson focuses on the reporting of statements; the next lesson covers questions.

Form

In reported speech, the verb tense often, but not always, "shifts back." In addition, subject and object pronouns and possessive adjectives may change.

- Simple present → simple past

Michael: "My goal is to destroy all my possessions."

He said (that) his goal was to destroy all his possessions.

Michael: "I want to bury them underground."

He said (that) he wanted to bury them underground.

- Simple past → past perfect

Michael: "My father gave me a sheepskin coat."

He said (that) his father had given him a sheepskin coat.

- Present perfect → past perfect

Michael: "I haven't found the right shopping center."

He said (that) he hadn't found the right shopping center.

- Present perfect continuous → past perfect continuous

Michael: "I have been making an inventory."

He said (that) he had been making an inventory.

- Modals

The modals will, can, and may often change to would, could, and might.

Ginny: "I can't throw anything away."

She said (that) she couldn't throw anything away.

Use

- When people report things another person has said, there are differences between the original or direct speech and the reported or indirect speech. These differences occur in verb tense, modals, pronouns, and possessive adjectives.

- References to time and place may need to change if the original speaker's and the reporter's time and place are different; for example, "I'm working here tomorrow." → She said she was working there the next day. (This point is not taught in the lesson.)

- The verb tense in the reported speech is often different from the tense in the direct speech. It often "shifts back." (See Form above.) However, when people report information that is still true, or if the time is the same for the person reporting as for the original speaker, the verb tense is often the same in the reported speech and the direct speech.

Someone explained to me that this is "performance art."

For this reason, simple past verbs in direct speech are often reported as simple past in reported speech.

- The main reporting verbs used in this lesson are say, tell, and explain. Notice the different complementation patterns: tell requires an indirect object; say and explain do not.

say / explain (that); say / explain + to + object (that)

He said (that) his goal was to destroy all his possessions.

Someone explained to me that this is performance art.

tell + object (that)

Someone at work told me (that) her closets were full.

NOT: Someone at work told (that) her closets were full.

Corpus information That

After he said and she said, the word that can be used before the reported speech, but it is optional. For example, reporting forms such as He said he . . . and She said she . . . are about five times more frequent than He said that he . . . or She said that she . . .

Common errors with reporting verbs

Ss often use an indirect object after said or may omit the indirect object after told. (She said (that) she couldn't throw things away. NOT She said me (that) she couldn't throw things away. AND She told me (that) she couldn't throw things away. NOT She told (that) she couldn't throw things away.)

Lesson B Money

Vocabulary Money and money management

(See Student's Book p. 88.)

The lesson teaches some common expressions for talking about money and financial matters, focusing on verb phrases, such as stick to a budget and get into / out of debt.

Grammar Reported questions

(See Student's Book p. 89.)

The lesson teaches how to report questions people have asked. It reviews the indirect question word order taught in Touchstone Student's Book 3, Unit 9, Lesson A, and the backshifting of tenses taught in Lesson A of this unit.

Form

- Yes-no* questions

The question within a statement in yes-no questions begins with if or whether.

Researcher: "Are you a spender or a saver?"

She asked me if / whether I was a spender or a saver.

- Information questions
The question within a statement in information questions begins with a question word.

Researcher: "How do you usually pay for things?"

She asked me how I usually paid for things.

Use

- Reported or indirect questions can be introduced by verbs such as ask and want to know, but not usually say or tell. Ask can be followed by an indirect object, but it is optional.
She asked (me) whether I was a spender or a saver.
- Direct questions generally have question word order.
auxiliary verb + subject + main verb + object?
Have you used a credit card before?
- Reported or indirect questions have statement word order.
subject + auxiliary verb + main verb + object
She asked if I had used a credit card before.

- The chart on p. 89 of the Student's Book shows the reported questions with the tense backshift. However, these reported questions could also have the same verb tense as the direct questions because the information is still true.

She asked me how I usually paid for things.

OR She asked me how I usually pay for things.

Corpus information

Common errors with reported questions

Ss sometimes use question word order in reported questions. Statement word order, not question word order, should be used. (She asked how I usually paid for things NOT She asked how did I usually pay for things.)

www.irLanguage.com

Lesson C He was telling me . . .

Conversation strategy Reporting the content of a conversation

(See Student's Book p. 90.)

The lesson shows another aspect of reported speech with past continuous reporting verbs. In conversation, people often use the past continuous to report things people have said. The use of the past continuous takes the focus from the actual words someone used and puts it on the general theme. It is used either to focus on a new topic or to report important news that the speaker has heard.

Strategy plus Quoting information

(See Student's Book p. 91.)

This section introduces expressions for quoting identified and unidentified sources of information.

- To identify the source of information, you can use the source name with verbs such as say and tell: As Max was saying I was telling me . . . Slightly more formal is the expression According to (e.g., According to Max . . ., According to the news on TV last night . . .). The expression should not be used with me to mean "in my opinion": NOT — According to me, it's not right. This is a common mistake of learners.
- When speakers do not know or do not want to identify the source of information, they can use the adverbs apparently and, increasingly, evidently (which also has the meaning of "obviously" or "according to the evidence"). Also used are phrases such as I was told, I ('ve) heard, or the more general They say, which means "People in general say." In formal writing, the passive might be more likely, as in It is said that . . .

Corpus information Apparently and evidently

Apparently is in the top 1,000 words in conversation, and evidently is in the top 5,000.

Speaking naturally Finished and unfinished ideas

(See Student's Book p. 91.)

- The lesson reviews how intonation can show whether the speaker has completed telling his or her idea. This was introduced in saying lists in Touchstone Student's Book 2, Unit 2, Lesson B, and reviewed in Touchstone Student's Book 3, Unit 8, Lesson B, for long questions. Here, it is reviewed in statements and in the context of telling news.
- When the intonation falls in a statement, it can signal that the speaker has finished telling an idea. It suggests the idea is complete. When it rises, it can show that the speaker will continue and say more.

Lesson D Do I really need that?

Reading tip

(See Student's Book p. 92.)

The Reading Tip tells Ss that feature articles and blogs sometimes "speak" to the reader, but that they shouldn't do this in academic writing.

Help note Reporting verbs for direct and reported speech

(See Student's Book p. 93.)

The Help Note gives Ss some common verbs that can be used to report speech, especially in writing. The verbs can all be used without an object, with the exception of tell.

- Saying and explaining Say
Tell (me)
Explain
- Remembering
Remember
Recall
- Adding and finishing
Add Conclude

Material world

Teach this unit opener page together with Lesson A in one class period.

Introduce the theme of the unit Write on the board: Material world. Say, “When people say we live in a material world, they’re talking about the importance that people put on money and their possessions — the things that they can buy. In this unit, we’ll talk about whether or not it’s important to have a lot of possessions, and about how different people manage the money they have.”

In this unit, you learn how to . . .

- Unit aims Read the lesson headings and key unit aims aloud. Tell Ss to listen and read along.

Extra activity PAIRS

مرجع زبان ایرانیان

Ss look through the unit and find an activity they are looking forward to doing. Ss report back to class.

Before you begin . . .

- Introduce the possessions Say, “Look at picture 1. What kind of things do you think these people like to buy?” [athletic shoes] Say, “Work with a partner. What kinds of possessions are represented in the other three pictures?” Ask individual Ss to give the answers [Picture 2: electronic gadgets; Picture 3: cars and sports equipment; Picture 4: expensive jewelry].
- Tell Ss to look at Before You Begin. Ask, “What are your most important possessions? They might or might not be expensive.” Call on several Ss (e.g., my car, a stuffed animal I’ve had since childhood, my cell phone, a ring from my grandfather).

↻ Recycle a conversation strategy This part of the task recycles expressions for responding to other people’s opinions to show that someone has a valid argument (see Unit 5, Lesson C). Have Ss form small groups. Ask, “Is having a lot of possessions a good thing or a bad thing? Discuss with your group. Use expressions to show you see the other group members’ points of view” (e.g., S1: I think having a lot of possessions is a bad thing. A lot of people have huge debts because of all the things they buy. S2: That’s a good point, but that won’t happen if you’re careful.).

- Have groups discuss the question and then report the group’s opinion(s) to the class. Find out if most groups think having a lot of possessions is a good thing or a bad thing.

- Read aloud the third question in Before You Begin. Say, “If you describe someone as materialistic, it has a negative meaning. It means that you are critical of them for thinking that money and material possessions are extremely important.” Have groups discuss the question and then report to the class.

Extra activity PAIRS

Pairs make a list of the five possessions that they think are most important to the average family. Have one pair read their list to the class. Assign a S to write the items on the board and to put a check (✓) beside an item each time it is mentioned by a pair. The class makes a final list of the five most important possessions.

Extra activity GROUPS

Groups discuss the questions, “What makes people materialistic? Why do we want to have so many possessions?” Groups prepare a list of reasons (e.g., Advertisers make us feel like we have to have them. We want to have the same things as our friends.). Groups present their ideas to the class.

1 Getting started

- Set the scene Ask, “When you think of creating art, what do you think of? Elicit ideas (e.g., painting, drawing, photography). Ask, “Have you ever thought of destroying something as an art form?” Get opinions from the class.

A

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions and the example aloud. Tell Ss to make their lists. Ask Ss to call out the art from their list. Write it on the board. Find out if any other Ss know the art. If so, do they like it?

B

- Preview the task Say, “This man is Michael Landy, an artist. Read what he says about one of his projects.”
- Do the task Have Ss read the article. Tell Ss to underline any new vocabulary and then call out the words they do not know. Write them on the board. Say, “Read the article again and use the context to help you guess the meaning of the new words.” For each word on the board, ask the class to help provide a definition.
- Ask, “What is the project?” [His project is to destroy all his possessions.]

↻ Recycle grammar This task recycles talking about imaginary situations. (See Touchstone Student’s Book 3, Unit 8, Lesson A.) Ask a few Ss, “Could you do the same thing with all your possessions? What are some things you have that you could never destroy? What are some things you have that you could never destroy? Discuss with a partner.” When Ss finish, have a few Ss tell the class their answers. Then say, “At the beginning of the unit, you talked about your most important possessions. What would you do if something happened to them? Discuss the question with a partner.” Have a few Ss tell the class their answers to the question.

C 3.19

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Say, “Make a note of any facts Ginny doesn’t get right.”
- Play the recording Have Ss cover the text of what Ginny says. Ss listen and make notes of any incorrect facts. Have Ss compare their answers in pairs.
- Play the recording again Tell Ss to uncover the text. Ss listen again, read along, and review their answers. Check answers with the class [He wants to bury everything underground in a shopping center, not in a parking lot. He owns 7,006 items, not 17,000.].
- Ask, “Do you agree with her opinion?” Have a short class discussion.

D

- Preview the task Say, “Read Michael Landy’s first sentence again. Then read how Ginny reports it. What happened to the verb?” [is changed to was; the present tense changed to the past tense]
- Say, “Read Michael Landy’s second sentence again. Then read how Ginny reports it in lines 3 and 4. What happened to the present perfect continuous verb?” [It became past perfect continuous.] “How about the simple present verb — comes?” [It became the simple past — came]

- Read the instructions aloud. Say, “Use the article and what Ginny says about it to complete the sentences.”
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class. Have individual Ss each read an answer.

Answers

1. Landy said his goal was to destroy all his possessions.
2. He explained some things were hard to part with.
3. He said his inventory came to 7,006 items.
4. He said he had made a decision to bury them, but he hadn’t found the right place yet.

- Focus on the form and the use Say, “There is a difference between quoting a person and reporting what a person said. When Ginny talks about the article, she often reports what Michael Landy said. When you report what someone says without quoting the person exactly or directly, you are using reported speech.”
- Write on the board and underline the verbs in the sentences on the board as shown:
 1. Michael: “I have been making an inventory of everything I own, and it comes to 7,006 items.”
 2. Ginny: “He explained that he had been making a list of everything he owned, and that it came to 7,006 items!”
- Say, “When you use reported speech, the verb tense that the original speaker used often moves or shifts back. For example, the present changes to the past. The past changes to past perfect. When you use reported speech, the pronouns may also change.” Point out that Ginny had to change I to he.
- Try it out Ask Ss to find all the examples in Ginny’s article where she reports what Michael Landy said. Have Ss call out the sentences. Write them on the board. Have Ss convert them back to direct quotes. [Ginny: He said his goal was to destroy all his possessions and that he wanted to bury them in a parking lot! (“My goal is to destroy all my possessions. I want to bury them in a parking lot.”); Ginny: He explained that he had been making a list of everything he owned and that it came to 17,000 items! (“I have been making a list of everything I own. It comes to 17,000 items!”); Ginny: And that he had made an artistic decision to shred and granulate everything. (“I have made an artistic decision to shred and granulate everything.”) Ginny: Someone explained to me that this is ‘performance art’. (“This is ‘performance art.’”)]

Extra activity PAIRS

Pairs have five minutes to write a list of questions they would like to ask Michael Landy (e.g., After you destroyed your things, what did you wear? How do you manage without a phone?). Several pairs read their questions to the class.

2 Grammar

3.20

- Present the grammar chart Play the recording. Ss listen and repeat.
- Understand the grammar Have Ss look at the column on the left. Say, "When you repeat someone's words exactly as they were said, you're quoting them directly. In written English, direct speech has quotation marks."
- Have Ss look at the column on the right. Say, "Reported speech is common in conversation because speakers often don't remember people's exact words, or they may just want to give a summary of what someone said." Write on the board: He said (that) . . . Say, "Said is called a 'reporting verb.' What other reporting verb did Ginny use?" [explain] Say, "Tell is also a common reporting verb. If you use tell, it must be followed by an indirect object — that is, you must say who was told. For example, He told me that . . . or She told us that . . ." Point out that that after a reporting verb is optional.
- Say, "Look at the first three sentences in each column. What happened to the possessive adjectives and pronouns?" [My changed to his; I changed to he; Me changed to him.] Say, "When you change direct speech to reported speech, pay attention to other words that may have to change."
- Remind Ss that when they use reported speech, the verb tense often shifts back. Write on the board: Direct Speech, Reported Speech. Have Ss write the names of the verb forms in the sets of sentences. Write the answers on the board:

Direct Speech		Reported Speech
simple present (be)	→	simple past (be)
simple present	→	simple past
simple past	→	past perfect
present perfect	→	past perfect
present perfect continuous	→	past perfect continuous

- Say, "The modals can and will also change. Can changes to could and will changes to would."
- Read aloud the information at the bottom of the chart. Say, "The verb tense can remain the same if the information is still true, for example when something is repeated soon after it was said" (e.g., S1: What did the teacher just say? S2: She said we don't have any homework.). (For more information, see Language Notes at the beginning of this unit.)
- Preview the task Say, "Here are some things people said about their possessions. Complete the sentences to report what they said. Read all the sentences before you begin." Check for any vocabulary questions.
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. wasn't materialistic; had very few possessions.
 2. were all full, but she couldn't stop buying new clothes.
 3. was always throwing things away; had thrown out an antique vase by mistake.
 4. were in debt because they had spent too much money on stuff for their apartment.
 5. had a huge collection of comic books that he just didn't have room for.
 6. would have to have a yard sale to get rid of all the junk they'd been buying at yard sales.
 7. never threw things away. He just left things in the garage.
- Ask, "Do you know any people like these? Tell a partner." Ss discuss with a partner. Ss report to the class.

Extra practice

Tell Ss to turn to Extra Practice 9A on p. 148 of their Student's Books. Have Ss do the tasks in class, or assign them for homework. (See the teaching notes on p. T-148.)

3 Speaking and listening

About you

A

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Tell Ss to read the questions. Check that Ss understand the word thrifty [careful with how money is spent]. Have Ss complete the task.
- Follow-up For each question, elicit answers from a few Ss [Answers will vary].

B 3.21

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Check that Ss understand piggy bank and impulse buyer. Tell Ss to just listen first.
- Play the recording Audio script p. T-175 Ss listen only. Replay the recording. Ss listen again and make notes.
- Play the recording again Ss listen, add to, and review their answers. Have Ss work in pairs, putting the details together into complete sentences. Have a S read the example aloud. Tell Ss to use reported speech in their answers. Check answers with the class.

Possible answers

1. Howard said that he wasn't interested in gadgets at all. He said he didn't even have a smartphone until recently.
2. He said that he was pretty thrifty. He compares prices and shops around.
3. He said he had some artwork, gifts from friends, and souvenirs and he would be really upset if anything happened to them. Other things he wouldn't care about.
4. He said that he had lost his watch in Puerto Rico. He said that it had been his father's watch and that he was upset.
5. He said that he didn't like a lot of clutter, and he wasn't a collector. He said he didn't buy things he didn't need.

Workbook

Assign Workbook pp. 66 and 67. (The answer key begins on p. T-182.)

1 Building vocabulary

- Set the scene Books closed. Write on the board: Managing money. Ask a few Ss, “Who manages the money in your house?” Ask, “What are some things people do to manage their money successfully?” Write Ss’ answers on the board (e.g., They make a budget. They don’t buy things they can’t afford. They save up money to buy things they want.).

A 3.22

- Preview the task Books open. Say, “Listen and read the questionnaire from a money magazine. First, listen, read along, and circle any new vocabulary.”
- Play the recording Ss listen, read along, and circle. Have Ss call out the vocabulary they need help with. Write the words on the board. Classmates help with vocabulary they know. Help with remaining vocabulary.
- Do the task Say, “This time, answer the questions. Check Yes or No.”
- Play the recording Ss listen and check (✓) the boxes.
- Play the recording again Ss listen again and review their choices. Have Ss tally their answers. Have a S read aloud the scoring information below the questionnaire. Ask, “Who had 7 to 12 Yes answers? Raise your hand.” Ask, “Do you think you are good at managing your money?” Have several Ss give ideas. Ask, “Is anyone surprised by their result?”
- Say, “Look at the ideas we brainstormed at the beginning of the lesson about how to manage money. Which ideas are in the questionnaire?” As Ss call out any matching items, circle them on the board.
- Say, “Work in pairs and take turns asking and answering the questions in the questionnaire. Say more than yes or no when you answer.”

Extra activity PAIRS

Partners give each other advice for their no answers from the questionnaire (e.g., S1: I don’t pay my bills on time. S2: You should look at the dates of the bills you get every month and decide on a certain day of the month to pay them all.). Several Ss tell one of the pieces of advice they received.

Word sort

B

- Preview the task Say, “What are your money habits? Complete the chart with sentences. Use ideas from the questionnaire, and add your own ideas or habits.” Ask a S to read the example aloud.
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs.

Answers

Answers will vary.

- Follow-up Several Ss read their lists aloud.

Extra vocabulary MONEY MANAGEMENT

Present or have Ss suggest extra vocabulary for talking about money management, such as to balance a checkbook, to declare bankruptcy, chip card, debit card, to endorse a check, to make a deposit / withdrawal, to take out / get / apply for a mortgage, online banking, overdraft, spending limit, to withdraw or take money from an account.

Extra activity PAIRS

Ss work together to try and brainstorm the expressions they have learned in the lesson, without looking back at their books. Ss see how many they can remember, and then check against the questionnaire.

Vocabulary notebook

Tell Ss to turn to Vocabulary Notebook on p. 94 of their Student’s Books. Have Ss do the task in class, or assign it for homework. (See the teaching notes on p. T-94.)

2 Building language

- Set the scene Ask, "Has a credit card company ever asked you to apply for a credit card?" Ask, "How do some credit card companies contact people?" [by mail, by phone, over the Internet, in person in stores and malls]

A 3.23

- Preview the task Say, "John is telling his mother about a conversation he had with a market researcher. Listen. What did the market researcher ask John? Underline what she asked."
- Play the recording Ss listen, read along, and underline. Check answers with the class [The market researcher asked John if he was a spender or a saver, how he usually paid for things, how many times he had used a credit card in the last month, if he wanted to apply for one, and if a parent could sign his application.].
- Practice Have Ss practice the conversation in pairs, taking turns playing each role.

- Preview the task Say, "Look at the conversation. Find an information question within a sentence that starts with 'She asked . . .'" Write it on the board: Anyway, then she asked me how many times I'd used a credit card in the past month. Say, "Now find a yes-no question within a sentence that starts with 'She asked.'" Write it on the board: She asked if I wanted to apply for one! or She asked if a parent could sign it. Read the instructions aloud. Say, "Some of the reported questions in the conversation start with 'She wanted to know.'"

- Do the task Have Ss complete the task and then compare answers in pairs. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. She asked me if / whether I was a regular saver.
 2. She asked me if / whether I wanted a credit card.
 3. She asked me how many times I had spent too much.
 4. She asked me if / whether I could sign this / a form.
- Focus on the form and the use Say, "Besides reporting statements that another person has made, you can also report questions." Underline the questions within sentences (indirect questions) already on the board as shown: Anyway, then she asked me how many times I'd used a credit card in the past month. She asked if I wanted to apply for one. Say, "The underlined sections are questions within sentences." Remind Ss that the verb comes after the subject instead of before it in such indirect questions. Say, "In these sentences, John is reporting a question that someone else asked him."

3 Grammar

3.24

- Present the grammar chart Play the recording. Ss listen and repeat.
- Understand the grammar Have Ss look at the two columns of questions. Say, "Reported questions have the same word order as statements, and they don't use do, does, or did. The verb often shifts back in time as for reported statements." (For more information, see Language Notes at the beginning of this unit.)
- Have Ss look at the column for reported questions. Ask, "What two words can introduce a reported yes-no question?" [if, whether]
- Present Common Errors Read the information aloud.

A

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions and the first question aloud. Ask a S to read the example answer aloud. Have Ss complete the task. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. She asked me what my main source of income was.
2. She asked me if / whether I was relaxed about. . . .
3. She asked me if / whether I usually paid in cash, or if / whether I often charged things. . . .
4. She asked me if / whether I could stick to. . . .
5. She asked me if / whether I had taken anything. . . .
6. She asked me how many times I had borrowed. . . .
7. She asked me how much money I could spend. . . .
8. She asked me if / whether I had any loans and if / whether I was paying them off. . . .

Note: "Wanted to know" can be used in place of "asked" for all six reported questions, and the tense can shift back or not.

About you

B

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Ask a S to read the example answer aloud. Have Ss complete the task. Check answers with the class: For each question, ask a few Ss to give their answers.

Extra activity PAIRS

Pairs prepare a monthly budget for a family of four. Brainstorm items to be included (e.g., rent, food, utility bills, clothes). Choose an average monthly income as a starting point. Several pairs present their budgets to the class.

Extra practice

Tell Ss to turn to Extra Practice 9B on p. 148 of their Student's Books. Have Ss do the tasks in class, or assign them for homework. (See the teaching notes on p. T-148.)

Sounds right

Tell Ss to turn to Sounds Right on p. 139 of their Student's Books. Have Ss do the task for Unit 9 in class, or assign it for homework. (See the teaching notes on p. T-139.)

Workbook

 Assign Workbook pp. 68 and 69. (The answer key begins on p. T-182.)

Lesson C He was telling me . . .

↻ Lesson C recycles reported speech and the past continuous.

1 Conversation strategy

- Set the scene Ask, “What are some reasons that people repeat conversations they’ve had with other people?” Get Ss’ opinions (e.g., to pass along instructions, to pass along a helpful tip, to give information about other people).

A

- Preview and do the task Ask, “What does the expression ‘Money can’t buy happiness’ mean?” Get ideas from the class [Just because you have money, it doesn’t mean you’ll be happy.]. Ask, “Do you think it’s true?” Have a short class discussion.

B 3.25

- Preview the task Books closed. Say, “Listen to Lucy and Omar’s conversation. What does Lucy know about Jeff and Lee? Listen and make notes of the answers.”
- Play the recording Ss listen and make notes. Have Ss compare their answers in pairs.
- Play the recording again Books open. Ss listen, read along, and review their answers. Check answers with the class [They aren’t getting along very well. They’ve only been married six months, and they’re having money problems. They paid for the diamond ring and honeymoon on a credit card. Lee didn’t know they were in debt.].

C

- Present Notice Read the information and the example aloud. Add, “People often use past continuous reporting verbs to report personal news.” (For more information, see Language Notes at the beginning of this unit.) Have Ss find more examples in the conversation. Ask individual Ss to each read an example from the conversation aloud [Lucy: Max was telling me that Lee had no idea they were in debt.; Yeah, that’s what Max was saying.; He went to see them, and he was saying how much stuff they have in their house.].
- Practice Tell Ss to practice the conversation in pairs, taking turns playing each role.

D

- Preview the task Say, “Imagine people you know said the things below. Rewrite the sentences to report what they said. Use past continuous reporting verbs.” Read the first item aloud. Ask a S to read the example answer. Ask Ss how they would complete the second part [She was saying she wants a little two-seater sports car.].
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task and compare their answers with a partner. Check answers with the class: For each item, ask a S to read his or her answer.

Answers

1. A friend of mine was telling me she’s saving up to buy a car. She was saying that she wants a little two-seater sports car.
2. My classmate was telling me that his fiancée and he are going to have a small wedding because they decided big weddings are a waste of money. He was saying that they’d rather have a nice honeymoon, so they’ve set aside some money for a trip to Sydney.
3. My neighbors were telling me they want to put in a new kitchen, but they’re going to have to take out a loan to pay for it. They were saying that it’s expensive.
4. My co-worker was telling me he’s thinking of leaving his job and going back to school. He was saying that he wants to become a teacher because he thinks he’ll be happier in that kind of job than he is now.

About you

E

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss complete the task.
- Follow-up Ask a few Ss to report the story their partner told them.

Extra activity PAIRS

Pairs choose one of the situations from Exercise 1D and write a conversation similar to Lucy and Omar’s. Pairs present their conversation to another pair.

2 Strategy plus

- Present Strategy Plus Tell Ss to look back at the conversation on p. 90. Have Ss find expressions that Lucy uses to identify the source of her information. Ask a S to read them aloud [I ran into Max last week. He was telling me . . . ; Max was telling me . . . ; Yeah, that's what Max was saying.; He went to see them, and he was saying . . . ; But as he said, . . .]. Have Ss find expressions that Lucy and Omar use that do not identify the source of their information [Lucy: Apparently, . . . ; Omar: But I heard . . . ; Or so someone was telling me; Lucy: . . . evidently . . .]. (Note: Omar says, "I heard . . .", not identifying his source. Adding "Or so someone was telling me," seem less vague.) (For more information, see Language Notes at the beginning of this Unit.)
- Read the information and the examples in Strategy Plus.
- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Read the first discussion question aloud, and ask two Ss to read the example conversation aloud.
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task. Go around the class, and help as needed.
- Follow-up Read each of the discussion questions aloud one at a time. For each one, a few pairs tell the class their answer.

3 Speaking naturally

A 3.26

- Preview the task Say, "Sometimes when you're speaking, you need to pause for a moment. You might be deciding what to say next, or you might be waiting for a reaction. You can use intonation to let the listener know if your idea is finished or not." Read the instructions aloud.
- Play the recording Ss listen and repeat.

B 3.27

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud.
- Play the recording Ss listen and write F or U. (Note: Answers will be checked following Exercise 3C.)

C 3.28

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud.
- Play the recording Audio script p. T-176 Ss listen and review their answers to Exercise 3B. Check answers with the class: Have individual Ss each give an answer.

Answers

1. F 2. U 3. U 4. F 5. U 6. F

- Ask, "Do you think Dan's situation is risky?" Have a short discussion. End the discussion by having the Ss vote yes or no.

About you

D

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Tell Ss to discuss the questions. Ask a S to read the example aloud. As they discuss, tell them to make two lists of jobs: ones they think pay well and ones they think do not pay well.
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task. Go around the class, and help as needed.
- Follow-up Groups report their answers to the first two questions. Then a member of each group writes their job lists on the board. Ss decide which jobs the class thinks are the highest-paid and the lowest-paid.

Extra activity PAIRS

Write on the board:

My friend has a well-paying job that he / she doesn't enjoy.

My friend really enjoys his / her job, but it doesn't pay very well.

Pairs write a conversation discussing the pros and cons of one of the situations on the board. Remind Ss to include both of the conversation strategies from the lesson. Several pairs of Ss present their conversations to the class. The class votes on which situation they think is preferable.

Workbook

 Assign Workbook pp. 70 and 71. (The answer key begins on p. T-182.)

Lesson D Do I really need that?

1 Reading

- Set the scene Read the lesson title aloud. Write on the board: hoarder, impulse buyer. Ask, “What is a hoarder?” Elicit ideas (e.g., A person who has trouble throwing things away, usually because the person thinks the item will be useful again some day.). Ask, “What is an impulse buyer?” Elicit ideas (e.g., Someone who buys something just because he or she wants it at the time.).

A

Prereading

- Preview and do the task Ask, “Have you ever bought things that you don’t use?” Have Ss raise their hands if they have. Ask a few Ss who raised their hands, “What are they?” Call on Ss for ideas (e.g., I once bought an exercise bike to use indoors in bad weather. I bought an expensive dress, but I never go to places that are fancy enough to wear it.). Say, “Make a list of things you’ve bought, but don’t use.” Have Ss complete the task.
- Have Ss call out the items from their list.

B

During reading

- Present Reading Tip Read the tip aloud. Say, “This is useful with this type of writing because it engages the reader on a personal level as a real conversation would. Just make sure you don’t do it in a formal essay.”
- Preview and do the reading Read the instructions aloud. Say, “Before you read carefully, quickly look through the article. Write the answers to the questions.” When Ss finish, have a few Ss read their answers [Her apartment was full of things she didn’t use. Her friend, Willow, helped her get rid of it. She donated, recycled, trashed (threw away), and sold things.].
- Do the reading again Ask, “What kinds of items are mentioned? [clothes, books, electronics, and small appliances (coffee pots)]. Ask, “What is clutter?” [Things that take up a lot of space, but that are not used.]

Culture note

Hoarding is a serious problem for some people. In addition to things like clothes, books, and memorabilia, some people save years’ worth of things like old newspapers, magazines, elastic bands, or even string. It becomes almost impossible to walk through any room in their home. When people reach this stage, they may need psychological counseling.

C

Postreading

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Ask a S to read the sentences aloud.
- Do the task Have Ss choose true or false. Say, “Write the sentences that support your answers.” Have Ss complete the task. Check answers with the class: individual Ss read their answer aloud.

Answers

1. False. (Apparently, we only use 20% of the stuff we own on a regular basis.)
 2. True. (. . . they were full of junk that I “could never live without.”)
 3. False. (I had closets overflowing with clothes I didn’t wear . . .)
 4. True. (She said that I should go through all of my belongings and make an inventory.)
 5. False. (She then told me I needed to give away or sell anything I had more than one of . . .)
 6. True. (She explained that she keeps her home clutter-free by getting rid of anything that she hasn’t worn or used in the last year. She added that I could keep things that had sentimental value, as long as they were really important and special.)
 7. True. (Decluttering has been an enormous task, it has felt great to reclaim the space in my home again.)
 8. True. (The cash I earned helped me pay off my credit card debt — something I had, no doubt, because I had bought too much stuff in the first place.)
- Follow-up Ss read the article again and underline any new words. As Ss call out the words, write them on the board. Ss explain the meanings of the words they know and look the remaining ones up in dictionaries.

Extra activity INDIVIDUALS / GROUPS

Ss each make a list of things they have, but don’t really need or want anymore. (Each item should include a basic description.)

Ss form a group and share their lists. Group members offer to “buy” the items they want. If more than one group member wants the same item, they can try to outbid each other. Group members then decide which of the remaining items are still usable enough to donate, which can be recycled, and which must be put in the trash. Groups report their results to the class.

D

- Preview and do the task Say, "Find expressions in the article that are similar to the underlined expressions in the questions." Have Ss complete the task. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. on a regular basis
2. crammed with
3. attached to
4. sentimental value
5. declutter; task

2 Listening and writing

A  3.29

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud.
- Play the recording Audio script p. T-176 Ss listen and write the things the people could not live without. Check answers with the class.
- Play the recording again Ss listen and write one reason for each person. Pause the recording between speakers to give Ss time to write. Replay the recording. Ss listen and review their answers. Have Ss write the answers as complete sentences. Check answers with the class.

Possible answers

1. He couldn't live without his car because it's so convenient / public transportation isn't very good.
2. She couldn't live without her gym membership because exercise is important to her / she uses her gym pass almost every day. / Exercise is good for reducing your stress levels and she has a stressful job.
3. She couldn't live without fresh flowers because her mother used to buy them / she loves their smell and color / they remind her of when she was little / it's good to treat yourself to something special.
4. He couldn't live without his music collection because music makes him happy / life wouldn't be fun without music.

B  3.30

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Say, "You will hear opinions from the listening in Exercise 2A. Listen and then write your response."
- Play the recording Audio script p. T-176 Ss listen and write their responses. Pause the recording between after each speaker to give Ss time to write.
- Play the recording again Ss review their responses.
- Follow-up Ss work in pairs and discuss their responses. Tell them to note how their opinions are the same or different. Ss report some of their discussions (e.g., I told Maria that I thought cars weren't convenient. They're always breaking down. But Maria said...).

C

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Say, "Make a chart like the one in Exercise 2A." Have Ss walk around the class, ask the questions, and make notes

Say, "Now ask and answer the questions with a partner. Use the expressions you found in the article."

Extra activity GROUPS / CLASS

Ss answer the question "Do you think it is a good idea to sell or get rid of most of your possessions at regular intervals?" Ss who answer yes and those who answer no form different groups and think of reasons to support their opinions. Groups share their ideas with the class.

of the answers they find interesting and the names of Ss who gave them.

 Recycle grammar Have Ss report the most interesting responses to the class using reported speech.

D

- Present Help Note Read the information aloud.
- Preview the task Say, "Read the Help note and the article below and underline the verbs used for reporting speech." Have Ss read and underline. Note the usual American English pronunciation of the name Mieko /miyéykow/ or /miyékw/. Have Ss complete the task. Check answers with the class.

Answers

One of my classmates, Mieko, said she couldn't live without her violin. "It's my most valuable possession," she explained. She got her first violin at the age of 6. "I was so excited," she recalled. She took lessons in school and practiced every day. She is now an accomplished violinist. "I couldn't live without it," she concluded.

- Call on Ss to give information from Exercise 2C using the reporting verbs, and write them on the board (e.g., Keiko explained that she couldn't live without her cell phone. She remembered that she got her first one from her father.). Work with the class to rewrite the sentences as direct speech (e.g., Keiko explained, "I can't live without my cell phone." She remembered, "I got my first one from my father.").
- Do the task Say, "Now write an article about your classmates. Use both direct speech and reported speech." Have Ss complete the task.

E

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss read their partner's article. Ss report one thing their partner couldn't live without. They also report the most interesting or unusual thing.

Free talk

Tell Ss to turn to Free Talk 9 at the back of their Student's Books. Have Ss do the task. (See the teaching notes on p. T-134.)

Workbook

 Assign Workbook pp. 72 and 73. (The answer key begins on p. T-182.)

Vocabulary Notebook

If done for homework

Briefly present the Learning Tip and the task directions. Make sure Ss understand what they need to do.

If done in class

- Present Learning Tip Read the information and the example aloud. Say, "When you see vocabulary about money or money management, notice the words that go together, for example, verbs and nouns such as take out a loan."

- Present In Conversation Books closed. Ask Ss to work in pairs and list verbs people commonly use with the word money. Books open. Have a S read the information.

🔄 These tasks recycle vocabulary for talking about money.

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss complete the task. Check answers with the class.

Answers

make ~~a credit card~~

apply for ~~a bill~~

open ~~a debt~~

pay off ~~a budget~~

invest in ~~loans~~

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss complete the task. Check answers with the class.

Possible answers

verb + noun

get / give / receive an allowance

open / close / have / put money (in) a bank account

pay / get a bill

create / make / plan / follow / have / stick to a budget

pay / carry / spend / use cash

get / ask (for) a discount earn / make / spend / save / invest / set aside / waste money

adjective + noun

weekly / monthly / regular allowance

savings / checking / personal / joint account

weekly / monthly / annual / household budget

weekly / living / household expense

full-time / part-time / high-paid / low-paid job

- Preview the Word Builder task Say, "This Word Builder task will help you learn and remember expressions for talking about money." Read the instructions aloud.
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task. Check answers with the class: Ask a few Ss to each read a sentence.

Answers

credit limit: maximum amount a bank will allow someone to borrow or put on a credit card due date: the date something is expected to happen interest rate: percentage that a bank charges / pays on an amount of money nest egg: money kept / saved for a special purpose overdrawn account: bank account which has more money taken out than was originally there

Example sentences will vary.

On your own

- Present On Your Own Read the instructions aloud. Ask, "What are the woman's financial goals?" Have Ss answer (e.g., She'd like to have a house and car).
- Follow-up At the start of the next class, Ss work in small groups and read their financial goals.

Now I can . . .

- Go over the Now I Can items. Put Ss in pairs to give one example each for the first six items. Call on Ss and ask for examples or explanations.
- Have Ss look over the four lessons and identify any areas they want to review.
- Tell Ss to complete the Now I Can items. Ss check (✓) the items they know and put a question mark (?) by items that they are not confident about. Check with individual Ss which areas need review to see if there are general problems to review in class. Help individual Ss as required. Have Ss hand in a piece of paper with their name and a schedule showing what they plan to review and when. Review or reteach these language items in a future class.

Checkpoint Units 7–9

Before you begin the Checkpoint, write on the board: Grammar, Vocabulary, Conversation Strategies. Tell Ss to think about Units 7–9 and write down which area they are most sure about. Say each area, and ask Ss to raise their hands for the one they wrote.

1 What would you have done?

↻ This task recycles past modals to talk hypothetically and speculate. It also recycles vocabulary for possessions and money, and the conversation strategies of quoting sources of information and sharing similar experiences.

- Set the scene Tell Ss to look at the picture. Say, “This is Andrew. What do you think his attitude towards money is?” Get ideas from Ss (e.g., He looks like he’s pretty materialistic. It seems like he might be pretty irresponsible about his spending.).

A

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions and the example aloud. Have Ss complete the story. Tell Ss to use each expression only once. Check answers with the class: Have individual Ss each read a sentence aloud.

Answers

When Andrew was growing up, he was careful with his money. He got an allowance every week from his parents, and because he wanted to go to college, he set aside money every month. He opened a savings account that paid good interest, so his savings grew. When he started college, he didn’t have much money, but he had a budget and stuck to it. He kept track of the money he spent, and when he bought things, he always paid in cash.

But then, Andrew won $1 million in a lottery, and everything changed. He didn’t invest money in stocks and bonds. Instead, he went on a spending spree. He bought a house, a car, designer clothes, and a laptop, and he spent a lot on travel and entertainment. Soon he had nothing left, so he applied for a credit card and started charging his everyday expenses. To pay his college tuition fees, he took out a loan, which he is still paying off. Andrew has a good job now, but he still hasn’t gotten out of debt.

B

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have individual Ss each read a question aloud. Have Ss read the story again and write answers to the questions. Then have Ss work in pairs and discuss their ideas.
- Follow-up Read each question aloud, and call on a few Ss to tell the class about their ideas and reasons.

C

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss read the story again and underline the main events.
- Do the task Have Ss work in pairs and take turns retelling the story and responding with similar experiences.
- Follow-up A few Ss share examples of similar experiences. Ask, “Does the story remind you of someone you know?” Get ideas from Ss (e.g., The story sort of reminds me of my cousin. She didn’t win the lottery, but she did get into a lot of debt.).

Extra activity INDIVIDUALS / GROUPS

Ss choose six expressions from the box in Exercise 1A and write a paragraph about themselves. Ss form groups and take turns reading their paragraphs. Groups come up with a list of attitudes about money they agree on, and report back to the class (e.g., We all think it’s important to open a savings account.).

2 How many words can you remember?

↻ This task recycles the vocabulary for emotions and personal qualities.

- Preview and do the task Ask, “How many words to describe personal qualities or emotions can you remember?” Read aloud the instructions and the examples in the chart. Have Ss complete the charts with their own ideas.
- Have Ss compare their answers in pairs. Then have several Ss take turns calling out their words for each category. Tell Ss to add new words to their charts.

Possible answers

Nouns: honesty, aggression, anger, confidence, depression, determination, flexibility, guilt, happiness, intelligence, jealousy, motivation, realism, sadness, self-discipline, sensitivity, shame, sympathy

Adjectives: happy, aggressive, angry, ashamed, confident, decisive, depressed, determined, flexible, guilty, honest, impulsive, intelligent, jealous, motivated, realistic, sad, self-disciplined, sensitive, sympathetic

- Read the example questions aloud. Tell Ss to write at least four questions using the words from their charts.
- Model the activity by asking a few Ss the example questions. Then ask follow-up questions. Have Ss work in pairs and take turns asking and answering their questions.
- Follow-up Pairs report to the class about a few things they have in common (e.g., We both think honesty is very important. We’re always honest with people.).

3 So what were they saying?

↻ This task recycles the vocabulary for household problems, causative get and have, and need + passive infinitive and need + verb + -ing. It also recycles reported speech and questions, and the conversation strategy of reporting the content of conversations.

A

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions and the example aloud. Have Ss complete the sentences. Check answers with the class: Call on individual Ss to read their answers aloud, and ask if other Ss have different answers.

Answers

1. John: "I went rock climbing, and I got this really big hole / tear in my backpack. It needs to be sewn / sewing. . . ."
2. Alice: "My kitchen faucet keeps dripping, and I can't turn it off. It needs to be fixed / fixing, but I can't afford to get a plumber to do it right now. . . ."
3. Robert: "I have this big oil stain on my good jacket. I have to have it cleaned before my job interview next week. . . ."
4. Maria: "My watch has been running slow. I've never had the battery changed, so it probably needs to be replaced / replacing. . . ."
5. Hilary: "I had a car accident, and one of my doors got a big dent in it. I've been looking for a place to get it fixed. . . ."

- Follow-up Ss report similar experiences.

B

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions and the example aloud. Have Ss write the reported sentences.

Check answers with the class: Call on a S to read an item in Exercise 3A and another S to read their reported sentences.

Possible answers

1. John was saying that he got a hole in his backpack when he went rock climbing. He said that it needed to be sewn / sewing, and then he asked if I was good at sewing!
2. Alice was saying that her kitchen faucet kept dripping and that she couldn't turn it off. She said that it needed to be fixed / fixing, but that she couldn't afford to get a plumber right then. She asked me if I could take a look at it.
3. Robert was saying that he has a big stain on his jacket. He said that he has / had to have it cleaned before his job interview next week, and he wanted to know which dry cleaner had / has the fastest service.
4. Maria was telling me that her watch had been running slow. She said she'd never had the battery changed, so it probably needed to be replaced / replacing. She wanted to know how much a new battery would cost.
5. Hilary was saying that she'd had a car accident and one of her doors had gotten a big dent in it. She said she'd been looking for a place to get it fixed, and she asked me who had fixed my car after my accident.

Extra activity INDIVIDUALS / PAIRS

Ss look back at Units 7–9 and write one question about a topic from each unit (e.g., Unit 7: Have you ever gotten a friend to fix something for you?). Ss work in pairs and take turns asking and answering the questions. Ss then switch partners and report the things they discussed with their first partners.

4 Want some help?

↻ This task recycles the conversation strategies of speaking informally in "shorter sentences" and using expressions such as Oops! and Uh-oh!

A

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions and the example aloud. Have Ss do the task. Check answers with the class: Call on pairs to each read a conversation aloud, and ask if other Ss have different answers.

Possible answers

1. A Ow! I just got an electric shock. I should get that iron fixed.
B Ooh! I bet that hurt. Are you OK?
2. A Shoot! My computer just crashed again. I can't understand it. It keeps happening.
B Uh-oh! Maybe you have a virus. Do you want me to look at it?
3. A Ooh! I'm hungry. Do you want a snack?
B Sure. Let's see. Do you want some scrambled eggs?

A Ugh! / Yuck! I can't stand eggs.

B Oops! I just dropped them. Oh, well, never mind.

4. A Shoot! I forgot to hand in my homework today.

B Uh-oh! Will your teacher be mad?

A Probably. Ugh, look, it's all messed up. And oh yuck. There's chewing gum stuck to it.

- Practice Tell Ss to practice the conversations in pairs, taking turns playing each role.

B

- Preview and do the task Books closed. Write the first conversation from Exercise 4A on the board. Say, "Work in pairs. Rewrite this conversation with shorter sentences." When Ss finish, have them open their books and compare their versions with the example in Exercise 4B.
- Have pairs rewrite the other conversations with shorter sentences and practice them. Tell them to try and continue their conversations.
- Follow-up A few pairs present their conversations to the class.

Lesson A The rise to fame

Grammar Talking hypothetically about the past

(See Student's Book p. 99.)

The lesson teaches Ss how to use conditional sentences with if clauses (with verbs in the past perfect) and past modals in the main clause to talk hypothetically about the past. It reviews the past modal structures taught in Unit 8, Lessons A and B.

Form

- if* + subject + past perfect form, subject + past modal form
Note: The if clause, the main clause, or both clauses can be affirmative or negative.

If he had stayed in school, his life would have been different.

If he had stayed in school, he might not have had a singing career.

If he hadn't won the contest, he probably would have kept his job.

If he hadn't won the contest, he might not have had the confidence to become a singer.

Use

The conditional sentences above are used to talk about hypothetical events and situations in the past, that is, things that did not happen. They describe how things might have been different in different circumstances.

- The if clause describes the hypothetical conditions or circumstances.

If Watson had stayed in school, (= He didn't stay in school, but imagine this was true.)

- The past modal structures describe the possible consequences of the imagined conditions.
... his life would have been different. (= I'm sure about this.)
... his life might have been different. (= I'm less than 100 percent sure, but it's a possibility.)
... his life could have been different. (= This was a possible outcome.)

Corpus information If clauses

If clauses can come first or last in sentences, but they are approximately twice as likely to come first. In conversation, people very often use the past modal structure in the if clause rather than the past perfect; for example, If I would have done that rather than If I had done that. However, this is not considered to be correct in writing, and many people feel it is incorrect in speaking too, even though it is extremely common.

Common errors with if clauses

Ss often use if + simple past instead of if + past perfect (If he hadn't quit his job, he wouldn't have become a singer. NOT If he didn't quit his job ...)

Lesson B In the public eye

Vocabulary Idiomatic expressions about celebrity

(See Student's Book p. 100.)

The vocabulary section teaches a number of idiomatic expressions to use when talking about celebrities' careers.

Speaking naturally Intonation of tag questions

(See Student's Book p. 100.)

The meaning of tag questions depends on the intonation the speaker uses. For this reason, Speaking Naturally comes before the grammar chart, and the practice in this section is limited to having Ss repeat the examples and the conversation.

- When the speaker is not sure about something and wants to check information, the intonation on the tag rises.
- When the speaker is sure about something and wants the other person to agree or confirm that information, the intonation on the tag falls. Tag questions with falling intonation strongly signal that the speaker expects the other person to agree.

Grammar Tag questions

(See Student's Book p. 101.)

The structure taught in the lesson is tag questions. The two most common patterns are taught: (1) affirmative statement + negative tag; and (2) negative statement + affirmative tag.

Form

Tags presented in this lesson consist of be or an auxiliary verb + (not) + pronoun.

- Affirmative statement + negative tag
I'm out of touch, aren't I?
It's amazing, isn't it?
She won the talent show, didn't she?
That was a dumb thing to do, wasn't it?
He's dropped out of sight, hasn't he?
- Negative statement + affirmative tag
I'm not really in touch, am I?
It's not easy to become famous, is it?
She didn't have connections, did she?
That wasn't too smart, was it?
His career hasn't taken off, has it?

- Use an affirmative tag after a statement with a negative word.

It's never easy, is it?

There are no easy answers, are there?

- Pronouns in tags

When some pronouns are the subject of the main clause, the pronoun in the tag question may change. Here are some examples:

This / that → it

That's good, isn't it?

These / those → they

These are the winners, aren't they?

Something / nothing / everything, etc. → it

Nothing's that easy, is it?

Everyone / someone / nobody, etc. → they

Everyone knows her, don't they?

BUT There + be → there

There's no problem, is there?

- The responses to tag questions are covered in the chart. To agree to or confirm a negative statement with an affirmative tag, the answer is negative.

She didn't have connections, did she?

No, she didn't. (= I confirm that: she didn't have connections.)

Use

Tag questions are an interactive way of involving the other speaker in a conversation. Speakers use tag questions either to check information or to ask someone to agree to or confirm what is said. The meaning changes depending on the intonation. (See Speaking Naturally above.)

Corpus information Tags

Negative question tags are much more frequent than affirmative tags.

Lesson C Good question!

Conversation strategy Giving encouraging advice

(See Student's Book p. 102.)

- One common function of tag questions is to involve the other speakers in a conversation by appearing to ask questions. In the context of giving advice, adding a tag question has the effect of softening the advice because the speaker appears to be asking the listener to agree rather than simply "telling." As a result, it makes the advice sound less direct and more encouraging.
- The lesson recycles tag questions, this time with the modals would, could, and should.
It would be good to talk with her, wouldn't it?
You could look for another class, couldn't you?
You should at least give it a chance, shouldn't you?
- The tag questions for advice in the lesson have rising intonation.

Strategy plus It's hard to say.

(See Student's Book p. 103.)

When people are asked questions they cannot immediately think of answers to, they often use expressions such as It's hard to say or That's a good question. These give the speaker some time to think of an answer and to show the listener that the question does not have an easy answer.

Corpus information It's hard to say.

Expressions with It's / That's hard to say are the most frequent, followed closely by expressions with (That's a) Good question.

Lesson D Rising stars

Reading tip

(See Student's Book p. 104.)

The Reading Tip tells Ss that writers often use words like some, others, and many to avoid repeating the same noun. Understanding how these pronouns are used to refer back to nouns that appear earlier can help Ss follow the text more easily.

Help note Topic and supporting sentences

(See Student's Book p. 105.)

The Help Note shows how paragraphs can be structured around topic and supporting sentences. Topic sentences typically state a main idea or theme and are followed by supporting sentences that add more information to, or give examples of, the idea in the topic sentence.

- The article on p. 104 has two very clear examples of this structure of topic sentences followed by supporting sentences.
- In the paragraph, "Child Star Syndrome": So many child actors . . . end up in the headlines as they lose control of their lives is followed by examples of problems that child actors have trouble overcoming.
- In the paragraph, "Natalie Portman": The support of her parents helped her keep her life stable is followed by examples of the positive effect her parents had.

Fame

Teach this unit opener page together with Lesson A in one class period.

Introduce the theme of the unit Say, “When you think of famous people, what kinds of people do you think of?” Ask Ss for their ideas (e.g., actors, singers, musicians, athletes, artists, politicians). Ask the following questions: “Do you think it’s easy to become famous? After a person becomes famous, is it easy to stay famous? Do famous people have easy lives?” Say, “In this unit, we’re going to talk about some different aspects of fame.”

In Unit 10, you learn how to . . .

- Unit aims Read the lesson headings and the key unit aims aloud. Tell Ss to listen and read along.

Extra activity INDIVIDUALS

Write on the board:

1. In Lesson A, find Russell Watson’s career.
2. In Lesson B, find an expression that describes an entertainer’s career
3. In Lesson C, find a tag question that gives advice.
4. In Lesson D, find the name of the film that earned Natalie Portman her Academy Award.

Ss look through the unit and find the answers. A few Ss report their answers for each item (e.g., 1. a singer 2. up-and-coming 3. Well, you could look for another class, couldn’t you? 4. Black Swan).

Before you begin . . .

- Introduce the celebrities Read the names aloud. Note the usual American English pronunciation of the names: J.K. Rowling /rɔːwliŋ/.
- Say, “Look at these celebrities. What do you know about them?” Call on Ss to tell what they know.
- Have Ss look at Before You Begin. Ask, “What are some ways that people become famous?” Ask Ss for their ideas (e.g., They have a hit song or movie. They marry someone famous. They’re the best at a sport they play. They write a best-selling book.).

↻ Recycle a conversation strategy This task recycles language for giving different opinions (see Touchstone Student’s Book 3, Unit 9, Lesson C). Ask, “What are some expressions you can use to give an opinion different from your partner’s?” (e.g., I know what you mean, but . . . ; I don’t know. Don’t you think . . . ?) Write them on the board. Have a S read the last two questions from Before You Begin. Say, “Use expressions like these to talk with your partner about the best and worst things about being famous.”

- Have pairs discuss the last two questions from Before You Begin (e.g., S1: I think the best thing about being famous is that there are always people to get you what you want. S2: Maybe, but don’t you think there are always people around who want something from you?). Tell Ss to make a list of ideas about the best and worst things.
- Follow-up Several pairs read their lists to the class. Write Ss’ ideas on the board. Say, “Think about all these things. Raise your hand if you would like to be famous one day.”

Extra activity PAIRS

Make a list of occupations (e.g., singer, male actor, female actor, writer, musician, baseball player, politician) and call them out one at a time. Pairs have one minute to write the names of as many famous people as they can for each occupation. Pairs then get one point for every famous person they mention that no other pair has. At the end of the list of occupations, the pair with the most points wins.

Culture note

The Duke and Duchess of Cambridge: Prince William is the grandson of Queen Elizabeth II, and may one day succeed her as king. He and the Duchess (formerly Catherine Middleton) married in 2011.

Usain Bolt is a Jamaican sprinter. He won gold medals at both the 2008 and 2012 Olympics. In addition, he holds several world records. He is known as “the fastest man in the world.”

Javier Bardem is an award-winning actor from Spain. He has won an Academy Award and several awards from the film industry in Spain. He is married to the actress Penelope Cruz.

Ang Lee was born in Taiwan, where he studied Chinese culture and the arts. He went to the United States to study theater and became an influential director and screenwriter. His work has received awards world-wide.

J.K. Rowling is the author of the Harry Potter books for young readers. They have sold over 300 million copies and have made Rowling the first person to earn over a billion dollars as a writer.

Lesson A The rise to fame

1 Getting started

- Set the scene Read the lesson title aloud and write it on the board. Say, “The ‘rise to fame’ is the process by which a person becomes famous.” Ask the class if they know of any celebrities who became famous quickly, or in an unusual way. Have Ss tell the class any stories they know.

A

- Preview the task Ask, “What kinds of talent contests can you enter?” Have Ss call out their ideas and write them on the board (e.g., singing, dancing, cooking, piano). Ask, “Would you enter one?” Have Ss who would enter one raise their hand. Ask a few Ss who raise their hand what type of contest they would enter.

B

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Say, “Read the article and write the answer.”
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task. Check the answer with the class [Russell Watson got his start as a professional singer by winning a radio talent contest.].
- Tell Ss to read the article again, underlining any new vocabulary. Have Ss call out the underlined words, and write them on the board. Have Ss supply any definitions they know for the words on the board. Help with any remaining vocabulary.

C 4.01

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Tell Ss to look at the posts. Say, “Put a check (✓) next to the comments you agree with.”
- Play the recording Ss listen, read along, and check (✓) the comments they agree with. Check answers with the class: Ask a S to read Dennis’s post aloud. Tell Ss who agree with any part of his comment to raise their hands. Ask a few Ss which part of the comment they agreed with. Repeat with the remaining two comments.

Figure
it out

D

- Preview the task Say, “Look at Anne’s comment. Find the first if clause and underline the verbs. What are they?” [hadn’t quit; (hadn’t) gotten] Ask, “What verb forms are they?” [past perfect] Say, “Look at the article. In fact, did Russell Watson quit his job and get a manager?” [yes]
- Say, “Look at the sentence again. Find the verb phrase in the main clause and underline it twice. What is it?” [might not have had] Ask, “What kind of verb phrase is this?” [past modal]. Ask, “In fact, does Russell Watson have a singing career?” [yes]
- Read the instructions aloud. Tell Ss to look at the article for help as they do the task.
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class: Have individual Ss read the answers.

Answers

1. If Russell Watson had stayed in school, maybe he would have had a very different career.
 2. If he hadn’t won that talent contest, he might not have become a singer.
 3. If he had only sung pop songs, he wouldn’t have known people loved his opera voice.
 4. What would have happened if he had only sung pop songs?
- Focus on the form and the use Say, “Sometimes we look at events or situations in the past and talk about how things could have been different.” Write on the board:
True situation: Russell Watson quit his job and got a manager.
Result: He has a singing career.
 - Say, “Now imagine that Russell Watson didn’t quit his job after he won that contest. What would have been different?” Write on the board:
If clause: If Russell Watson hadn’t quit his job and gotten a manager, Result: he might not have had a singing career.
 - Say, “If+ past perfect indicates that you are talking hypothetically about an event in the past. When you give a result for a hypothetical situation in the past, use a past modal to talk about that result.”
 - Try it out Have Ss find and underline a sentence in each comment that talks hypothetically about the past. Ask Ss to call out the modals that each speaker used in the result clauses [Dennis: might, would; Anne: might, would(n’t)]

Extra activity PAIRS

Pairs think of something they did in the past or something that happened to them that made a difference in their lives. Write on the board:

I came to this class.

If I hadn’t come to this class, I wouldn’t have learned English so well.

Using the example on the board, a few Ss tell something that would or would not have happened if they had not taken this English class. Then write on the board:

If I hadn’t met my best friend, . . .

If I had moved to a different country, . . .

If I hadn’t continued school, . . .

Partners then choose two of the situations on the board and complete sentences for them. Partners share their sentences.

2 Grammar

4.02

- Present the grammar chart Play the recording. Ss listen and repeat.
- Understand the grammar Say, “When you talk hypothetically about a situation or an event in the past, you are talking about something that didn’t happen.” Ask Ss to look at the first if clause on the left side of the chart. Say, “If Watson had stayed in school . . . means ‘Watson didn’t stay in school, but imagine that he did.’” Have Ss look at the second example. Say, “If he hadn’t won the talent contest . . . means ‘In fact, he won the talent contest, but imagine that he didn’t.’” Ask Ss to look at the third if clause. Ask, “Did he continue his education?” [no]
- Say, “Look at the section about main clauses on the right side of the chart. In the main clause, or result clause, you use a past modal to talk about the possible consequences of the past situation that you’re imagining. What past modals do you see in these main clauses?” [would have, might not have, could have]
- Say, “Would have in the main clause means ‘I’m sure about this.’ Might have means ‘I’m less than 100 percent sure, but it’s a possibility.’ Could have means ‘This was one possibility.’”
- Have Ss look at the bottom of the chart. Ask, “What’s the pattern for hypothetical questions about the past, as in the first example?” Write the answer on the board [question word + past modal form, if + subject + past perfect form]. Point out that the subject often comes after the modal and before have, as in What would Watson have studied?
- Ask, “What’s the pattern for hypothetical yes-no questions about the past?” Write the answer on the board [modal + subject + have + past participle]. (For more information, see Language Notes at the beginning of this unit.)
- Present Common Errors Books closed. Write on the board:
If he didn’t quit his job, he wouldn’t have become a singer.
- Ask, “Is this sentence correct?” [no] “How do we correct it?” [Change didn’t to hadn’t.] Books open. Read the information aloud.
- Present In Conversation Read the information aloud.

A

- Preview the task Say, “Read the extract about a woman who became famous through the Internet. Circle any new vocabulary.” Have Ss call out their vocabulary questions and write them on the board. Ask the class to give any definitions they know. Help with remaining vocabulary. Say, “Now complete the sentences using the verbs given.”
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class: Have individual Ss each read an answer.

Answers

1. If Rebecca’s mother hadn’t paid the record company, they wouldn’t have produced the video, and they wouldn’t have uploaded it.
2. If the record company hadn’t uploaded the video, millions of people wouldn’t have watched it, and Rebecca might not have become a viral star.
3. What would have happened if the song had gotten good reviews? Would Black have become famous if more people had liked the song? It’s hard to tell, but it might have received less media attention.
4. If Black hadn’t had all the bad publicity, her music career might not have taken off. She might have missed out if she had listened to all the critics.

Extra activity PAIRS

Books closed. Pairs retell the story of Rebecca Black, using sentences that begin with If she had . . . or If she hadn’t . . .

About you

B

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Ask a S to read the four ideas aloud. Direct Ss’ attention to the example paragraph beginning for “a job you got.” Ask a S to read it aloud. Have Ss write their paragraphs.

C

- Preview and do the task Say, “Take turns reading your paragraphs aloud. Ask each other questions about them.” Have Ss complete the task.

Recycle a conversation strategy This follow-up task recycles expressions for sharing experiences (see Unit 8, Lesson C, p. 80). Review the expressions (e.g., I had a similar experience; That reminds me (of) . . .; That happened to me). Say, “If you and your partner have had a similar experience, tell the class about it” (e.g., Paolo and I had a similar experience . . .).

Extra activity PAIRS

Ss find a new partner and retell their previous partner’s story.

Extra practice

Tell Ss to turn to Extra Practice 10A on p. 149 of their Student’s Books. Have Ss do the tasks in class, or assign them for homework. (See the teaching notes on p. T-149.)

Workbook

Assign Workbook pp. 74 and 75. (The answer key begins on p. T-182.)

Lesson B In the public eye

1 Building vocabulary and grammar

- Set the scene Read the lesson title aloud. Say, "When people are 'in the public eye,' the events in their lives are constantly reported by the media. Name some people in the public eye. Why are they in the news?"

A  4.03

- Preview the task Books closed. Say, "Listen. How did Lana become famous? Write your answer."
- Play the recording Ss listen and write.
- Play the recording again Books open. Ss listen, read along, and review their answer. Check the answer with the class [She got discovered in a karaoke club by the producer of a talent show. Later, she entered the talent show and won.].
- Practice Have Ss practice the conversation in pairs, taking turns playing each role.

Word sort

B

- Preview the task Ask a S to read the column headings in the chart aloud. Say, "Complete the chart using expressions from the conversation. Use the context of the conversation to help you."
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class.

Answers

Ways to become famous

You get discovered by someone.

You're just in the right place at the right time.

You have connections.

When you're becoming famous

Your career takes off.

You make headlines.

You're in the headlines a lot.

You're an up-and-coming star.

When things don't work out

Your career goes downhill.

You get bad press.

You drop out of sight.

- Say, "Now tell your partner about someone famous. How did that person become famous? What do you know about him or her?"

Vocabulary notebook

Tell Ss to turn to Vocabulary Notebook on p. 106 of their Student's Books. Have Ss do the task in class, or assign it for homework. (See the teaching notes on p. T-106.)

- Preview the task Say, "Look at the conversation again. Underline the sentences you see that have a short question added at the end of a statement." [You haven't seen her show yet, have you?; She's a blues singer, isn't she?; I guess I'm a little out of touch, aren't I?; She won the show this year, didn't she?; It's amazing, isn't it?; He's kind of dropped out of sight, hasn't he?; That wasn't too smart, was it?]
- Say, "Compare the statement and short question sections of each sentence you underlined. What do you notice about the tenses?" [They're the same.] Ask, "What do you notice about the question section when the statement section is affirmative?" [It's negative.] Ask, "What do you notice about the question section when the statement section is negative?" [It's affirmative.] Read the instructions aloud.
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. Lana's a singer, isn't she?
2. She won a talent show, didn't she?
3. Java Thomas wasn't too smart, was he?
4. His career hasn't taken off, has it?

- Focus on the form and the use Say, "The short questions added to the end of the statements are called tags. Tags change a statement into a kind of question called a tag question. People use tag questions to check information or to ask someone to agree or confirm information."
- Say, "A tag has the same tense as the statement it follows. When the statement is affirmative, the tag is negative. When the statement is negative, the tag is affirmative."

2 Speaking naturally

 4.04

- Preview the task Say, "When you use a tag question when you're not sure, the intonation rises on the verb in the tag. When you use a tag question when you're sure and think someone will agree, the intonation falls on the verb in the tag." (For more information, see Language Notes at the beginning of this unit.) Read the instructions aloud.
- Play the recording Remind Ss that the red color in the examples means that words receive heavier stress. Ss listen, repeat, and then practice the conversation in Exercise 1A again. Walk around the class and listen for the correct intonation on the tags. If necessary, replay the recording and have Ss repeat.

Extra activity PAIRS

Each pair looks at the questions from Exercise 1C, again and marks each one either with S for "sure" or NS for "not sure." S1 reads his or her questions, using falling intonation for questions with S and rising intonation for ones with NS. S2 responds with, "You're sure, aren't you?" or "You're not sure, are you?" depending on the intonation. Partners switch roles and repeat the activity.

3 Grammar

4.05

- Present the grammar chart Play the recording. Ss listen and repeat.
- Understand the grammar Say, "The tag in these tag questions consists of be or an auxiliary verb, a pronoun, and not if the tag is negative. The pronoun usually agrees with the subject. For example, Peter and John saw the movie, didn't they? They is used with the third-person plural subject — Peter and John."
- Have Ss look at the left side of the chart. Point out that tag questions with an affirmative statement get a negative tag. Have Ss look at the right side of the chart. Point out that tag questions with a negative statement get an affirmative tag.
- Say, "Look at the first example in each column. What's the verb in the statement sections of these tag questions?" [be in the simple present] Ask, "What verb is in the tag?" [be in the simple present] "Look at the second example in each column. What's the verb in the statement sections of these tag questions?" [be in the simple past] Ask, "What verb is in the tag?" [be in the simple past] Say, "Look at the third example in each column. What's the verb form in the statement sections of these tag questions?" [simple past] Ask, "What kind of verb is in the tag?" [the auxiliary did] Say, "Look at the last example in each column. If the verb in the affirmative statement is the present perfect, what do you use in the tag?" [the auxiliary has or have] Ask Ss to look at the example sentences again. Say, "When that is the subject, the pronoun used in the tag is it."
- Have Ss look at the bottom sections of the chart. Say, "Answer yes to agree with an affirmative statement with a negative tag. Answer no to agree with a negative statement with an affirmative tag." (For more information, see Language Notes at the beginning of this unit.)
- Present In Conversation Have a S read the information aloud.

4 Talk about it

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have individual Ss each read a discussion question aloud. Remind Ss to use tag questions where possible as they do the task (e.g., S1: I guess most people look on the Internet, don't they? S2: Yeah. And the tabloids. They're still in a lot of grocery and convenience stores, aren't they? S3: Right. And there are a lot of celebrity news shows on TV, aren't there?).
- Follow-up Several groups report to the class on their discussion.

A

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class: Ask two Ss to each read a conversation.

Answers

1. A You've heard of Chris Martin, haven't you?
B I think so. He sings with Coldplay, doesn't he?
A Yeah. He's their lead singer.
B Right. They're not American, are they?
A No, they're British. I love their music. They're a great band, aren't they?
B Oh, yeah. They've raised a lot of money for charity, too, haven't they? I mean, they do a lot of charity concerts and stuff, don't they?
2. A When was Marilyn Monroe famous? It was in the 1950s, wasn't it?
B Yeah, but she made a movie in the 1960s, too, didn't she?
A I think you're right. She was mainly a movie star, wasn't she? I mean, she wasn't a singer, was she?
B Well, she sang in some of her movies, but she was basically an actress. You've seen her movies, haven't you?
A No, but I'd like to. It's amazing, isn't it? She died years ago, but she's still famous.

B

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss complete the task. As Ss complete the task, go around the class listening for rising and falling intonation. If necessary, replay Exercise 2 on p. 100.

Extra practice

Tell Ss to turn to Extra Practice 10B on p. 149 of their Student's Books. Have Ss do the tasks in class, or assign them for homework. (See the teaching notes on p. T-149.)

Extra activity PAIRS

Pairs talk hypothetically about a sports star or a star from another field who has dropped out of sight and whose career has gone downhill (e.g., If (name) hadn't had so many injuries last season, he would have won the championship / title.). Have several pairs tell the class about the star they discussed.

Sounds right

Tell Ss to turn to Sounds Right on p. 139 of their Student's Books. Have Ss do the task for Unit 10 in class, or assign it for homework. (See the teaching notes on p. T-139.)

Workbook

Assign Workbook pp. 76 and 77. (The answer key begins on p. T-182.)

Lesson C Good question!

↻ Lesson C recycles expressions for giving advice and tag questions.

1 Conversation strategy

- Set the scene Ask, “What are some things that people take lessons or classes to learn how to do?” Ask a few Ss (e.g., sing, dance, play an instrument, play a sport, cook). Say, “Think of a time that you were trying to learn to do something new. Did you ever feel discouraged and want to quit? What did you do?” Ask Ss to answer.

A

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Elicit one or two ideas (e.g., You should talk to the other students / the teacher. You could ask a friend for help.). Tell Ss to make their list of ideas. Ask several Ss to tell the class.

B 4.06

- Preview the task Say, “Listen to Steve and Nela’s conversation. Why is Nela thinking of dropping out of her acting class? Listen and write the answer.” Note the usual American English pronunciation of the name: Nela: /nɛlə/.
- Play the recording Books closed. Have Ss listen once, then listen again and write. Tell Ss to compare their answers in pairs.
- Play the recording again Books open. Ss listen, read along, and review their answer. Check the answer with the class [Nela’s teacher doesn’t give her any feedback. Steve told her to talk to the teacher.].

C

- Present Notice Say, “When people give advice, tag questions can make the advice sound softer because the speaker appears to be asking a question rather than directly telling the listener to take the advice.” Read the information and the example aloud. Have Ss find the examples in the conversation. Ask individual Ss to each read an example aloud. Write the answers on the board [Steve: Well, you could look for another class, couldn’t you?; Well, before you do that, it would be good to talk with her, wouldn’t it?; You should at least give it a chance, shouldn’t you?].
- Say, “Look at the tag questions on the board. Which part of the statement appears in the tag?” [the modal] Underline the modals in the statements and their tags.
- Practice Tell Ss to practice the conversation in pairs, taking turns playing each role. Tell Ss to use rising intonation for the tags.

D

- Preview the task Tell Ss to match the problems in the first column with the advice in the second column. Tell Ss to read all the problems and all the advice first. Help with new vocabulary as needed.
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. c 2. d 3. a 4. b

- Have Ss practice the conversations, taking turns playing each role.
- Have Ss role-play the conversations again, taking turns giving their own advice. Remind Ss to use rising intonation for the tags.
- Follow-up Ss form small groups. For each problem, group members report the advice they received. The group decides which advice was best. Groups then report to the class. The class decides the best advice for each problem.

Extra activity PAIRS

Write on the board:

I’m learning to ski / skate, but I keep falling.

I have to give a presentation in class, but I’m really nervous.

I want to ask my boss for a raise, but I don’t know what to say.

Ss brainstorm and suggest other situations similar to these and call them out. Write them on the board. Partners take turns reading the problems and giving advice using tag questions. Remind Ss to vary their choice of modal.

2 Strategy plus

- Present Strategy Plus Say, "Some questions are difficult to answer. Starting an answer with expressions such as It's hard to say gives you time to think of what you want to say. It also shows the other person that the question is hard to answer and that you are giving serious consideration to possible answers." Tell Ss to look back at the conversation on p. 102. Have Ss find and underline the expressions that Steve and Nela use to show that the question they are answering is a difficult one. Ask a S to read the expressions aloud [Nela: It's hard to say.; Good question. I wish I knew.; Steve: That's a tough one.].
- Read the information and the examples in Strategy Plus.

About you

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have a S read the questions aloud. Ask two Ss to read the example conversation aloud. Have Ss complete the task.

- Follow-up For each question, have a few Ss report to the class.

Extra activity PAIRS

Working with the same partner, pairs discuss the questions from Exercise 2 to which it was easy for them to answer no. S1 asks the question again, and S2 answers, giving a reason. S1 responds with a tag question with a modal. (e.g., S1: Would you like to perform on stage in front of a lot of people? S2: Absolutely not! I'd be terrified! S1: Well, you could always practice in front of groups of friends first, couldn't you?).

3 Listening and strategies

A  4.07

- Preview the task Say, "Look at some advice for making a band successful." Tell Ss to read through the advice. Check that Ss understand the meaning of gig [performance by a pop / rock band] and catchy [easy to remember]. Ask, "What else could you do?" Say, "Listen to Tom talk to George about his band. Check (✓) the things Tom needs to do."
- Play the recording Audio script p. T-177 Ss listen and check (✓). Replay the recording if required.
- Play the recording again Ss listen again and review their answers. Check answers with the class: Have individual Ss each give an answer.

Answers

Checked:

- ✓ play more "gigs"
- ✓ contact the local radio station
- ✓ record music and put it online
- ✓ get a manager
- ✓ choose a catchy name for the band

B  4.07

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud.
- Play the recording Audio script p. T-177 Ss listen and circle a or b. Have Ss compare their answers with a partner. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. a 2. a 3. b 4. b

About you

C

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Ask a S to read the ideas aloud. Say, "Make notes about what you would like to achieve and about the problems you would face." Have Ss complete the task.

D

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Ask two Ss to read the example conversation aloud. Have Ss complete the task.
- Follow-up Several Ss tell the class what they would like to achieve, one of the problems they would face, and the advice they received from their partner for solving the problem.

Extra activity GROUPS

Group members each present what they would like to achieve and name some problems they would face. Other group members take turns giving advice, using tag questions.

Workbook

- Assign Workbook pp. 78 and 79. (The answer key begins on p. T-182.)

1 Reading

- Set the scene Read the lesson title aloud. Ask, “Can you guess what a rising star is?” Get ideas from Ss (e.g., Someone who is up-and-coming in their profession.). Ask, “Who are some actors who are rising stars?”

APrereading

- Preview and do the task Ask, “What is a child star?” Get ideas from the class (e.g., a successful child actor, probably under the age of 16). Say, “Child star usually refers to an actor who began his or her career at a young age.” Ask, “What child stars can you think of?” Write the names on the board. Ask, “How do you think their lives are different from other children’s lives?” Get ideas from Ss and write them on the board (e.g., They have a lot of money; They don’t usually attend a school. They have private tutors instead.; They get recognized wherever they go.; They don’t have much privacy.; Older people might take advantage of them.).

↻ Recycle a conversation strategy Ask “Do you think child stars have happy lives? Why or why not?” Encourage Ss to give ideas using expressions to quote information (e.g., Evidently, . . . he / she still hangs around with the same friends and does the same things, like play baseball with them.; I’ve heard that . . . he / she suffers from depression now.). (See Unit 9, Lesson C.)

BDuring reading

- Present Reading Tip Read the tip aloud. Say, “Writers rarely repeat the same word over and over. Learn to recognize that when a writer uses pronouns like these, you sometimes have to go back to see what noun they refer to. This can help you understand the text better.”
- Preview the reading Have Ss read the title of the article and look at the photos. Ask, “Who are the actors in the photos?” [Natalie Portman, Daniel Radcliffe, and Emma Watson] Ask, “What movies with these stars do you know? (e.g., Natalie Portman: Star Wars, Black Swan; Daniel Radcliffe: Harry Potter, The Woman in Black; Emma Watson: Harry Potter, The Perks of Being a Wallflower)
- Read the instructions aloud. Say, “As you read, write down a definition for “Child Star Syndrome”. Write two ways each actor in the article coped with it.”
- Do the reading Tell Ss to read the article and make their notes. After Ss finish, have them work in pairs and compare their ideas. Ask Ss what “Child Star Syndrome” is [“Child Star Syndrome” happens when child actors reach their teens and end up out of control.]. Ask, “How have some actors coped with it?” [Some actors have coped with it by having supportive families and focusing on education. They didn’t get into the “glamorous lifestyle.” They had a down-to-earth attitude.]
- Follow-up Ask, “What was the most interesting thing you learned about these stars?” Have a short class discussion.

CPostreading

- Preview the task Say, “Find words and expressions in the article to replace the underlined words in the questions. The words and expressions are in the same order as they appear in the article. Read through the article slowly. When you come to an expression that you think has a similar meaning, try it in the sentence.”
- Do the task Have Ss find the words and expressions that fit the meanings. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. under the scrutiny of the media (paragraph 1)
2. balance (paragraph 1)
3. blockbuster (paragraph 2)
4. focus (paragraph 2)
5. barely (paragraph 3)
6. roles; secured (paragraph 3)

- Say, “Now ask and answer the questions with a partner.” Have pairs discuss and answer. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. They can lose control of their lives, be unable to manage the money and attention, or fail under the pressure.
2. Yes. Portman, Watson, and Radcliffe have all achieved this.
3. She’s starred in Star Wars and Black Swan.
4. She decided to concentrate on a degree in psychology / her education.
5. They were only just 11.
6. They have secured roles in the movies and in theater.

Extra activity CLASS

مرجع زبان ایرانیان

Play “Celebrity.” Ss take turns presenting clues. One S thinks of the name of a celebrity and gives clues, perhaps including some movies the celebrity made. The other Ss try to guess the celebrity.

D

- Preview and do the task Read aloud the instructions. Have a S read aloud the list of ideas. Tell Ss to read through the article again and see if it suggests any of the ideas in the list. Have Ss check (✓) the ideas.
- Check answers with the class: Have Ss call out the sentences they checked.

Answers

Checked:

- ✓ It is possible to be both a successful child and adult actor.
- ✓ Radcliffe and Watson were both good students.
- ✓ As adults, all these former child actors are still successful.

2 Speaking and listening

A

- Preview and do the task Read aloud the instructions and the list of ideas. Have pairs write their own ideas. Then ask Ss to call out their ideas. Write them on the board.
- Have Ss discuss the definitions for success in the book and on the board. Have a S read the example aloud.
- Follow-up A few Ss give their top definition of success and a reason why.

B 4.08

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud.
- Play the recording Audio script p. T-177 Ss listen and write their answers. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. finding something to enjoy about everything you do
2. doing something that's worthwhile
3. being known as a musician
4. having more money than you need

C 4.08

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Say, "First check yes or no. Then write a couple of words to help you remember the reasons."
- Play the recording Audio script p. T-177 Ss listen, check yes or no, and make notes. Pause the recording after each conversation to give the Ss time to write.
- Play the recording again Ss listen and review their answers. Then have Ss write the reasons as complete sentences. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. Yes. She finds something to enjoy about everything she does.
2. Yes. She thinks teaching school is useful.
3. No. He isn't famous as a musician yet.
4. No. She can't afford luxuries yet.

3 Writing

A

- Preview the task Tell Ss to read the example profile. Ask some comprehension questions (e.g., How has Alexis become successful? What challenges did she face?).
- Present Help Note Read the information aloud. Ask, "What do you think the paragraph will be about after reading the topic sentence?" [about her success, the obstacles she overcame]
- Write on the board sentences from the article on p. 104 such as the following:
 1. The support of Portman's parents helped keep her life stable.
 2. Others are unable to manage all the money, attention, and the glamorous lifestyle as they get older.
- Have Ss look back and identify whether they are topic sentences or supporting sentences. [1. T; 2. S]
- Do the task Have Ss write their stories. Write these questions on the board to help guide Ss:
 - In what way is the person successful?*
 - What challenges did he or she face along the way?*
 - How did he or she handle the challenges?*
 - How did the challenges change or inspire this person?*

Extra activity CLASS

After Ss begin writing, Ss call out some of their topic sentences. Write them on the board. The class works together to say if they are good topic sentences or not, and suggests how to improve them if necessary.

B

- Preview and do the task Ss work in small groups and read their articles. Group members decide which people faced the biggest challenges and which stories they find inspiring.
- Follow-up Each group chooses one or two stories to read aloud to the class. Ask, "What kind of story do you find inspiring?" Have a short class discussion.

Free talk

Tell Ss to turn to Free Talk 10 at the back of their Student's Books. Have Ss do the task. (See the teaching notes on p. T-133.)

Workbook

 Assign Workbook pp. 80 and 81. (The answer key begins on p. T-182.)

Vocabulary Notebook

If done for homework

Briefly present the Learning Tip and the task directions. Make sure Ss understand what they need to do.

If done in class

- Present Learning Tip Read the information aloud. Say, "The meaning of idioms is not obvious from the individual words that make them up. Writing sentences meaningful to you that include idioms will help you learn and review them."

- Present In Conversation Books closed. Ask Ss to work in pairs and list words that are often used with the word fame, such as verbs that precede it. Books open. Have a S read the list aloud. Ask pairs to raise their hands if they guessed any correctly and to say which ones.

↻ These tasks recycle vocabulary for describing celebrity careers.

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Have two Ss read the example sentence and its explanation aloud.
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task. Check answers with the class.

Answers

- | | | | |
|------|------|------|------|
| 1. c | 3. b | 5. g | 7. d |
| 2. h | 4. a | 6. e | 8. f |

- Preview the Word Builder task Say, "This Word Builder task will help you learn more ways to talk about celebrities and will give you practice writing sentences that explain idioms." Read the instructions aloud.
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task. Check answers with the class: For each sentence, ask a S to read his or her answer. Have Ss with different answers read their explanations aloud.

Possible answers

1. They respect and admire pop stars.
2. She's going to be extremely successful in her career.
3. Some rock bands are still making a lot of good music and have a large number of fans after 20 or 30 years.
4. That young actor is going to be famous one day.
5. She had connections to the people that make the decisions about who to hire, so she got the part.
6. He came to the city to try and get a job in the movie / entertainment industry.

On your own

- Present On Your Own Read the instructions aloud. Ask a S to explain the example in the picture.
- Follow-up At the start of the next class, Ss form small groups and read their lists of people and the idiomatic expressions they choose. Each group member shares one of their names and expressions with the class.

Now I can . . .

- Go over the Now I Can items. Put Ss in pairs to give one example each for the first five items. Call on Ss and ask for examples or explanations.
- Have Ss look over the four lessons and identify any areas they want to review.
- Tell Ss to complete the Now I Can items. Ss check (✓) the items they know and put a question mark (?) by items that they are not confident about. Check with individual Ss which areas need review to see if there are general problems to review in class. Help individual Ss as required. Have Ss hand in a piece of paper with their name and a schedule showing what they plan to review and when. Review or reteach these language items in a future class.

Lesson A Trends in society

Grammar The passive

(See Student's Book p. 109.)

Ss have already learned the passive of the simple past and the simple present, as well as the passive of modal verbs. In the lesson, they learn how to form and use the passive of the present continuous and the present perfect.

Form

- Present continuous passive subject + am / is / are (+ not) + being + past participle
Internet access is (not) being made available.
Workers are (not) being recruited overseas.
- Present perfect passive subject + has / have (+ not) + been + past participle
A lot of people have (not) been laid off.
The problem has (not) been solved.

Use

- The present continuous can be used to talk about ongoing, dynamic, and therefore changing situations and events in the present. The continuous form can also suggest that the speaker sees these events as temporary.

- The present perfect is used to talk about events and situations at an unspecified time within a time period up to and including now. It is useful for talking about recent changes because it connects the past with the present.
- The passive focuses on the "receiver" of the action rather than the "doer." The passive is generally used when the "doer" or cause of an action is not known, not important, or obvious from the context. The "doer" can be introduced with the word by if needed.

Speaking naturally Reducing auxiliary verbs

(See Student's Book p. 109.)

This section gives practice in hearing and saying the reduction of auxiliary verbs in the passive verb phrases taught in the lesson. In natural speech, are is often reduced to /ə/, and have is often reduced to /əv/. Is and has are usually both reduced to 's, the pronunciation of which follows the rules for noun plural endings (/s/, /z/, or /əz/). (See Touchstone Student's Book 1, Unit 2, Lesson B.)

Lesson B Environmental matters

Vocabulary Environmental issues

(See Student's Book p. 110.)

This section teaches a number of common expressions that are useful in talking about environmental issues, such as air pollution and global warming.

Grammar Linking ideas

(See Student's Book p. 111.)

The lesson reviews and extends a number of conjunctions, prepositions, and the phrase in order to to link ideas in sentences.

Form

- Preposition + noun or verb + -ing in spite of, despite, due to, because of, as a result of, instead of Some people water their lawns despite / in spite of the drought.
Take a shower instead of (taking) a bath.
- Conjunction + clause
although, even though, because, so, so that Although the problems seem overwhelming, there is hope.
Recycle garbage so it doesn't end up in a landfill.
- in order to + verb
Turn down the air conditioning in order to save electricity.

Use

The prepositions and conjunctions taught in the lesson are used to contrast ideas (although, even though); to give reasons (because [of], as a result of); to state purpose ([in order] to, so [that]), and to present alternatives (instead of).

- Conjunctions
The conjunctions in the lesson are although, even though, because, and so that. Conjunctions are followed by clauses. They can either start a sentence or introduce a second (or later) clause.
- Prepositions
The prepositions taught in the lesson are in spite of, despite, due to, because of, as a result of, and instead of. Prepositions are followed by nouns, pronouns, or gerunds (verb + -ing). In spite of, despite, and due to can also be used in expressions with the fact that, which enables them to be followed by a clause: Some people water their lawns daily despite the fact that there have been drought warnings. Clauses with the fact that are not taught in the lesson, but this information may be useful to some Ss.
- In order to
In order to is a more formal way of expressing the infinitive of purpose that Ss learned in Touchstone Student's Book 2, Unit 7, Lesson A. It is followed by a verb.

Corpus information Placement of conjunctions

- In written English, although is more likely at the beginning of a sentence; in conversation, it is about twice as likely to be in the middle, introducing the second clause in the sentence. Even though is more likely in the middle of a sentence in both spoken and written English.
- In formal written English, such as newspaper texts, because can start a sentence, but it is over 12 times more likely to be used in the middle.

Common errors with even though and in spite

Ss often write even though or in spite of as one word.

(Even though fuel is expensive, I drive my car a lot. NOT ~~Eventhough~~ fuel is expensive, I drive my car a lot.)

Lesson C As I was saying, . . .

Conversation strategy Referring back in the conversation

(See Student's Book p. 112.)

The lesson teaches Ss a number of expressions to "refer back" to earlier parts of a conversation. It includes ways speakers refer back to things they said (e.g., As I was saying, etc.) and also to things that other speakers said (e.g., As you said, etc.).

- Expressions such as As I / you said or As I was / you were saying are often used to refer back to something mentioned earlier in the conversation in order to restate a point or to agree with another speaker.
- Expressions such as Going back to what I was / you were saying earlier can be used when speakers want to revive a topic in a conversation in order to say more about it.

Strategy plus and so forth

(See Student's Book p. 113.)

Ss learned "vague" expressions such as and things / stuff like that and and everything for informal conversations in Touchstone Student's Book 2, Unit 4, Lesson C. Here they learn slightly more formal expressions such as and so forth, which are useful in discussions. "Vague" expressions such as these are a way of saying to the listener, "I don't need to specify all of this in detail because I'm sure you understand what I mean." They can help create a friendly atmosphere in the conversation because they signal that the speaker and listener share a common understanding of the world.

Corpus information "Vague" expressions

- Informal vague expressions such as and things / stuff like that are the most common. And so forth is in the top 3,500 words and expressions in conversation.
- When speakers want to suggest that there is a lot more that could be said, they occasionally say and so forth and and so on together in either order (and so on and so forth or and so forth and so on.) Etcetera is often repeated (etcetera, etcetera).

Lesson D Technological change

Reading tip

(See Student's Book p. 114.)

The Reading Tip tells Ss to ask themselves questions as they read, such as "Is this true?" and "So, what does this mean?" This helps the reader engage with the text and activate background knowledge.

Help note Describing trends

(See Student's Book p. 115.)

The Help Note gives some useful expressions for describing trends. These include determiners more, fewer (which are often repeated as in more and more or fewer and fewer), verbs such as increase and decline, and the adverb increasingly.

Trends

Teach this unit opener page together with Lesson A in one class period.

Introduce the theme of the unit Write on the board: Clothes, Technology, Political Issues. Say, “Things change. With clothes, you may notice that more and more people are wearing a similar style. With technology, you may notice that more and more people feel they have to own a certain gadget. With political issues, more and more people may start putting pressure on the government to make new laws or change old ones. When something catches the public’s interest and society starts to move in a new or different direction, then you can say there is a new trend. The title of this unit is ‘Trends.’”

In Unit 11, you learn how to . . .

- Unit aims Read the lesson headings and key unit aims aloud. Tell Ss to listen and read along.

Extra activity INDIVIDUALS

Ss look through the unit and find these things. Write on the board:

Find:

1. One area of social change
2. One way to protect the environment
3. One change we see in the workplace
4. One Internet celebrity

A few Ss report their answers (e.g., 1. eating healthy food [p. 108] 2. consume less energy [p. 110] 3. paternity leave [p. 113] 4. Justin Bieber / Darcie Chan / Michelle Phan [p. 114])

Before you begin . . .

- Introduce the issues Say, “Cover Before You Begin and look at picture 1. What kind of issue or issues do you think this picture includes?” Ask Ss for their opinion (e.g., single working parents, day-care needs, costs of raising children). Say, “Discuss the other three pictures with a partner. What issues can you think of for each one?”
- For each picture, call on a pair to give their ideas. Have Ss with other ideas tell the class what they think [Picture 2: heavy traffic in our cities, pollution and health problems, use of gasoline as a fuel, global warming; Picture 3: overcrowded cities, lack of green space; Picture 4: seniors’ issues: health care, financial help, social activities]
- Have Ss look at Before You Begin. Read each issue aloud. Have Ss look at the pictures and identify any picture that shows a listed issue. Have Ss call out the number [traffic congestion: Picture 2; work / life balance: Picture 1; pollution: Picture 2; an aging population: Picture 4; urban development: Picture 3; high unemployment: none].
- Ask, “Do any of these issues affect your city or country? How do they do so?” Have groups report their ideas to the class.

Recycle conversation strategies This task recycles expressions for giving opinions and agreeing with opinions (see Touchstone Student’s Book 3, Unit 4, Lesson C), as well as giving different opinions (see Touchstone Student’s Book 3, Unit 9, Lesson C). Say, “Remember some of the expressions that you can use to give opinions. You can start your statements with I think . . . , I don’t think . . . , It seems to me that . . .” Review the expressions. Ask Ss to say some expressions they can use to agree with an opinion (e.g., Absolutely; You’re right; That’s for sure.). Ask Ss for some expressions they can use to disagree with an opinion (e.g., I know what you mean, but . . . ; Maybe; On the other hand, . . .).

- Say, “Look again at the list of issues. Is the situation changing for each? What’s the trend? Discuss these questions in your group.” Have Ss give ideas (e.g., S1: If you ask me, traffic congestion is getting worse. S2: That’s for sure. More and more people are driving to work from way out in the suburbs because they can’t afford a place to live downtown where they work. S3: That’s true, but the city is working hard to get people to carpool, and they have special carpool and bus lanes now, so I think things will change.).

Extra activity PAIRS

Pairs make a list of other issues that affect their city or country (e.g., housing, food, fuel prices, crime, homelessness, poverty, education costs, high taxes, security). Pairs read their lists to the class. The class then describes the specific nature of the issues that are mentioned most frequently.

Lesson A Trends in society

1 Getting started

- Set the scene Read the interview aloud. Ask Ss to say what changes in society they have noticed (e.g., more recreational facilities, better transportation in the city, improved day care for children).

A

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Read the issues aloud. Check that Ss understand each one. Have a short class discussion on each issue.

B 4.09

- Preview the task Ask Ss to cover the interviews. Write the names on the board: 1. Jake, 2. Letitia, 3. Daniela, 4. Somchai, 5. Oliver, 6. Ivan. Note the usual American English pronunciation of the names: Letitia /lɛ'ti:fə/, Daniela /dæn'yɛlə/ Somchai /sə'mtʃaɪ/. Say, "These are the names and the order of the speakers."
- Read the instructions aloud. Say, "First, just listen."
- Play the recording Ss listen only. Replay the recording. Ss listen and number.
- Play the recording again Ss uncover the interviews. Ss listen again, read along, and review their answers. Help with new vocabulary as needed. Check answers with the class.

Answers

- 5 college tuition fees
- 3 new technology
- 1 obesity
- 2 outsourcing jobs
- 6 shortage of skilled workers
- 4 traffic congestion

C

- Preview the task Write on the board underlined as shown:
 1. Every year many skilled workers are recruited overseas.
 2. Last year many skilled workers were recruited overseas.
- Ask, "What type of verbs are these?" [1. simple present passive; 2. simple past passive] Ask, "What's the pattern for passive verbs?" Write the answer on the board:
be + past participle.
- Write on the board, underlined as shown: Skilled workers are being recruited overseas. Ask, "In this passive sentence, what form is the verb be?" [present continuous]
- Write on the board, underlined as shown: A lot of highways have been built. Ask, "In this passive sentence, what form is the verb be?" [present perfect] Say, "The lesson focuses on the passive of the present continuous and the present perfect."
- Read the instructions aloud. Remind Ss to look at the article for help as they do the task.

- Do the task Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class: Have individual Ss each read a sentence aloud.

Answers

1. Young people are being encouraged to go to college.
2. We're not being given enough financial support.
3. Fast-food chains have been forced to change their menus.
4. The problem hasn't been completely solved.

- Focus on the form and the use Say, "The present continuous and the present perfect can be used in passive sentences. Their use is the same as in active sentences."
- Say, "Present continuous passive sentences talk about ongoing situations or events that are in progress now. The continuous form suggests that the situations or events could be temporary ones."
- Say, "Present perfect passive sentences talk about situations or events that happened in a time period that began in the past and continue until now. The present perfect connects the past with the present."
- Try it out Have Ss look through the opinions, find sentences with the present continuous passive, and underline the verbs. Call on individual Ss to each read a sentence aloud [Letitia: And that's partly because their jobs are being outsourced to workers in other countries.; Daniela: . . . and wireless Internet access is being made available in more and more places.; Oliver: Well, young people are still being encouraged to go to college . . . , and we're not being given enough financial support. Ivan: . . . skilled workers are being recruited overseas, and then they're being brought in to fill the jobs.].
- Have Ss find sentences with the present perfect passive and underline the verbs twice. Call on individual Ss to each read a sentence aloud [Jake: So the fast-food chains have been forced to change their menus.; Letitia: In many places, . . . , and a lot of people have been laid off.; Somchai: a lot of new highways have been built, . . . but the problem hasn't been completely solved.; Oliver: . . . , because tuition fees have just been increased . . .].

Extra activity PAIRS

Pairs go through the sentences they found in Try It Out and say if they are true for their city or country. Then they make the sentences true by making the negative ones affirmative or by making the affirmative ones negative.

2 Grammar

4.10

- Present the grammar chart Play the recording. Ss listen and repeat.
- Understand the grammar Have Ss compare the examples with the present continuous on the two sides of the chart. Ask, "What's the pattern for present continuous active sentences?" Write the answer on the board:
subject + be (+ not) + verb + -ing
- Ask, "What's the pattern for present continuous passive sentences?" Write the answer on the board:
subject + be (+ not) + being + past participle
- Ask, "What's the pattern for present perfect active sentences?" Write the answer on the board:
subject + has / have (+ not) + past participle
- Ask, "What's the pattern for present perfect passive sentences?" Write the answer on the board:
subject + has / have (+ not) + been + past participle
- Ask, "In passive sentences, is the subject the doer of the action?" [no – the receiver] "Why are the doers not mentioned here?" (They're not important; you can guess who they are.)
(For more information, see Language Notes at the beginning of this unit.)

A

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Tell Ss to read through the comments before they begin. Help with vocabulary as needed. Ask a S to read the example answer aloud.

- Do the task Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class: Have individual Ss each read an answer.

Answers

1. . . . That problem hasn't been solved yet. However, tracking devices are being advertised. Devices to track speed have been developed . . . , a lot of lives have been saved.
2. Healthier lunches are being provided . . . Junk food hasn't been taken off menus . . . processed food is not being used . . . organic foods are being served.
3. The city center is being developed. A lot of older buildings have been knocked down, and a lot of . . . have been built. The housing shortage is not being solved, though. Too few homes are being built.

About you

B

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Ask a S to read the example aloud. Tell groups to make brief notes of the main points of their discussions.
- Follow-up Each group reports one trend they think is good and one trend they think is not good, giving reasons.

Extra practice

Tell Ss to turn to Extra Practice 11A on p. 150 of their Student's Books. Have Ss do the tasks in class, or assign them for homework. (See the teaching notes on p. T-150.)

3 Speaking naturally

A 4.11

- Preview the task Have Ss look at the example sentences. Ask, "What are the verb forms in the sentences in the box?" [present continuous passive and present perfect passive] Ask, "What are the auxiliary verbs in the present continuous passive sentences?" [is, are] Ask, "What are the auxiliary verbs in the present perfect passive sentences?" [has, have] Say, "Auxiliary verbs are often reduced in fast spoken English." Read the instructions aloud.
- Play the recording Ss listen and repeat.

About you

B 4.12

- Preview the task Say, "Listen and complete the sentences."
- Play the recording Audio script p. T-178 Ss listen and complete the sentences. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. are being encouraged
2. are being offered
3. are being required
4. has been given
5. has been introduced
6. are being made

- Ask, "Are these sentences true in your country? Are they good ideas? Discuss your views with a partner." As Ss discuss the statements, go around the class and listen for the reduction of the auxiliary verbs. If necessary, replay Exercise 3B and have Ss repeat.
- Follow-up Several pairs each choose one statement and report key ideas in their discussion.

Extra activity INDIVIDUALS / GROUPS

Using the answer key for Exercise 3B, write the verb phrases on the board: are being encouraged, are being offered, etc. Ss write a new sentence for each verb phrase (e.g., More construction workers have been employed because a lot of new houses are being built.). Ss compare their sentences in groups.

Workbook

Assign Workbook pp. 82 and 83. (The answer key begins on p. T-182.)

Lesson B Environmental matters

1 Building vocabulary and grammar

- Set the scene Books closed. Read the lesson title aloud. Say, “The environment is something that is important to us all. What environmental problems can you think of?” Ask a few Ss (e.g., global warming, holes in the ozone layer, pollution, water shortages).

A

- Preview the task Books open. Say, “Look at the words and expressions in the box.” Read each one aloud, and have Ss repeat. Have Ss call out any vocabulary they do not understand. Ask other Ss to explain any vocabulary they know. Help with any remaining vocabulary. Say, “Complete the article with words and expressions from the box.”
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class: Have individual Ss each read a paragraph.

Answers

Note: The underlined words not in bold type are for Exercise 1C.

Although environmental problems can seem overwhelming, there is hope if everyone gets involved in protecting our natural resources. Here’s what you can do:

Consume less energy. Climates are changing and ocean levels are rising because of global warming. This growing problem is due to increased levels of carbon dioxide in the atmosphere as a result of the burning of oil, coal, and gas. In order to save electricity, use energy-saving lightbulbs, and turn the air conditioning down or off when possible. To conserve gas or oil, turn down the heat by 2°F (1°C). You’ll also cut 10 percent off your bill!

Don’t use your car if you don’t have to, because cars consume energy and also cause air pollution. So instead of driving everywhere, use public transportation. Or ride a bicycle — you’ll get good exercise and help improve your city’s air quality.

Avoid toxic cleaning products. Look for environment-friendly brands, even if they’re more expensive. This helps cut down on the toxic chemicals that contaminate our rivers and oceans and are generally harmful to the environment.

Recycle all of your garbage. Recycle newspapers, magazines, batteries, and all packaging such as cartons, bottles, cans, and plastics so that they don’t end up in a landfill. Packaging that is not biodegradable can take years to decompose. And recycling paper, glass, plastic, and metal saves energy.

Conserve water. Even though 1.2 billion people in the world lack safe drinking water, people in developed countries use 15 bathtubfuls of water a day! You can cut your water consumption in half by taking showers instead of baths. And water your lawn only once a week. Some people water lawns daily in spite of water shortages and drought warnings.

- Ask, “What did you learn?” Have Ss discuss the article in pairs. Have pairs report to the class.

Word sort

B

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Ask a S to read the examples from the chart aloud.
- Do the task Have Ss make and complete a chart and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class: Ask several Ss to read their responses.

Answers

Answers will vary.

Extra activity GROUPS

Groups think of other things they can do to help the environment. Groups report their ideas to the class and receive one point for each idea that no other group has (e.g., wash clothes in cold water, don’t use your electric dryer in the summer, carpool, turn off the lights when you leave the room).

Vocabulary notebook

Tell Ss to turn to Vocabulary Notebook on p. 116 of their Student’s Books. Have Ss do the task in class, or assign it for homework. (See the teaching notes on p. T-116.)

- Preview the task Write the following on the board: in order to, so that, in spite of, although, even though, because, because of, instead of. Say, “Find and underline these in the article. What kind of word or grammar structure follows each of these?” (Note: See the Answer Key for Exercise 1A for the locations of these words and expressions in the article.)
- Call on individual Ss to each say an answer. Write the answers on the board [in order to + verb; so that + clause; in spite of + noun; although + clause; even though + clause; because + clause; because of + noun].
- Do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. in spite of
2. Because
3. in order to
4. instead of

- Ask, “Are the sentences true for you?” Have individual Ss each read a statement aloud. Ask Ss to raise their hand if their answer is yes.
- Focus on the use Say, “You can use expressions such as these to link your ideas in a sentence. In order to and so that are used to show the purpose of an action. In spite of and even though are used to show the contrast between two ideas. Because and because of link a reason and a result.”

2 Grammar

4.13

- Present the grammar chart Play the recording. Ss listen and repeat.
- Understand the grammar Say, "Ideas in a sentence can be connected, or linked, by conjunctions, prepositions, or the phrase in order to. Conjunctions are followed by a clause." Direct Ss' attention to the bottom of the chart. Ask a S to read the list of conjunctions.
- Say, "Prepositions are followed by a noun or a verb + -ing." Ask a S to read the list of prepositions at the bottom of the chart.
- Say, "When you link ideas that show a purpose, a contrast, or a reason, you can use the conjunctions or prepositions shown in the chart. When you link ideas that show an alternative, use the preposition instead of." Read the headings at the left aloud one at a time, and call on individual Ss to read the related examples aloud.
- Point out the first example sentence for purpose. Say, "When you want to link a purpose to a main idea in an informal way, you can use just to for the infinitive. When you want to be more formal, use the phrase in order to."
- Present Common Errors Read the information aloud.

A

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class: Have individual Ss each read a sentence.

Answers

1. Even though / Although there are a lot of environmental problems, the situation isn't hopeless.
2. It's better to use everyday items to clean your home instead of buying expensive cleaning products. For example, you can use vinegar to clean your mirrors instead of toxic chemicals.
3. In order to / To cut down on the paper you use, get all your bills delivered online.
4. A lot of vegetables from local areas are being sold in stores as a result of / because of / due to consumer pressure. This is good because it supports local farmers and cuts down on transportation.

3 Talk about it

- Preview the task Say, "Look at the environmental problems below." Ask individual Ss to each read aloud one of the problems listed and give a brief description of the problem. Ask a S to read the example aloud. Ask, "What ideas can you add to the list?" Have Ss call out their answers and write them on the board. Ask, "Which are the most serious? What is being done to solve the problems? What else could be done?"
- Do the task As groups discuss the problems, go around the class, and help as needed.
- For each problem, have a short class discussion.

Recycle a conversation strategy This task can be used to recycle organizing views by using expressions to

5. A lot of areas are being affected by air pollution despite / in spite of efforts to improve air quality. Ride a bicycle or walk instead of using the car. Or, if you buy a new car, get a hybrid vehicle so that / so you can save on gas.
6. If you buy bottled water, make sure the bottle is biodegradable so that / so you can prevent buildup in landfills.
7. There is more solar and wind power now due to / because of / as a result of advances in technology. However, in spite of / despite recent advances, they're not being used as widely as they could be by consumers.
8. Although / Even though we need to preserve our natural resources, we also need to use oil and gas for energy.

About you

B

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss complete the task. Walk around the class, and help as needed. Have several pairs tell the class which opinions they agree with.

Extra activity GROUPS

Group members discuss the opinions from Exercise 2A that they disagreed with, giving reasons (e.g., I don't think taking a shower instead of a bath would help because my husband stays in the shower for 20 minutes.). Groups report their ideas to the class.

Extra activity GROUPS

Groups think of other things they can do to help the environment and add a reason or additional information (e.g., It's good to wash clothes in cold water instead of hot water so that you save electricity.; Although it's good to carpool instead of driving everywhere alone, most people don't do it. I guess it's inconvenient.).

Extra practice

Tell Ss to turn to Extra Practice 11B on p. 150 of their Student's Books. Have Ss do the tasks in class, or assign them for homework. (See the teaching notes on p. T-150.)

introduce a list (see Unit 5, Lesson C). Review the expressions (e.g., First of all; Second; There are several problems / solutions . . .). Tell Ss to use the expressions as they discuss solutions. For each problem, have a short class discussion.

Sounds right

Tell Ss to turn to Sounds Right on p. 139 of their Student's Books. Have Ss do the task for Unit 11 in class, or assign it for homework. (See the teaching notes on p. T-139.)

Workbook

Assign Workbook pp. 84 and 85. (The answer key begins on p. T-182.)

Lesson C As I was saying, . . .

↻ Lesson C recycles passives with the present continuous and the present perfect.

1 Conversation strategy

- Set the scene Say, “If you were looking for a job, in addition to your salary, what job benefits would be important to you?” Ask Ss for ideas (e.g., vacation, opportunity for promotions, health-care plan, bonuses, sick leave).

A

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Ask a S to read Adam’s comment aloud. Tell Ss to write down their ideas. Have the class call out their ideas. Write them on the board.

B 4.14

- Preview the task Say, “Listen and read along. What other changes in the workplace do Adam, Celia, and Greg talk about? Underline the answers.”
- Play the recording Ss listen and underline the answers. Have Ss compare their answers in pairs.
- Play the recording again Ss listen, read along, and review their answers. Check the answers with the class [paternity leave, flexible hours, child-care centers, telecommuting, internships].

C

- Present Notice Say, “Sometimes you may want to return to an earlier point in a conversation. Expressions such as As you said are used to go back to a point made earlier by another speaker. You can use As I was saying to go back to your own point.” (For more information, see Language Notes at the beginning of this unit.) Read the information and the expressions aloud. Have Ss find the examples in the conversation. Ask individual Ss to each read an example aloud [Adam: As I was saying, companies are definitely more family-friendly these days. And like I said, there’s more paternity leave . . . ; Greg: And going back to what you were saying about benefits, . . . ; Adam: You mentioned earlier, Celia, about saving on costs].

D 4.15

- Preview the task Say, “Listen to more of the conversation. Write the expressions you hear.”
- Play the recording *Audio script p. T-178 Ss listen and write.
- Play the recording again Ss listen and review their answers. Check answers with the class: Have three Ss read the parts of Greg, Celia, and Adam.

Answers

Greg I mean, like you said, Celia, companies want to save on costs.

Celia But as I said, it’s good experience. And internships can lead to full-time jobs.

Adam True. And companies can see if someone is a good fit before they hire them. As you were saying earlier, Celia, they need good employees. It’s like I was saying, people want good benefits.

Celia Right. And going back to what you were saying, Greg, telecommuting is a kind of benefit.

- Say, “Now discuss the ideas with a partner. Do you agree with any of them?” Remind Ss to use expressions to refer back to things said earlier.
- Follow-up Have a few pairs tell the class about a point they agreed with.

Extra activity GROUPS

Groups of three Ss choose a trend in society and write a conversation similar to Adam, Celia, and Greg’s. Ss can use ideas from Before You Begin, Lesson A, or Lesson B. Ss should use expressions to refer back to things said earlier. Have several groups present their conversations to the class.

2 Strategy plus

- Present Strategy Plus Tell Ss to look back at the conversation on p. 112 and find and so forth. Ask, “What does and so forth refer to?” [technological reasons that telecommuting can work; benefits of an internship] Say, “Find and so on. What does it refer to?” [examples of family-friendly benefits] Read the information and the examples in Strategy Plus. Point out the written and spoken forms of etc. (For more information, see Language Notes at the beginning of this unit.)
 - Present In Conversation Read the information aloud.
- About you
- Preview the task Say, “Complete the sentences with the words in the box, and add a vague expression to each one.” Read the five items aloud. Ask, “Which of the five items best completes sentence 1?” [less time off] Ask a S to read the completed sentence, including a vague expression. Say, “More than one expression is correct for each sentence.”

- Do the task Have Ss complete the task. Check answers with the class: Have individual Ss each read a completed sentence.

Answers

Expressions will vary: and so forth, and so on, and etc. are correct for each opinion.

1. . . . less time off, and so forth.
 2. . . . health insurance, and so on.
 3. . . . equal pay, etc.
 4. . . . improve their résumés, and things like that.
 5. . . . restaurants, and so on.
- Say, “Now discuss each opinion with a partner. Do you agree?” Ask a S to read the example. Have Ss compare opinions.
 - Follow-up Several Ss report which opinions they and their partners agreed on.

3 Listening and strategies

A

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Ask Ss to read the sentences. Check for vocabulary questions. Have Ss finish the sentences, and then take turns reading their completed sentences to their partner.
- Follow-up For each sentence, ask a few Ss how they completed it. (Note: See suggestions in the Answer box for Exercise 3C.)

B 4.16

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud.
- Play the recording Audio script p. T-178 Ss listen and number the extracts.
- Play the recording again Ss listen and review their answers. Check answers with the class.

Answers

- 2 As I was saying, working from home . . .
- 4 Going back to what you were saying about . . .
- 1 Going back to what you said about working . . .
- X I mentioned earlier that calls and email . . .
- 3 As I said, paternity leave isn't being offered . . .

C 4.16

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Say, “Just make brief notes for each trend.”
- Play the recording Audio script p. T-178 Ss listen and write. Pause the recording to give Ss time to write.
- Play the recording again Ss listen and review their answers. Check the answers with the class.

Possible answers

1. Flexible working hours
Advantages: easier to organize your life (chores / errands / family); people are less stressed
Disadvantages: You don't always know when someone will be at their desk
2. Telecommuting
Advantages: people get more done / are more productive; can't always find the right people with the right skills locally
Disadvantages: easy to get distracted by chores / things that need to be done around the house
3. Paternity leave
Advantages: new mothers need help at home; leave helps people feel happier / less stressed
Disadvantages: men might think their bosses see them as less serious about work; could harm their chances of promotion
4. Desk-sharing
Advantages: saves money for the company
Disadvantages: employees don't have their personal space at work; employees don't feel connected to the team; hard to build relationships at work

About you

D

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss complete the task.
- Follow-up Have a class discussion about the trends. Remind Ss to use the strategies from the lesson.

Free talk

Tell Ss to turn to Free Talk 11 at the back of their Student's Books. Have Ss do the task. (See the teaching notes on p. T-135.)

Workbook

 Assign Workbook pp. 86 and 87. (The answer key begins on p. T-182.)

Lesson D Technological change

1 Reading

- Set the scene Read the lesson title aloud. Ask, “What recent changes have you noticed in technology? What gadgets do people use now that they didn’t a few years ago?” Get ideas from Ss (e.g., smartphones, tablets).

A

Prereading

- Preview the task Ask, “How do people use the Internet to promote themselves? In this case to promote means to advertise themselves or make themselves known to more people.” Ask a S to read aloud the three examples. Make sure Ss understand the meaning of each item. Ask, “Has anyone ever used one or more of these three examples? Raise your hand.” Ask Ss who raise their hand to say which one they used and for what reason.
- Say, “Now work with a partner and list as many other ways as you can think of.”
- Do the task Have pairs complete the task. Have Ss call out the different ways from their lists. Write them on the board. Say, “If you’re not familiar with any of the ways suggested, ask the classmate who suggested it to describe it to the class.” Ask, “Which ones seem interesting to you?” Have a short class discussion.

Extra activity GROUPS

Groups look at the ideas on the board for using the Internet. Write on the board:

Which of these have you looked at?

Do you look at any of these regularly?

Which of these do you recommend? Why?

Groups discuss the questions. Each group decides on three recommendations and describes them to the class.

B

During reading

- Present Reading Tip Read the tip aloud. Add, “Asking yourself questions about what you’re reading while you read will keep your interest high. It will help you remember things you may already know about the subject, which will make the reading easier to understand.”
- Preview the reading Say, “Before you read carefully, skim the article. What are the three people mentioned in the article famous for? How did they use the Internet to promote themselves?” When Ss finish, check answers with the class [Justin Bieber: singing — his mother posted a video of him singing; Darcie Chan: writing — she self-published an e-book; Michelle Phan: beautician / cosmetician — she posted an online video tutorial]
- Do the reading Write on the board: What success has each person achieved? Have Ss read the article and answer the question. Then have Ss compare their answers in pairs. [Justin Bieber: He became an “overnight sensation,” he signed a contract with a major record label, his first album was a huge hit; Darcie Chan: Her novel sold 400,000 copies the first year, major publishers and movie studios want to work with her; Michelle Phan: her 200 videos have had over a billion Internet views, she’s been hired by a major cosmetics company.]

Extra activity CLASS

Ss read the article again and underline any vocabulary they do not know. Ss call out the words they underlined. Write the words on the board. Ss have a dictionary race. Call out one of the new words or phrases on the board. Ss look for the word and raise their hands when they find it. The first S to raise his or her hand reads the definition aloud to the rest of the class.

C

Postreading

- Preview the task Say, “Rewrite the questions below, replacing the underlined words with similar expressions from the article. The meanings are listed in the same order as the words and expressions appear in the article. Read through the article slowly. When you come to an expression that you think has a similar meaning, try it in the sentence.”
- Do the task Have Ss find the words and expressions for the meanings. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. When Justin Bieber was in high school, what was his claim to fame? (He won second place in a local talent show.)
 2. Who helped Justin Bieber become an overnight sensation on the Internet? How did it happen? (His mother helped him by posting videos of him singing.)
 3. How did the Internet help Darcie Chan gain recognition as an author? What were the results? (She self-published her first novel as an e-book, and it sold 400,000 copies in the first year.)
 4. How many video tutorials does Michelle Phan have to her credit? What evidence is there of her success? (She has made more than 200 videos, and they have been viewed more than a billion times. She also got a job with a major cosmetics company.)
 5. What are some examples of Internet videos that go viral? (Answers will vary.)
- Say, “Now read the article again, and ask and answer the questions with a partner.” Have Ss complete the task. (Note: The answers are in parentheses in the Answers box above.)

D

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Ask a S to read the four questions aloud. Have Ss discuss the answers with a partner.

2 Listening and writing

- Set the scene Ask, “How does technology change your life?” Get ideas from Ss (e.g., It can change how you spend free time. You can use it to promote a skill. It changes a lot of your social habits.).

A  4.17

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Ask a S to read aloud the four trends. Say, “First, just listen to the four speakers.”
- Play the recording Audio script p. T-179 Ss listen only. Replay the recording. Ss match the person and the trend and circle P or N.
- Play the recording again Ss listen and review their answers. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. b (P) 2. d (P) 3. a (N) 4. c (N)

B  4.17

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Say, “As you listen, write a few words to help you remember the reason or reasons.”
- Play the recording Audio script p. T-179 Ss listen and make notes. Pause the recording after each speaker to give the Ss time to write.
- Play the recording again Ss listen and review their answers. Then have Ss write the answers as complete sentences. Check answers with the class.

Possible answers

1. Adam thinks it's easier to understand messages when they aren't written in “textese.” It's easier to type on the phones now. Mistakes made by the “auto-correct” feature are hilarious.
2. Emily likes online shopping because she saves a lot of time. More and more things are available online.
3. Tyler thinks they are still expensive and bad for the environment. People with these systems don't go out or exercise enough.
4. Madison says people get distracted by their phones and forget to communicate with each other. It's getting more difficult to have interesting, intelligent conversations.

About youC

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss write notes and then discuss their ideas with a partner. Say, “Ask questions to get more information.”

D

- Preview the task Say, “When people describe trends, they talk about whether something is getting more or less

- Follow-up Read each question aloud again. Call on individual Ss to answer.

popular. Read the comment on a technology website.” Have Ss read the comment. Ask, “Are people using their laptops as often these days?” [No] “What functions have smartphones taken over?” [answering email, watching videos, getting directions, searching the Internet] “Is the writer happy about this change?” [yes]

- Present Help Note Call on Ss to read the information aloud. Explain, “Trends show how something is changing. Comparatives like more, less, and fewer are often used to show changing situations. Comparative forms can be repeated and joined with and to emphasize that a situation is changing — like more and more or less and less. Verbs such as increase, decrease, decline, and grow are often used in the continuous to emphasize that a situation is changing. The adverb increasingly is used in the same way.” (For more information, see Language Notes at the beginning of this unit.)
- Say, “Read the comment again and underline the expressions the writer uses to describe a trend.” Have Ss read and underline. Check the answers with the class.

Answers

The trend away from laptops

Recently I've noticed that my friends and I are spending less time on our laptops and more and more time on our smartphones. . . . As people increasingly use their smartphones for these functions, the use of laptops is declining. For me,

- Follow-up Write on the board: online shopping and shopping at a mall. Give Ss one minute to write as many sentences as they can with the two expressions to describe current trends. Ask a few Ss to read their sentences aloud.
- Do the task Have Ss write an article about a technological trend that they are familiar with. Tell them to use their ideas from the discussion in Exercise 2C and expressions in the Help Note.

About youE

- Preview and do the task Have Ss form small groups. Read the instructions aloud. Group members read and discuss each other's posts. Have groups report to the class about the trends they've noticed.

Extra activity INDIVIDUALS / GROUPS

Ss choose a group member's article that they strongly agree or disagree with. They write a response to the writer's observations. Ss form new groups and take turns reading the original articles and their responses. Other group members offer their reactions.

Workbook

- Assign Workbook pp. 88 and 89. (The answer key begins on p. T-182.)

Vocabulary Notebook

If done for homework

Briefly present the Learning Tip and the task directions. Make sure Ss understand what they need to do.

If done in class

- Present Learning Tip Read the information aloud. Say, "Using your own words to give a definition is helpful because you can write an explanation with vocabulary that you know."

- Present In Conversation Books closed. Ask, "What kind of pollution do people talk about most? Write your guess." Books open. Read the information aloud. Ask Ss who guessed correctly to raise their hands.

↻ These tasks recycle vocabulary for talking about the environment.

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions and example aloud. Have Ss complete the task. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. e 3. a 5. b 7. c
2. f 4. h 6. d 8. g

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Have the class suggest ideas for the first statement.
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task. Check answers with the class.

Possible answers

1. Air pollution means that the air is not clean.
2. If something is biodegradable, it will decay, or break down into simple elements.
3. A drought is a period when there is little or no water.
4. If a product is environmentally friendly, that means it doesn't pollute or contaminate.
5. Global warming means that the temperature of the Earth is rising a little every year.
6. A landfill is a place where cities put the trash they've collected.
7. Toxic chemicals are substances that contain poisons that contaminate soil and water.
8. Water consumption refers to how much water we use.

- Preview the Word Builder task Say, "This Word Builder task will help you learn more vocabulary about the environment and give you more practice writing your own definitions." Read the instructions aloud.
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task. Check answers with the class: Have a few Ss read their sentences aloud.

Answers

Answers will vary.

On your own

- Present On Your Own Read the instructions aloud. Ask, "What does the picture show to help save the environment?" [turn off lights; use less water; ride bike to school; recycle paper] Tell Ss to make a list of the notes they write.

- Follow-up At the start of the next class, Ss form small groups and read their lists of notes.

Now I can . . .

- Go over the Now I Can items. Put Ss in pairs to give one example each for the first five items. Call on Ss and ask for examples or explanations.
- Have Ss look over the four lessons and identify any areas they want to review.
- Tell Ss to complete the Now I Can items. Ss check (✓) the items they know and put a question mark (?) by items that they are not confident about. Check with individual Ss which areas need review to see if there are general problems to review in class. Help individual Ss as required. Have Ss hand in a piece of paper with their name and a schedule showing what they plan to review and when. Review or reteach these language items in a future class.

Lesson A Finding a career

Grammar What clauses; long noun phrase subjects

(See Student's Book p. 119.)

The lesson teaches how to use two types of long subjects:

- (1) What clauses that form the subject of "Wh- cleft sentences," and (2) long noun phrases.

Form

When a What clause or long noun phrase is the subject of the verb be, the words that come after be (the complement) can be a single word, a phrase, or a clause.

What clauses

- What clause + be + noun phrase
What you need is (lots of) information.
- What clause + be + adjective phrase
What my friend did was (really) interesting.
- What clause + be + verb phrase
What I would do is (to) talk to people.
- What clause + be + (that) + clause
What I'm saying is (that) you need to choose a career you'll like.

Long noun phrases

- Noun phrase + be + noun phrase
The main thing you need is (lots of) information.
- Noun phrase + be + adjective phrase
Something my friend did was (really) interesting.
- Noun phrase + be + verb phrase
The best thing to do is (to) talk to people.

- Noun phrase + be + (that) + clause
The good thing about that is (that) you end up with a job you love.

Use

The What clauses and long noun phrases as subjects help to highlight or give extra emphasis to the ideas expressed in the complement.

- When a verb phrase follows be, the verb is usually the base form, even if the What clause or noun phrase contains a modal verb or a verb in a tense such as the simple past (e.g., The first thing I would do is talk to people.; What my friend did was call some companies.).

Corpus information Verb forms in the verb phrase complement

In conversation, when the What clause or noun phrase subject includes to + verb, the verb in the complement is usually the infinitive, or to + verb (e.g., The best thing to do is to talk to people.).

Speaking naturally Stressing I and you

(See Student's Book p. 119.)

- I and you are sometimes stressed in conversation to make it clear who a person is talking about.
What would you do, Cate?
- Putting extra stress on a pronoun in this way can also add extra emphasis.
I know what I would do. I'd quit immediately.

Lesson B The world of work

Vocabulary Careers and areas of work

(See Student's Book p. 120.)

Vocabulary for careers and areas of work is presented in the context of people talking about their future career plans.

Grammar The future continuous

(See Student's Book p. 121.)

Form

- Subject + will ('ll) / won't + be + verb + -ing
I'll be working in health care.
I won't be working in this job.

Use

- The future continuous is used to talk about events in progress in the future.
I'll be working in the field of health care.
I hope I'll be using my languages.

- It can also be used to talk about future events that are planned or expected to happen if all goes according to plan.
I'll be graduating in two years.
I'll be starting a degree this fall.
- Other modals such as might, may, should, and could can also be used instead of will to express different degrees of probability.
I may be working in publishing.

Grammar The future perfect

(See Student's Book p. 121.)

Form

- Subject + will ('ll) / won't + have + past participle
My wife will have graduated.
I probably won't have had much experience.

Use

- The future perfect is used for events that are in the past when you “view” them from the future. It is often used to talk about things you expect to be finished or achieved by a certain future time.

My wife will have graduated by then.

I won't have had much experience until I get my first job.

Corpus information

In conversation

The future continuous is much more common than the future perfect.

Common errors with future continuous

Ss often use the present continuous to announce an intention. The future continuous, not the present continuous, is used to do this.

(See you at 6. I'll be waiting for you in the lobby. OR I'll wait . . . NOT ~~I'm waiting~~ . . .)

Lesson C The best part was . . .

Conversation strategy Introducing what you say

(See Student's Book p. 122.)

In Touchstone Student's Book 3, Unit 12, Lesson C, Ss learned expressions to introduce news (e.g., Did I tell you . . . ?; Guess what?) and key issues (e.g., The thing is / was . . .). In this lesson, they learn more expressions for prefacing or introducing information. These include What clauses as subjects (What I heard was), as well as noun phrase subjects similar to The . . . thing is . . . (e.g., The best part was . . .; The reason I ask is . . .).

Strategy plus I don't know if . . .

(See Student's Book p. 123.)

People often use the expression I don't know if (you) . . . to introduce a statement and, particularly, to involve the other person in the topic of conversation. It is a way of exploring the common ground between the speakers.

Corpus information I don't know if . . .

I don't know if . . . is the most frequent four-word expression in conversation. Some of the most frequent expressions that follow it are you've (ever) heard; you're familiar with; and you've (ever) seen.

Lesson D Job interviews

Reading tip

(See Student's Book p. 124.)

The Reading Tip tells Ss to try to predict the “great answers” to the questions before they read. In the article for this lesson, questions are posed as paragraph headings. By thinking about the answers to the questions, Ss activate their background knowledge. They are encouraged to continue reading to find out if the writer has the same answers.

Help note Writing a cover letter

(See Student's Book p. 125.)

The Help Note shows the layout and structure of a model job application cover letter. The example letter includes the formula required in formal letters of this type. Although this letter is part of a job application, the general structure can be applied to other types of formal letters and emails.

Careers

Teach this unit opener page together with Lesson A in one class period.

Introduce the theme of the unit Say, “When you start to think seriously about a career, what are some of the questions you might think about?” Ask Ss for their ideas (e.g., What do I want to do? What am I interested in? Does that job have a good future? What can I do to start preparing for that career now? What would be a good company to apply to?). Say, “In this unit, we’ll talk about some different careers, how to find out about them, and some things you can do to move into the career you want.”

In Unit 12, you learn how to . . .

- Unit aims Read the lesson headings and key unit aims aloud. Tell Ss to listen and read along.

Extra activity INDIVIDUALS

Write on the board:

1. Find an example of a What clause.
2. Find the names of four areas of work.
3. Find one expression you can use to introduce what you want to say.
4. What’s one question a job interviewer might ask?

Ss look through the lessons and find the answers to the questions. A few Ss report their answers to each item (e.g., 1. What you need is lots of information [p. 119] 2. the construction industry, financial services, media and communications, medicine and health care [p. 120] 3. What I heard was . . . [p. 122] 4. What draws you to this line of work? [p. 124]).

Before you begin . . .

- Introduce the areas of work Have Ss look at the pictures. Say, “Work with a partner. Decide what job or area of work is represented in each picture.” Call on individual Ss to give their ideas (e.g., 1. construction worker, carpenter 2. the media, TV reporter, journalist 3. teacher, professor 4. medicine, doctor, nurse).
- Tell Ss to look at Before You Begin. Read the different areas of work aloud. Help with new vocabulary as needed. Ask Ss to give a few examples of jobs in each area (e.g., hotel and tourism — tour guide, concierge, desk clerk, hotel manager).
- Read the four questions aloud.

↻ Recycle a conversation strategy This task recycles expressions that can be used to answer a difficult question (see Unit 10, Lesson C). Say, “You may find these four questions difficult to answer. What expressions can you use to show that?” Call on a few Ss to answer (e.g., That’s a tough one.; It’s hard to say.; Good question.).

- Have Ss work in groups and discuss the questions.
- As groups discuss the questions, go around the class, and help as needed. Ask several groups to report their answers to the class.

Extra activity GROUPS

Groups decide which three areas of work they think are the hardest to get into, which three are the easiest to get into, and which three are the highest paid. A member of each group writes the group’s decisions on the board. The class looks at the lists and tries to agree on the top three answers for each category.

Lesson A Finding a career

1 Getting started

- Set the scene Ask, "When you were in elementary school, what did you want to be when you grew up?" Have several Ss call out their answer. Ask, "Has anyone changed their mind? What do you want to do now? Why?" Elicit answers from the class.

A

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions and the six options aloud. Have a short class discussion. Have Ss try to agree on the three best ways to choose.

B 4.18

- Preview the task Tell Ss to cover the conversation with the four students. Say, "Listen to four students talk about ways to choose a career. Which of the ideas in Exercise 1A do they mention? Check (✓) the ideas."
- Play the recording Ss listen and check (✓).
- Play the recording again Ss listen, read along, and check their answers. Check the answers with the class.

Answers

Checked:

- ✓ do an internship (Jenny)
- ✓ talk to a career counselor (Jason)
- ✓ do research online (Laura)
- ✓ take a personality test (Jason)

- Ask, "What other ideas do they suggest?"

Answers

Laura: Decide on an area you're interested in. Talk to people and find out what jobs they do.

Jacob: Think about what you enjoy doing and then see if you can make a career out of it.

Extra activity PAIRS

Pairs look at all the ideas for choosing a career and decide which two ideas they think are the worst. Several pairs tell the class, giving reasons.

C

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud.
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class: Have individual Ss each read an answer.

Answers

1. What a friend of mine did was interesting. What she did was call up a bunch of companies.
 2. I guess what I'm saying is that you need to choose a career you'll really like.
 3. I think the first thing to do is to decide on an area you're interested in.
 4. And one thing I would do is see a career counselor.
- Focus on the form and the use Say, "Clauses beginning with What can be the subject of a sentence." Write on the board: What a friend of mine did was interesting. Circle was. Ask, "What's the subject of was in this sentence?" [What a friend of mine did] Underline the What clause on the board.
 - Write on the board: The first thing to do is to decide on an area you're interested in. Circle is. Ask, "What's the subject in this sentence?" [The first thing to do] Underline this noun phrase on the board.
 - Say, "Using a What clause or a long noun clause can be very effective when you want to introduce important information or give extra emphasis to the idea that follows."
 - Try it out Tell Ss to look through the speakers' suggestions and underline all the long noun phrases used as subjects. Call on individual Ss to each read a sentence aloud [Laura: I think the first thing to do is to decide on an area you're interested in.; The main thing you need is lots of information.; Jacob: The good thing about that is you end up with a job you love.; Jason: And one thing I would do is see a career counselor and take one of those personality tests to find out what your strengths and weaknesses are.; Jenny: Another thing you can do is apply for an internship with a company. The advantage of that is that you get some work experience while you're still in school.].
 - Tell Ss to double-underline all of the What clauses used as a subject. Call on individual Ss to each read a sentence aloud [Laura: I mean, what I'd do first is talk to people and find out what jobs they do.; Jacob: What you should do is think about what you really enjoy doing with your time.; I guess what I'm saying is that you need to choose a career you'll really like.; Jason: . . . well, what they do is tell you what kinds of jobs you'd be good at.; Jenny: What a friend of mine did was interesting. What she did was call up a bunch of companies and offer to work for free on her vacations.].

2 Grammar

4.19

- Present the grammar chart Play the recording. Ss listen and repeat.
- Understand the grammar Have Ss compare the columns in the chart for What clauses and long noun phrases. Ask Ss to look at the four types of complements that can follow be. Point out that be can be followed by a noun or noun phrase, an adjective or adjective phrase, a verb or verb phrase, or a clause. Have Ss look at the What clauses and long noun phrases that are followed by a clause (the last item in each column). Point out that that is often used to introduce a clause, but it is optional in these types of sentences.
- Say, "The lesson focuses on What clauses and long noun phrases as the subject of be. It is possible for these clauses and phrases to be the subject of other verbs."

A

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions and the example aloud. Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. Well, the best thing to do is to make contacts and network with people. What I would do is ask all my friends and family if they know anyone who could help me. The good thing about that is it could help you get an interview.
2. What I would do first is get some work experience. The advantage of that is it helps you find out if you'd really like a job in that area. What I'm saying is try it out first.

3. Something my friend did was get an internship. She said the main thing you need is a good reference letter. Then what she did was interesting. She just walked into several different companies and introduced herself.
4. What you need is a good résumé. What my classmate did was good. She got hers done professionally. The best thing about that is you make a really good first impression.

About you

B

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have two Ss read the example conversation aloud. Have Ss complete the task. As Ss complete the task, go around the class, and help as needed.
- Follow-up Ask each pair to join another pair to form a small group. Each group decides what they think the best plan of action would be. Have a few groups report to the class.

Extra activity GROUPS

Group members make a list of jobs they have had (e.g., babysitting, dog-walking, a summer job, a part-time job after school, a full-time job). Ss tell each other how they got the job and whether or not they enjoyed it. Remind Ss to use What clauses and long noun phrases as subjects where possible (e.g., I worked in a mail room last summer. What my dad did was call his friends and see if any of them had summer jobs for students. It was kind of boring, but the people were great.).

Extra practice

Tell Ss to turn to Extra Practice 12A on p. 151 of their Student's Books. Have Ss do the tasks in class, or assign them for homework. (See the teaching notes on p. T-151.)

3 Speaking naturally

4.20

- Preview the task Say, "Look at the conversation. What kind of words are in red?" [pronouns] Read the instructions aloud. Remind Ss that red indicates stress. (For more information, see Language Notes at the beginning of this unit.)
- Play the recording Ss listen, repeat, and then continue the discussion. As Ss continue the discussion, go around the class, listening for stress on the appropriate pronouns. If necessary, replay the recording, and have Ss repeat.
- Follow-up Several Ss say what they would do in the situation described in the conversation.

B

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Say, "Read the four students' responses on page 118 to get ideas. Ask your partner questions to respond and get more information." Have Ss complete the task.
- Follow-up Have several Ss report an interesting idea they discussed with their partner.

Extra activity GROUPS

Write on the board:

My parents want me to . . .
. . . be a doctor / dentist / lawyer / (other).
. . . go into the family business.
. . . get married and have a family.

Group members imagine that these statements are true for them and have a conversation similar to the example conversation in Speaking Naturally, remembering to emphasize I and you.

Workbook

Assign Workbook pp. 90 and 91. (The answer key begins on p. T-182.)

Lesson B The world of work

1 Building vocabulary and grammar

- Set the scene Ask, "What career plans do you have? Have you decided on an area of work that interests you?" Have several Ss tell the class.

A 4.21

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Tell Ss to underline each person's career plans. Note the usual American English pronunciation of the names: Simone /siymówn/, Jesse /dʒésiy/, Cheryl /férəl/.
- Play the recording Ss listen, read along, and underline. Check answers with the class [Ashley: a job in communications; Albert: a psychiatric nurse; Jesse: a job in the construction industry; Simone: a financial analyst in an investment bank; Cheryl: an interpreter, a translator, or something in the travel industry].
- Tell Ss to reread the interviews and call out any new vocabulary. Write the words on the board. Have Ss explain words they know. Help with any remaining vocabulary.

Word

B

- Preview the task Ask a S to read the areas of work aloud. Say, "Make a word web for each area of work. Use the interviews to help you. Add any more jobs you know." Read aloud the examples for the construction industry.
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class: Have individual Ss each read an occupation for the areas of work. Write the occupations on the board.

Possible answers

Construction industry: architect, civil engineer, contractor, construction worker, draftsman, tradesperson (electrician, plumber, carpenter, mason)

Financial services: accountant, auditor, banker, financial advisor, financial analyst, mortgage broker, stockbroker, tax advisor / tax preparer

Media and communications: advertising account executive, editor, journalist, interpreter, IT specialist, news photographer, public relations, translator, sportscaster, TV newscaster, writer

Medicine and health care: dentist, lab technician, midwife, nurse, pediatrician, surgeon, ophthalmologist, physical therapist, physician, radiologist, psychiatrist, psychologist

Travel industry: travel agent, tour guide, flight attendant, cruise ship employee, tour operator, interpreter

Sales and marketing: advertising copy writer, sales rep, TV commercial producer / writer, telemarketer, corporate web designer, store clerk

- Ask, "Which jobs do you think would be interesting? fun? well paid? rewarding? Compare your ideas with a partner." Tell Ss to discuss the questions for each category and then for the entire chart.
- Follow-up Write on the board as column headings: Interesting, Fun, Well paid, Rewarding. For each heading, have Ss call out the jobs they think belong in that category.

Vocabulary notebook

Tell Ss to turn to Vocabulary Notebook on p. 126 of their Student's Books. Have Ss do the task in class, or assign it for homework. (See the teaching notes on p. T-126.)

Extra activity PAIRS

Write on the board:

1. What do you like doing?
2. What are you good at and not very good at?
3. What kinds of things are important for you in choosing a career? (e.g., working alone / lots of responsibility)

Pairs ask and answer the questions. Partners then suggest careers for each other. Partners say whether they like the suggestion (e.g., S1: Well, I think you should be a music teacher. You can play three instruments, you love going to concerts, and you want your job to be fun and rewarding. S2: Actually, that's a great idea.).

Figure
it out

C

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Tell Ss to look back at what the people in Exercise 1A say to help them.
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. won't be working
2. will be graduating
3. might be working
4. will have finished

- Focus on the form and the use Write on the board, underlined as shown:
Jesse won't be working in telemarketing.
Albert will be graduating with a degree in nursing.
Cheryl might be working as a translator.
- Say, "Will + be + verb + -ing is called the future continuous. It is used to talk about events in progress in the future. You can also speculate about events in progress in the future by using a modal such as might or may instead of will."
- Write on the board underlined as shown: Ashley will have finished her degree by then. Ask, "Why is the auxiliary will used?" [to talk about the future] Circle have finished on the board. Ask, "What structure is this like?" [present perfect]
- Say, "The structure formed with will + have + past participle is called the future perfect. It is often used to talk about things you expect to be finished by a certain time in the future."
- Try it out Write on the board: Six months from now, I'll be . . . , I won't be . . . , I might be . . . , I'll have . . . Have Ss complete the statements using ideas about their plans for the future. Ask a few Ss to read their completed statements.

2 Grammar

4.22

- Present the grammar chart Play the recording. Ss listen and repeat.
- Understand the grammar Have Ss look at the information about the future continuous on the left side of the chart. Say, "In addition to talking about ongoing activities in the future, you can use this verb form to talk about events you strongly expect to happen in the future if everything goes to plan." Have Ss look at the last section. Say, "If you don't feel very certain about an event, you can use might or may. You can also use could to say something is possible, or should to say what is strongly expected or what ought to happen."
- Have Ss look at the information about the future perfect on the right side of the chart. Point out by then. Say, "By and a reference to a future point in time is often used with the future perfect."
- Present In Conversation Ask a S to read the information aloud. (For more information, see Language Notes at the beginning of this unit.)

A

- Preview and do the task Say, "Complete the conversations using the future continuous or future perfect." Tell Ss to read each conversation before completing it.
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class: Have two Ss each read a conversation.

Answers

1. A What do you think you'll be doing five years from now?
B I hope I'll be working as an architect. I'll have finished all the exams by then. How about you?
A Well, by then I'll have graduated, too — I hope to finish my nursing degree in two years. I might be working in a medical practice.
2. A Do you have any idea what your life will be like in ten years?

B Well, I hope I'll be enjoying life. I think my boyfriend and I will have gotten married by then, and maybe we'll have bought our own home. I'm not sure if we'll have started a family, but if we have kids, I think I'll be taking care of them, and I may be working part-time, too.

3. A What do you think you'll be doing when you're 60?
B Well, I probably won't have stopped working, but I hope I won't be working long hours every day.
A Me too. Maybe by then I'll have retired, and I'll be living by the ocean.
4. A What kinds of jobs do you think people will be doing 20 years from now?
B I think more people will be working in health care because people will be living longer. Also the retirement age will have risen, too, so people might still be working when they're 70.

- Practice Have Ss practice the conversations in pairs, taking turns playing each role.

About you

B

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss complete the task. As Ss complete the task, go around the class, and help as needed. Have several Ss tell the class any hopes and dreams they have that are similar to their partner's.
- Present Common Errors Read the information aloud. Say, "This is another use of the future continuous. Imagine you are making an arrangement on the phone to meet a friend." Write on the board: I _____ outside the movie theater. (stand) Ask, "How can you tell your friend what you intend to do?" [I'll be standing] Elicit more ideas from the class (e.g., I'll be bringing a friend; I'll be wearing my red coat.)

Extra practice

Tell Ss to turn to Extra Practice 12B on p. 151 of their Student's Books. Have Ss do the tasks in class, or assign them for homework. (See the teaching notes on p. T-151.)

3 Talk about it

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Ask individual Ss to each read a statement aloud. Have Ss complete the task. Go around the class, and help as needed.
- Follow-up For each statement, groups say whether they agreed or not and give their reasons.

Extra activity GROUPS / CLASS

Groups write three predictions of their own about what working lives will be like 20 years from now. Group members walk around the class asking their classmates if they agree or not. Group members share results and then report them to the class.

Sounds right

Tell Ss to turn to Sounds Right on p. 139 of their Student's Books. Have Ss do the task for Unit 12 in class, or assign it for homework. (See the teaching notes on p. T-139.)

Workbook

Assign Workbook pp. 92 and 93. (The answer key begins on p. T-182.)

Lesson C The best part was . . .

Lesson C recycles long noun phrases and What clauses as the subject of be.

1 Conversation strategy

- Set the scene Say, "Raise your hand if you've ever had a summer job." Have a few of the Ss who raise their hands tell the class what the job was and their opinion of it (e.g., S1: I was a cashier at a supermarket. It was really tiring, and I wasn't very well paid. S2: I was a lifeguard at the local pool. It didn't pay very well either, but I really loved every minute of it.). Write the jobs on the board.

A

- Preview and do the task Say, "In addition to the jobs on the board, what kinds of summer jobs do students do? Make a list." Have Ss complete the task. Ask Ss to call out the jobs from their lists. Add them to the board.

B 4.23

- Preview the task Books closed. Say, "Listen to Jin-Ho and Jenn. What does Jenn say about working at the theme park? Listen, then listen again and write the answers."
- Play the recording Ss listen only. Replay the recording. Ss listen and write. Have Ss compare their answers in pairs.
- Play the recording again Books open. Ss listen, read along, and review their answers. Check answers with the class [Jenn says that it was a good job because she got a free season pass and saw a lot of concerts.]. Help with new vocabulary as needed.

C

- Present Notice Read the information and the examples aloud. (For more information, see Language Notes at the beginning of this unit.) Have Ss find the examples in the conversation. Ask individual Ss to each read aloud an example from the conversation [Jin-Ho: The reason I ask is I was wondering about applying for a job there myself.; Jenn: I mean, the best part was that I got to go on all the rides for free.; And what I thought was really good was I got to see a lot of the concerts and meet some of the performers backstage.; Jin-Ho: Now, what I heard was that it's hard to get a job there.; Jenn: What I was going to tell you was that they have a job fair in the spring.].
- Practice Tell Ss to practice the conversation in pairs, taking turns playing each role.

D 4.24

- Preview and do the task Say, "Listen. Write the expressions Jin-Ho and Jenn use."
- Play the recording Audio script p. T-180 Ss listen and write. Replay the recording. Ss listen and review their answers. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. Jenn Have you had any experience? What I was going to say was it helps when you have previous work experience.
Jin-ho Actually, yeah. I worked in a restaurant one time. The best part was I got good tips.
2. Jin-ho So what will you be doing during summer break?
Jenn I'll be working as a camp counselor this year. My friend did it last year. She said it was great. What I thought was good was that she got to go rafting and everything with the kids and she got paid for it.
3. Jin-ho How old were you when you got your first job?
The reason I ask is my sister wants to work, but she's only 15.
Jenn What I heard was that you have to be 16 before you can get a job. But I'm not sure.

- Practice Have Ss practice the complete conversation in pairs, taking turns playing each role.

About you

E

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. As pairs ask and answer, go around the room and give help as needed.
- Follow-up For each question, have a few Ss share their answer with the class.

Extra activity PAIRS

Pairs write a short conversation similar to Jin-ho and Jenn's, preferably based on a summer job one of them has had. Remind Ss to use expressions to introduce what they say. Pairs of Ss present their conversation to another pair. A few pairs present their conversations to the class.

2 Strategy plus

- Present Strategy Plus Say, “I don’t know if (you) . . . is another expression you can use to introduce a statement. It helps you involve the other person in the topic. You can find out if they have any information to share.” (For more information, see Language Notes at the beginning of this unit.) Tell Ss to look back at the conversation on p. 122. Have Ss find examples of I don’t know if . . . [Jenn: I don’t know if you know, but you get a free season pass.; Jenn: I don’t know if you’re familiar with one, but you go around the park and interview for different jobs.].
- Read aloud the information and the example in Strategy Plus.
- Present In Conversation Ask a S to read the information aloud.

A

- Preview the task Say, “Rewrite the sentences. Use I don’t know if to introduce the topics.” Tell Ss to read both parts of all the sentences before writing the new sentence.
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. I don’t know if you’ve ever worked in a restaurant, but it’s really hard work.
2. I don’t know if you’ve ever sent out your résumé, but often companies don’t bother to reply.
3. I don’t know if you’ve read about this, but one of the most popular careers is engineering.
4. I don’t know if you know this, but the main thing employers want is reliable workers.
5. I don’t know if you’ve heard, but more and more people work while they’re on vacation.
6. I don’t know if you’re familiar with all those jobs websites, but you can post your résumés on them.
7. I don’t know if you’ve read this, but 80% of people are not satisfied with their jobs.
8. I don’t know if you’ve heard this, but on average, people in the U.S. change jobs seven times before they turn 30.

B

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. As Ss complete the task, walk around the class and give help as needed.

3 Listening and strategies

A 4.25

- Preview the task Ask, “Can you answer any of the questions below?” Ask individual Ss to each read a question aloud and elicit an answer from the class. Say, “Now listen to a personal trainer talk about her work. Check (✓) the questions she answers.”
- Play the recording Audio script p. T-180 Ss listen and check (✓). Ss compare their answers with a partner.
- Play the recording again Ss listen and review their answers. Check answers with the class.

Answers

Checked:

- ✓ What is a personal trainer’s main role?
- ✓ Why do people hire personal trainers?
- ✓ Is a personal trainer’s job rewarding? Why?
- ✓ What are the disadvantages of the job?
- ✓ How much do personal trainers earn?

B 4.25

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Add, “Just write brief notes to help you remember.”
- Play the recording Audio script p. T-180 Ss listen and write. Replay the recording if required. Have Ss compare their answers with a partner.
- Play the recording again Ss listen and review their answers. Tell Ss to write their notes as full sentences. Check answers with the class.

Possible answers

1. A personal trainer’s main role is to help people to achieve their personal fitness goals and educate clients about their general health as well as exercise.
2. People hire personal trainers to motivate them and make sure their workout suits their lifestyle.
3. It’s rewarding because you build strong personal relationships and you help people become fit.
4. The disadvantages of the job are that clients sometimes cancel appointments, and she can’t work if she’s sick.
5. Most personal trainers earn $35–40,000 a year, but some make thousands of dollars for each session.

About you

C

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions and the example aloud. Have Ss complete the task, then share their answers with the class.

Extra activity INDIVIDUALS / CLASS

Ss write a short report about someone they know whose career they admire. Ss say how that person got the job, what he or she does, why he or she is good at it, what the best / worst thing about it is, etc. Ss take turns presenting their reports to the class (e.g., My friend is a personal trainer. She graduated with an English degree, but she didn’t know what to do. Anyway, she always liked sports so . . . She loves her job. The best thing about it is . . .).

Workbook

 Assign Workbook pp. 94 and 95. (The answer key begins on p. T-182.)

Lesson D Job interviews

1 Reading

- Set the scene Read the lesson title aloud. Ask, “Has anyone ever been on a job interview? What was the job for? How did the interview go?” And then ask, “Is anyone going for an interview soon? What’s the job for? How confident do you feel?” Get ideas from Ss.

A

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Write on the board: What would you do to prepare for a job interview? Ask a S to read the example aloud. Add the example under the question: One thing you need to do is research the company.
- Ask, “What else can you do to prepare?” Have Ss work in pairs and write their own lists. Give Ss two minutes to brainstorm as many ideas as they can. When Ss finish, have pairs read their lists, and add them to the ideas on the board. Find out which pairs thought of the most things.

B

- Preview the reading Books closed. Say, “Now imagine you are a job interviewer. What would you want to know about a potential employee? What would you ask?” Have Ss call out their ideas, and write them on the board.
- Present Reading Tip Read the information aloud. Add, “This will help you start thinking about what you already know. In addition, you’ll want to know if the writer is answering the questions the same way you did.”
- Books open. Say, “Look at the questions at the beginning of each paragraph in the article. Compare the questions with the ones on the board. Are any similar?” Have Ss call out which questions are similar. Circle them on the board. Leave the questions on the board.
- Say, “Imagine you have an interview for a job you really want. Look at the ‘tough’ interview questions that begin the paragraphs. How would you answer each one? Write your answers.”
- When Ss finish writing their answers, have them work in pairs and share what they wrote. Then read each question in the article, and call on a few Ss to report to the class about how they would answer.
- Say, “Now read the article. How would you change your answers? Write the change, and make notes about why.”
- Do the reading Have Ss read the article and write the changes for their answers. After Ss finish, read each question in the article again. Call on Ss to say how they changed their answers and why.
- Do the reading again Tell Ss to read the article again and underline any new vocabulary. Then have Ss work in pairs to compare new words and help each other with meanings. Tell Ss to use dictionaries if needed.

C

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Ask individual Ss to each read a question aloud.
- Do the task Have Ss find and write down the answers to the questions. Have Ss discuss their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. Some candidates are tripped up by unexpected or difficult questions.
2. They talk about their personal life (e.g., family, hometown etc.).
3. You need to show that you understand what the job involves and give an example of how you acquired the relevant skills.
4. It shows that the candidate is honest, and it gives the candidate an opportunity to show that he or she learned from the mistake.
5. Answers will vary.

Extra activity PAIRS

Ss imagine they are on an interview for their dream job. Pairs take turns interviewing each other for the job they each want, using the questions from the reading and the other questions on the board. When Ss finish, they say whether or not they would hire their partner for the job. A few Ss report their reasons to the class.

2 Listening and writing

- Set the scene Say, "When you look at a job listing in the paper or online, what information does the listing usually have?" Have Ss call out their ideas. Write them on the board (e.g., the job title, the duties, the necessary qualifications and experience, salary and benefits, how to apply).

A 4.26

- Preview the task Say, "This is an advertisement for a local tour guide for a tour company in Montreal. Read the job advertisement. Can you guess the missing words?" Tell Ss to think about the context, guess the missing words, and write them on a separate piece of paper.
- Read the advertisement aloud. Call on Ss to suggest the missing words (e.g., T: Would you enjoy meeting "blank" from other countries? What words could go here? S1: people / students.).
- Say, "Now listen to Maria talk about the ad with her friend Alex. Write the correct information."
- Play the recording Audio script p. T-181 Ss listen and write the correct information.
- Play the recording again Ss listen and review their answers. Check answers with the class. After each answer is given, find out if any Ss guessed it correctly.

B 4.26

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Say, "As you listen, write a few words to help you remember the answers to the question. Don't write complete sentences."
- Play the recording Audio script p. T-181 Ss listen and make notes.
- Play the recording again Ss listen and review their answers. Then have Ss write the answers as complete sentences. Check answers with the class.

Possible answers

It's only part-time, so she can still study.
She enjoys meeting people from overseas.
She is fluent in English and her Spanish is pretty good.
She spends her weekends going to museums and visiting historical sites.

C

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Explain that a cover letter accompanies your résumé and introduces you to the company.
- Present Help Note Read the information aloud. As you read each bullet point, call on a S to read the paragraph indicated in the example letter.
- Explain, "The beginning and end of an application letter are fairly standard. The most important parts are the opening paragraph and the middle paragraphs. These tell about your experience, strengths, and interests."
- Write on the board: work and volunteer jobs, personal experiences, strong interests and strengths. Say, "Make lists of your past work and volunteer jobs, important personal experiences, and strong interests." Have Ss make their lists. When Ss finish, say, "Consider each item on your lists. Decide if each is something that would help you get the job as tour guide. Choose the most significant thing in each of the three categories on the board." Call on a few Ss to share their choices and reasons.
- Do the task Have Ss write their letters using the ideas from their lists and the structure outlined in the Help Note.

Extra activity CLASS

Before Ss write their letters, say, "It's important to use positive, persuasive words and expressions in your letter. These types of words will help make a strong positive impression. What words and expressions make a strong impression in the example letter?" Ss scan the letter and call out answers. Write them on the board [strongest qualification, fluent English, enthusiastic, excellent guide, sense of humor, positive attitude, welcome the opportunity]. Ss then look at their experiences and think of ways to express them with positive, persuasive words. Ss call out their ideas. Add them to the board.

D

- Preview and do the task Ss form groups, read one another's cover letters, and decide who should get the job. Have each group report to the class who they chose and why.

Free talk

Tell Ss to turn to Free Talk 12 at the back of their Student's Books. Have Ss do the task. (See the teaching notes on p. T-136.)

Workbook

 Assign Workbook pp. 96 and 97. (The answer key begins on p. T-182.)

Vocabulary Notebook

If done for homework

Briefly present the Learning Tip and the task directions. Make sure Ss understand what they need to do.

If done in class

- Present Learning Tip Read the information and the examples aloud. Say, “When you look up new vocabulary, notice words that have the same root. The name of a job and the title of the person who does the job often have the same root but different endings. Also notice collocations.

For example, years ago, a person would have been a nurse, but today there is more specialization, and a person could be a geriatric nurse, a pediatric nurse, or a surgical nurse.”

- Present In Conversation Books closed. Ask, “Which job do you think people talk about most?” Have Ss call out ideas. Books open. Ask a S to read the information to the class.

↻ These tasks recycle vocabulary for talking about occupations.

- Preview and do the Word Builder task Say, “This Word Builder task will help you recognize collocations used to name specialized occupations.” Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss complete the task. Check answers with the class.

Answers

civil engineer, construction worker, laboratory technician, pediatric nurse, psychiatric nurse, social worker, systems analyst / engineer

- Have Ss make other combinations (e.g., business analyst) and share them.

On your own

- Present On Your Own Read the instructions aloud.
- Follow-up At the start of the next class, Ss form small groups and read their lists of jobs.

Now I can . . .

- Go over the Now I Can items. Put Ss in pairs to give one example each for the first six items. Call on Ss and ask for examples or explanations.
- Have Ss look over the four lessons and identify any areas they want to review.
- Tell Ss to complete the Now I Can items. Ss check (✓) the items they know and put a question mark (?) by items that they are not confident about. Check with individual Ss which areas need review to see if there are general problems to review in class. Help individual Ss as required. Have Ss hand in a piece of paper with their name and a schedule showing what they plan to review and when. Review or reteach these language items in a future class.

Checkpoint Units 10–12

Before you begin the Checkpoint, write on the board: Grammar, Vocabulary, Conversation Strategies. Tell Ss to think about Units 10–12 and write down which area they are most sure about. Say each area, and ask Ss to raise their hands for the one they wrote.

1 Talking about jobs

↻ This task recycles linking ideas. It also recycles vocabulary for work and the conversation strategy of using expressions such as and so on.

- Preview and do the task Say, “Match the two parts of each sentence.” Have a S read the example sentence aloud. Have Ss match the parts of the sentences. Check answers with the class: Read the first part of each sentence aloud, and call on a S to say the second part.

Answers

1. c 2. g 3. e 4. b 5. d 6. a 7. f

- Say, “Discuss the sentences with a partner. Add ideas and expressions such as and so on, and so forth, and etc.” To model the task, read the example sentence, and call on a S to respond with an opinion (e.g., S: I’m sure it’s rewarding, but I don’t want to become a surgeon. I don’t want the stress and responsibility, and so on.). Have Ss do the task.
- Follow-up A few pairs share their opinions.

2 How many words can you think of?

↻ This task recycles expressions to describe celebrity and vocabulary for environmental problems. It also recycles the conversation strategy of introducing what you say with expressions such as What I heard was (that) . . .

A

- Preview and do the task Read aloud the instructions, the category names, and the example in the chart. Have Ss complete the charts and then compare their answers in pairs. Check answers with the class: Have Ss call out ideas. Write them on the board.

B

- Preview and do the task Say, “Choose four items from each category. Write a piece of information using each expression.” To model the task, choose a few items from each category and call on Ss to use them in sentences. Then have Ss write their sentences.
- Have two Ss read the example conversation aloud. Write on the board: I don’t know if and What I heard was. Ask, “How many other expressions can you remember to introduce what you say?” Write Ss’ answers on the board [What I thought was good was; What I was going to tell you / say was; The best part is / was; The reason I ask is].
- Tell Ss to work in pairs, taking turns sharing and responding to the sentences they wrote.

3 What will life be like in 2030?

↻ This task recycles the future continuous and the future perfect. It also recycles the conversation strategy of referring back in a conversation.

A

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Ask, “When do you use future continuous? For what kind of activities?” [for ongoing activities in the future] “When do you use future perfect?” [for events that are in the past when you view them from the future]
- Do the task Have Ss complete the sentences. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. . . . , people will be buying . . . we’ll be finding . . . we’ll be living . . .
2. Ideally, we’ll have slowed . . . We won’t be using . . . countries will have started . . .
3. . . . people will be eating . . . people will have decreased.
4. . . . we’ll be living . . . society will have risen . . .

B

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. To guide Ss’ discussions, write on the board: Do you think the predictions are right? Why or why not?
- To model the task, call on a S to respond with an opinion about sentence 1. Respond and refer back to what the S said (e.g., T: Do you think we will be living in a cleaner environment in 2030? S: No, I don’t. Companies aren’t developing a lot of environment-friendly products now, and there’s no reason for them to start. T: I agree. As you said, there’s no incentive for companies to develop them.).
- Do the task Ss work in groups and discuss the predictions. Ask groups to report their opinions.

Extra activity INDIVIDUALS / PAIRS مرجع زبان ایرانیان

Ss look back at each unit in their Student’s Books and write one prediction on its topic. They should use the future continuous or the future perfect (e.g., Unit 2: By 2030, we’ll be buying our clothes from vending machines instead of stores.). Ss then share their predictions in pairs.

4 What if...?

↻ This task recycles if clauses to talk hypothetically about the past. It also recycles the conversation strategy of using expressions such as Good question to answer difficult questions.

A

- Preview the task Have Ss read about the three people. Ask comprehension questions such as “Why did Alfonso drop out of college?” [He got sick.] “Who has been at the same company for a long time?” [Alice.] “What did Martin’s personality tests show?” [They showed that he was creative.]
- Read the instructions and the example aloud. Give Ss two minutes to write as many sentences as they can.
- Do the task Ss write their sentences and compare them in pairs.

5 Check it out.

↻ This task recycles tag questions.

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss complete the sentences with guesses about their partner, and add tag questions. Check answers with the class.

Possible answers

1. You live in a large apartment building, don't you?
2. You've studied English for three years, haven't you?
3. You don't like rap music, do you?
4. You're a nurse, aren't you?
5. You went to Paris on vacation once, didn't you?

6 Any suggestions?

↻ This task recycles the passive of the present continuous and the present perfect. It also recycles the conversation strategy of using tag questions to soften advice and give encouragement.

- Preview and do the task Say, “Complete the sentences with the passive of the present continuous or the present perfect.” Have a S read the example sentence aloud. Have Ss do the task. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. “We’re being given too much homework these days.”
2. “I’ve been asked to do volunteer work, but I’m too busy.”
3. “I’ve been promoted at work, but I prefer my old job!”
4. “People have been laid off at work recently. I’m worried because I’m being paid more than my co-workers.”

B

- Preview the task Write on the board: where we live. Say, “Deciding where we live is a big decision. What are some other areas of life that we make big decisions about?” Get ideas from Ss, and write them on the board (e.g., career, school, friends, marriage). Read the instructions aloud.
- Do the task Have Ss work in pairs and discuss their three big decisions. To model the task, have a S read you one of their decisions, and ask a hypothetical question (e.g., S: I recently decided to go back to school to get an MBA. So I applied, and got in! T: What would you have done if you hadn't gotten into a school? S: It's hard to say.)
- Follow-up A few Ss report to the class about one of their partner’s big decisions.

- Tell Ss to work in pairs, taking turns asking and answering questions to see if their guesses are correct. Have Ss note their correct and incorrect guesses.
- Follow-up Find out who got the most correct guesses.

Extra activity CLASS

Ss take turns making guesses about you using tag questions (e.g., You've taught English for ten years, haven't you?). Other Ss raise their hands if they agree. Tell Ss if they are correct.

- Ask two Ss to read the example conversation aloud. Write You could . . . on the board. Ask, “What other expressions can you use to give advice?” Write Ss’ ideas on the board (e.g., You should . . . ; It would be a good idea to . . .).
- Have Ss write advice for each problem using the expressions on the board. When Ss finish, say, “Now role-play conversations with a partner. Take turns reading the problems and making suggestions. Use tag questions to soften your advice.” Have pairs do the task.
- Follow-up A few pairs present role plays to the class.

Extra activity PAIRS

Pairs write two new problems on a piece of paper and exchange papers with another pair. Pairs do the activity again using the new problems. This time they give advice using what clauses and long noun phrases as subjects (e.g., S1: I don't have enough money to go on vacation. S2: What you need is a part-time job. One thing you could do is . . .).

Free talk

UNIT 1 An interview with . . .

1

- Preview the task Tell Ss to turn to the back of their Student's Book and look at Free Talk 1. Read the instructions aloud. Model the task by having Ss look at the first question stem. Say, "Think of ways to complete this question." Have Ss call out ideas. Say, "Think of interesting ways to complete all the questions. Use your own ideas."
- Do the task Have Ss complete the questions with their own ideas.

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Ask a pair of Ss to read the example conversation aloud. Have Ss do the task.

↻ Recycle pronunciation Remind Ss to use reductions in their questions (see Lesson A, p. 3).

- Preview and do the task
- Ss take turns sharing questions and answers they think are the most interesting.
- Follow-up Ss talk with a classmate whose answer they found interesting and get more information.

UNIT 2 What's popular?

- Preview the task Tell Ss to turn to the back of their Student's Books and look at Free Talk 2. Read the instructions aloud. Ask Ss to look at the TV box. Have a S read the first discussion question aloud. Ask a S to read the example answer below the chart.

- Do the task Have Ss complete the task.
- Follow-up Groups tell the class about an answer they all agreed on and an answer they could not agree on. Groups also report any interesting facts they learned in their discussions.

- Follow-up Have Ss form small groups and read their lists. The group finds things they have in common and shares them with the class.

UNIT 4 Lesson B Inseparable phrasal verbs

If A is done for homework

Briefly preview the task for Exercise A and present Note. Make sure Ss understand what they need to do. Have Ss complete Exercise A at home, then check answers and do Exercise B in class.

If done in class

A

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Ask a S to read aloud the phrasal verbs in the box.
- Present Note Say, "Here are three new inseparable phrasal verb + preposition combinations." Read Note aloud. Ask Ss, "What does it mean if you get along with a person?" [You have a good relationship.] Ask, "What does it mean if you are looking forward to something?" [You can't wait because you're going to enjoy it.] "What things do people look forward to?" [vacation, parties, graduation] Ask, "What does it mean if you can't get through to someone?" [You can't make the person understand or accept something.]
- Do the task Point out the underlined section of sentence 1 and the phrasal verb that replaced it. Have Ss complete the task. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. I find work parties boring. I usually try to get out of them.
2. It takes me ages to get around to returning friends' calls. I'm surprised I have any friends.

3. If a friend tells me a lie, I never get over it. I never trust that person again.
4. I'm not good at buying gifts for people, so I usually try to get away with buying gift cards.
5. It annoys me when friends can't get through dinner without looking at their phones.
6. My dad wants a big party for my twenty-first birthday. I hate parties, but he won't listen, and I can't get through to him.
7. My friends are all pretty easygoing. I get along with them all.
8. I like to spend Friday evenings all by myself. I look forward to them.

About you

B

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Call on a few Ss to each make a sentence from Exercise A true for them. Say, "Make the sentences in Exercise A true for you." Then have Ss read their sentences to a partner.

Extra activity PAIRS

Have Ss write three of the phrasal verbs from the box in Exercise A on a piece of paper and give it to a partner. Ss write a new sentence for each phrasal verb. Then have them find new partners and read their sentences aloud.

Extra practice

UNIT 5 Lesson A The passive of modal verbs

If A is done for homework

Briefly preview the task for Exercise A. Make sure Ss understand what they need to do. Have Ss complete Exercise A at home, then check answers in class. Have Ss practice the conversation in pairs. Then have Ss do Exercise B.

If done in class

A

- Preview the task Say, "In this activity you have to decide if the verbs are active or passive." Ask, "What's the pattern for an active modal verb in a sentence?" [modal verb + verb] "What's the pattern for a passive modal verb in a sentence?" [modal verb + be + past participle] Read the instructions aloud. Model the activity. Ask Ss to look at the first line of conversation 1. Elicit the answer [should be allowed].
- Do the task Have Ss complete the conversations. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. A I think 15-year-olds should be allowed to have jobs. They're old enough.
B Well, I think they should spend their time studying, not working.
A Yes, but I still think they ought to be given a choice about whether to work. Some kids need to earn money and they should be encouraged to work.

2. A People shouldn't be allowed to get credit cards until they're 21. They're not responsible enough.
B But young people need to learn to manage their money, don't they?
A Yes, but they don't have to be given credit cards. They could use debit cards instead.
3. A Something ought to be done about dangerous drivers who've caused an accident. Maybe their licenses could be taken away for life or something.
B But people learn from mistakes. They shouldn't lose their licenses forever.
A Well, maybe they should be required to take a driving test every year, then.

- Practice Have Ss practice the conversations with a partner.

About you

B

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss complete the task.
- Follow-up For each conversation, have a few pairs share their opinions with the class.

UNIT 5 Lesson B get passive vs. be passive

If A is done for homework

Briefly preview the task for Exercise A and present Note. Make sure Ss understand what they need to do. Have Ss complete Exercise A at home, then check answers and do Exercise B in class.

If done in class

A

- Present Note Read the information aloud.
- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss complete the task. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. People who are / get caught speeding in Norway can be / get fined 10 percent of their annual income. Sometimes they get / are sentenced to 18 days in jail, too. That's pretty harsh. I mean, they should just get / be sentenced to community service instead.
– Lars, Norway
2. Here in Germany, people don't get / aren't arrested for speeding on the freeway because many areas don't have a speed limit. I love to drive fast, so I definitely think these laws shouldn't be / get changed. But you know, people are / get fined for running out of gas on the freeway. I guess it's dangerous, so . . .

– Lena, Germany

3. It's interesting, but in some European countries, if your car breaks down, and you get out of the car without a visibility vest, you could be / get fined. I really think laws like that shouldn't be / get enforced. Actually, things like that shouldn't be / get made into laws at all. It should be your own choice. – Jill, United States

About you

B

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Have pairs discuss the questions. Have Ss report their answers to the class. (Note: If using the Extra activity below, write the answers on the board.)

Extra activity CLASS

Have Ss working in small groups use the information on the board to make a final list of laws that should be changed. Groups give reasons for their choices. Groups then decide on two new laws that should be passed.

UNIT 6 Lesson A The past perfect

If A is done for homework

Preview the task for Exercise A and present Common Errors. Make sure Ss understand what they need to do. Have Ss complete Exercise A at home, then check answers and do Exercise B in class.

If done in class

A

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Tell Ss to read the entire paragraph before they begin.
- Present Common Errors Read the information aloud. Say, "Be sure to check that you've used the correct form of the verb following had."
- Do the task Model the task. Tell Ss to read the first three sentences and complete the two blanks with the simple past or past perfect. Ask a S to call out the answers. [had; had met / met] Ask, "Why are these answers correct?" [The time expression talks about a specific time in the past (my last year of high school) that isn't connected to another event in the past; this is the main story line. Then you can use had met to emphasize that the event happened before the other events, or you can just use the simple past.] Have Ss complete the blog and compare their answers with a partner. Check answers with the class. Tell Ss to raise their hand if they have a different answer as sometimes both forms are possible.

Answers

I have some good news for everyone! It's a long story, but . . . in my last year of high school, in California, I had a girlfriend named Sophia. We had met / met two years earlier when we were both playing on the softball team. After we graduated, she moved to Texas because she had gotten / got a place at a culinary school there. After a few months, she broke up with me because she had met / met someone else. I was very upset, but I accepted it because we hadn't seen each other since graduation. Eventually, I got a job in Chicago. Before I left California, I had tried / tried to contact Sophia and her family, but no one had returned / returned my calls. Then, last month, I went to the grocery store, and there was Sophia, in line at the checkout. It turned out she had gotten a job in Chicago a month earlier, and she had moved into an apartment on my street! It was weird because I had spent / spent a whole year trying to contact her. And the best thing was that Sophia had missed / missed me, too. Anyway, to make a long story short, we're now planning to get married. Maybe it wasn't a coincidence after all!

B

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Tell Ss to look at the story again after they finish. Say, "If you left out too many details, tell the story again."

UNIT 6 Lesson B Responses with So and Neither

If A is done for homework

Preview the task for Exercise A. Make sure Ss understand what they need to do. Have Ss complete Exercise A at home, then check answers in class. Have Ss practice the conversations in pairs. Then do Exercise B in class.

If done in class

A

- Preview and do the task Ask, "When do you respond with So?" [to agree with an affirmative statement] "When do you respond with Neither?" [to agree with a negative statement]
- Ask, "When you add either to a short response to show something in common, is it an affirmative or negative response?" [negative] Ask, "What do you add to an affirmative response?" [too]
- Read the instructions aloud. Model the activity. Tell Ss to read conversation 1 and choose the correct response. Elicit the answer and the reason it is correct. [Neither did I or I didn't either because the response is to never went, which is negative and simple past.]
- Do the task Have Ss complete the task. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. Neither did I / I didn't either.
2. Neither have I / I haven't either.

UNIT 8 Lesson A Past modals would have, should have, could have

If A is done for homework

Briefly preview the task for Exercise A. Make sure Ss understand what they need to do. Have Ss complete Exercise A at home, then check answers and do Exercise B in class.

If done in class

A

- Preview and do the task Books closed. Write on the board: would have, should have, could have. Ask, "When do you use would have?" [to imagine your behavior in a past situation] "When do you use should have?" [to say what was the right thing to do in a past situation] Ask, "How about could have?" [to say what other possibilities there were] Ask, "What form of the verb do you add to make a past modal?" [past participle] Books open. Read the instructions aloud. Have Ss complete the task. Check answers with the class. Ss' written answers to the questions will vary. Possible answers are suggested in parentheses below.

Answers

1. could (He could have taken the day off work.)
2. could (She could have refused to pay the bill in full.)

3. Should (You should have asked the man to put one back.)
4. should (She should have had it cleaned first.)
5. Should (He should have told the salesperson.)
6. Would (I wouldn't have done that. I would have gone to the meeting.)

About you

B

- Present Common Errors Have a S read the information aloud.
- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Model the activity. Tell Ss to look at the first situation in Lesson A again. Ask Ss, "What could Dan have done instead?" Elicit ideas from the class (e.g., Dan could have stayed home with his daughter. Dan could have tried to find a babysitter.). Encourage Ss to ask follow-up questions to continue the conversations. Have Ss discuss their answers to the questions in Exercise A.
- Follow-up For each situation, have a few Ss share their ideas with the class.

UNIT 8 Lesson B Past modals for speculation

If A is done for homework

Briefly preview the task for Exercise A. Make sure Ss understand what they need to do. Have Ss complete Exercise A at home, then check answers and do Exercise B in class.

If done in class

A

- Preview and do the task Review the past modals for speculation with the class. Write the meanings (on the left) on the board. Then elicit and write the correct past modal (given in parentheses below) on the board.
 - I'm sure (must have).*
 - It's possible (could have).*
 - Maybe (may / might have).*
 - It's possible something didn't happen (may / might not have).*
 - It's not possible (could not / couldn't have).*
- Read the instructions aloud. Ask a S to read aloud the original sentence and the example answer.
- Do the task Have Ss write the sentences and compare answers with a partner. Check answers with the class. Say, "Remember that there may be more than one correct answer. Tell the class if your answer is different."

Answers

1. "There must have been an accident."
2. "They may / could / might have had a fight."
3. "I couldn't have left my credit card at the store."
4. "I may / could / might have written down the wrong time."

About you

B

- Preview and do the task Ask, "Do you agree with this advice? Do you disagree with any of it? Tell your partner. What other advice do you have for someone on their first day of work?" Have Ss discuss the questions and report to the class.

UNIT 12 Lesson B The future continuous and future perfect

If A is done for homework

Briefly preview the task for Exercise A. Make sure Ss understand what they need to do. Have Ss complete Exercise A at home, then check answers and do Exercise B in class.

If done in class

- Preview the task Read the instructions aloud. Ask, "What verb form do you use to talk about an ongoing event in the future?" [future continuous] "How about when you talk about an event you expect to happen if everything goes to plan?" [future continuous] Elicit the pattern from Ss and write it on the board [will / won't + be + verb + -ing]. Ask, "What's the correct form to talk about events that are in the past when you 'view' them from the future?" [future perfect] Elicit the pattern from Ss and write it on the board [will / won't + have + past participle].
- Do the task Read the instructions aloud. Say, "Before you begin, read both what Natalie says about her future and the sentences that you have to complete." Have Ss complete the sentences and then compare answers with a partner. Check answers with the class.

Answers

1. In a few months, Natalie will have finished her degree in math, and she'll / will be getting ready to go to medical school.
2. Five years after that, she'll / will have left medical school, and she'll / will be doing an internship somewhere.
3. She probably won't have decided which area of medicine she'd like to work in by then.
4. She doesn't know who she'll / will be working with or where she'll / will be living.
5. She might be moving to a different country to work.

About you

B

- Preview and do the task Read the instructions aloud. Model the activity with a S (e.g., T: What will you be doing 24 hours from now? S: I'll be sitting in math class. T: What will you have done by then? S: I'll have finished my math homework!). Have Ss complete the task.

Extra activity PAIRS

Ss work in pairs and imagine that it is the year 2050. Partners discuss what people will be doing, and what they will have done by then. Elicit topics (e.g., transportation, food, clothing, communication methods). Pairs share their ideas with the class.

Unit 1 Interesting lives

Lesson C, Ex. 1D, p. 6 (1.08)

Bryan Yeah. And all of a sudden, we hear this noise.
Mateo And I look over at Bryan, and I see his face is white, and he's starting to run fast.
Bryan Well, yeah. I mean, it was a weird noise.
Mateo So, I'm thinking, "Wait a minute. What happened to our plan to stick together?" So I start to run with him.
Bryan Yeah, we're running through the trees, scared to death. It was hilarious! It was just like in a movie.

Lesson C, Ex. 3B, p. 7 (1.09)

Aaron This one time, uh, some friends and I were skiing up in Idaho . . .
Woman Uh-huh.
Aaron . . . and a friend of mine fell 1,200 feet down this mountain.
Woman Twelve hundred feet?
Aaron Yeah.
Woman No kidding.
Aaron Yeah, he was just tumbling down. Looked like a rag doll. He was unconscious, bouncing off cliffs that dropped 10, 15 feet at a time, you know.
Woman Ooh.
Aaron He finally got down to the bottom and slid out about 300 yards on the snow. . . .
Woman Uh-huh.
Aaron And we all thought he was dead. Like, we were looking down at him. He wasn't moving, so we had to ski down to him. I thought he was dead. So it was pretty scary. But anyway, we got to him. He was unconscious. After a couple of minutes, we kind of shook him and stuff, and he woke up.
Woman Uh-huh.
Aaron He was, like, coughing, and he's got two bumps on his head about this big. His one eye was closed shut.
Woman Wow. You know, it's a miracle he survived that.
Aaron It is a miracle. And so, um, I stayed with him, and two other guys skied down, and a rescue team came about four hours later and took him out. Flew him to the hospital in a helicopter.
Woman No kidding.
Aaron Yeah. I mean, it was a big deal. It definitely gave me a new perspective on life.
Woman Oh, yeah. Wow. . . . How did you guys get a hold of the rescue team?

Aaron These guys, our friends, hiked out. Like, they skied down. We were pretty far into the park and high up.

Woman Right.

Aaron So they skied down and hiked out to, um, to the trail head. Got in their car and drove to town, you know.

Woman Wow. The guy was really lucky.

Aaron Yeah.

Woman Do you still keep in touch with him?

Aaron I do. Yeah.

Woman Really?

Aaron Yeah.

Woman Is he still skiing or . . . ?

Aaron He's . . . Well, not yet. (laughs)

Woman No? How long ago was that? About a year or two ago?

Aaron No, that was about three, . . . four months ago.

Woman Oh, really. Now, does he have any broken bones?

Aaron No. That was amazing – he didn't break anything.

Woman You mean he didn't have any . . . ? He just had a few bumps on his head and nothing more?

Aaron Yeah, but, well, he was in the intensive care unit for about five days just being under observation. He hurt his neck, but it was OK.

Woman Wow. I can't believe he didn't break any limbs.

Aaron Yeah. He was lucky. He's fine now.

Lesson D, Ex. 2A, p. 9 (1.10)

Man Bethany Hamilton was born in Hawaii in 1990. As a child, Bethany was very athletic. She loved skateboarding and swimming, but her greatest passion was surfing. Her parents were avid surfers, too, so Bethany began surfing before the age of five. Almost every day Bethany and her best friend Alana spent time surfing together. Then, at age eight, Bethany entered and won her first real surf competition. After that, she dreamed of becoming a professional surfer. However, in October of 2003, when Bethany was thirteen, she was attacked by a 14-foot tiger shark while she was surfing with her friend Alana and Alana's father. Alana and her father put Bethany on a surfboard and paddled her to shore. Miraculously, Bethany survived. She needed several surgeries, but sadly she lost her left arm.

In spite of her severe injury – and less than one month after the shark attack – Bethany decided to return to surfing. At first, it was extremely frustrating. Although Bethany tried to paddle her surfboard, she couldn't do it fast enough to catch the waves, and she kept falling off. Her mother began to think surfing was a bad idea for Bethany. It was tough, but Bethany never considered giving up. Her father made a handle for the surfboard, and finally Bethany was able to stay on her board. She also learned to kick harder, which helped make up for the loss of one paddling arm.

Bethany's aim was to enter the World Junior Championships, but first she needed competition experience. In her first local competition – only three months after she lost her arm – Bethany took fifth place. A year later, she won first place in a national surfing championship. And in 2007, Bethany finally achieved her dream and “turned pro” – participating in numerous world events as a professional surfer. Bethany has taken part in many surfing competitions since then, including a World Junior Championship, where she earned the second-place title.

Bethany's amazing story is one that motivates people – young and old alike. In 2004, she wrote her autobiography, and a few years later, her book was made into a movie. She has traveled worldwide, encouraging people to overcome the obstacles they face and pursue their dreams. Bethany has also started a charity to help other shark attack survivors and people who have lost arms and legs. She is an accomplished athlete, a determined individual, and above all else, an inspiring and courageous role model.

Unit 2 Personal tastes

Lesson C, Ex. 3A, p. 17 (1.18)

1. Mary Hello?
- Woman* Hi, Mary. It's me. How are you?
- Mary* I'm fine. I'm just watching one of those cooking shows . . . the one with the Japanese chefs. You know, they compete against each other.
- Woman* Oh, I know. Don't they both have to make something with the same main ingredient?
- Mary* Yeah. It's a really fun show. They're using salmon today, and they have to make as many dishes as they can in half an hour. It's really interesting. It gets, like, really intense. You know there's so much pressure on the chefs. They never have as much time as they need, and . . .
- Woman* Interesting. So you're really into cooking.
- Mary* Oh yeah, I love it. My grandmother's Japanese, you know. And she always made all these amazing Japanese dishes, and she taught me a lot.
- Woman* Really? I didn't know that. Now, do you make Japanese food a lot?
- Mary* Yeah. Though I've been pretty busy lately, but you know, I try out new recipes as often as I can.
- Woman* Now, do you just make Japanese things mainly? Or do you cook other things, too?
- Mary* No, no, I also like to cook Italian food, and French, and lately I've started to really get into Indian food. . . . So I'm using all these spices. They have wonderful flavors. I've taken a few classes and I've learned how to combine spices and get the right flavors and stuff. So . . . yeah.
2. Woman Hey, Nick, what's this music? It's pretty cool.
- Nick* Yeah, isn't it great? It's a Brazilian band. . . . I forget the name. Oh, what do you call them? . . . Anyway, they're good. I have music by lots of Brazilian bands. Look.
- Woman* Wow. You're really into this stuff.
- Nick* Yeah, my brother got me into it. He's living in Brazil, so he finds all these interesting bands. It's kind of cool. I hear stuff I would never find otherwise.
- Woman* Right. Now, is this the kind of thing you listen to all the time?
- Nick* No, I like all kinds of stuff . . . rap, hip-hop, rock, jazz, opera. Anything, really.
- Woman* You pretty much like everything, then.
- Nick* Yeah. That's probably because when I was a kid, my parents always had music playing, and they played all kinds of stuff. So I grew up around music. . . .
- Woman* That's neat. Now, do you play any instruments?
- Nick* No, not really. I tried the guitar for a while, but it wasn't as easy as it looks, and I guess I just didn't have the patience – or the time – for it, really.
3. Woman Hey, James. You look tired.
- James* I am. I was up, like, half the night reading. I'm reading this sci-fi book and I couldn't put it down. So I was up until 1:00 or something . . . just reading.

Woman So you're exhausted.

James Yeah, totally. But sometimes you just find a good book like that and you have to finish it as quickly as you can.

Woman Right. Now, do you read only science fiction? Or do you like other stuff, too?

James Well, actually, that's about all I read these days. I had this roommate a few years ago who read a lot of science fiction, and he lent me some of his books. Since then, I read nothing else. I got hooked.

Woman So you're a big fan. You know, I never really got into science fiction. I guess I don't have much time to read. Period. Though when I do read, I like to read biographies – you know, like the life stories of interesting people. I've read a few about politicians and world leaders. They're fascinating.

James I find the same thing with sci-fi. It's fascinating to me. I mean, it's the only thing I read, really. Like trying to imagine what the future world will be like. I mean, these stories seem so possible to me. Like they can really happen in the future.

Lesson C, Ex. 3B, p. 17 (1.19)

- Woman* Now, do you just make Japanese things mainly? Or do you cook other things, too?

Mary No, no, I also like to cook Italian food, and French, and lately I've started to really get into Indian food. . . . So I'm using all these spices. They have wonderful flavors. I've taken a few classes and I've learned how to combine spices and get the right flavors and stuff. So . . . yeah.
- Woman* That's neat. Now, do you play any instruments?

Nick No, not really. I tried the guitar for a while, but it wasn't as easy as it looks, and I guess I just didn't have the patience – or the time – for it, really.
- Woman* You know, I never really got into science fiction. I guess I don't have much time to read. Period. Though when I do read I like to read biographies – you know, like the life stories of interesting people. I've read a few about politicians and world leaders. They're fascinating.

James I find the same thing with sci-fi. It's fascinating to me. I mean, it's the only thing I read, really. Like trying to imagine what the future world will be like. I mean, these stories seem so possible to me. Like they can really happen in the future.

Lesson D, Ex. 2A and 2B, p. 19 (1.20)

- Maddy* I have pretty simple tastes, I think. I mean, I'm not really into keeping up with the latest trends or anything. I'm not one of those people that goes through the magazines to see what's in, or what next season's stuff is going to be. I definitely don't care as much as my best friend does. She has a closet full of things – and you know, she never wears half of it. I just don't need as many things as she does. I guess I just like basic things, you know, anything that's simple! I mean, you just need a few nice things, don't you think?
- Frank* I always feel like I have to have the latest thing. Like, when a new model comes out, I think, oh, mine's not as good as that new one! So I go out and buy it. I guess I just want all the latest gear. (laughs) My best friend can't have things that are as cool as mine! So yeah, I'm one of those crazy people who waits in line for hours to get something on the first day it comes out. And I always get all the cool things that go with them, too, you know, like cases and stuff like that.
- Laura* You know, one thing I love to do is look through all the magazines and see what the new styles are. I guess I just like to experiment and try new things. It's fun, you know, to change how you look. So, yeah, I go to this stylist who is really creative. He's always trying interesting cuts and colors on me. Like one time he colored it in this deep purple. Though that wasn't as fun as the time I went kind of pink. I don't know, I guess I just like variety. It's fun, don't you think?
- Nate* I'm pretty much into taking care of how I look. Like I want to stay healthy and everything, but I don't go to the extreme – like I don't follow all the latest trends. I mean, some people I know, they follow the latest diet and they take all these vitamin drinks after they've worked out. But I don't do that. I just want to be as fit as possible. But I don't have to be big and muscular or anything.

Unit 3 World cultures

Lesson C, Ex. 3A and 3B, p. 27 (1.28)

- Man* So, how do you like being an exchange student, Val?
- Val* Well, to be honest, it was kind of hard at first. I mean, it's so different here. I mean, student life is so different . . .
- Man* Of course.
- Val* . . . but I think I'm really settling in more now.
- Man* Well, that's good. So what was hard at first?
- Val* Well, my host family's really nice, but to tell you the truth, my host sister and I don't have a lot in common.
- Man* Really? Well, that can happen.
- Val* Yeah, I mean, she's really nice and everything, but she's into fashion – shopping is her main thing – and I guess I'm more into sports and being outdoors, that kind of thing.
- Man* So it's not easy to find things to do together.
- Val* No, but that's okay. I joined a soccer team, and got to know some people who play tennis. And actually Lily – my host sister – and I have gone to a couple of concerts together. So, actually, it's okay.
- Man* That's good. So, uh, do you get along with the rest of the family?
- Val* Oh, absolutely. They have a couple of little boys who are really cute. And the mom and I cook together a lot. She's an amazing cook, and she's teaching me to make some traditional dishes.
- Man* Great. So really everything is working out fine? I mean, no other challenges?
- Val* Well, it's taken me a while – you know – to get used to things. Like I guess at home we're definitely given more freedom . . .
- Man* Yeah? How do you mean?
- Val* Well, we have more independence. My friends and I can stay out later – even on school nights. Things like that. But most of the students here have curfews – you know, parents are pretty strict about it. Like we have to be in by 8:00 on weeknights and 10:00 on weekends . . . so that's not great. And we always need to let our host parents know where we are.
- Man* I guess that's kind of hard to get used to, huh? So, are you homesick at all?
- Val* Well, not too much, to be honest. I do miss my family and my friends, of course, but we keep in touch almost every day. You know, we email and stuff. And we video call on the weekends. It's a bit difficult with the time difference during the week, but . . . yeah, I'll certainly be happy to see them again, though, you know, after I finish my semester here.

Lesson D, Ex. 2B, p. 29 (1.29)

- Woman* I think I've been driving my family crazy lately. Ever since I was given that big promotion at work, I have all these new problems to deal with. And every night I come home totally worried and start complaining to everyone. And my grandmother always says to me, "If you're afraid of the wolves, don't go into the woods." Like, I chose to accept this promotion, so I have to accept all the problems that come with it. So that's become one of my favorite proverbs. I think it's partly because my grandmother is from Russia, and it says something about her culture. You know, she grew up near a forest, where there was a lot of danger.
- Man* My favorite proverb in Portuguese is, "Hard bread is better than nothing." I like it because it reminds me that when times are bad, you have to be grateful for the little that you have. And I thought of this proverb the other day when I was talking to a friend of mine. She's living with her parents while she looks for a job, and she isn't paying rent or anything, because she's not earning any money. And she started complaining to me that she doesn't like the food her parents cook. Can you believe it?
- Woman* My father is always quoting proverbs to me in Chinese, and my favorite one is, "You can't expect both ends of a sugar cane to be sweet." He used it recently when I was complaining about my new apartment. You know, I'm glad I moved into the city, but I've really been bothered by all the noise. So I was telling my father this, and he responded with the proverb about the sugar cane. It means that you can't have the advantages of something without the disadvantages. It always makes me stop and think a bit.
- Man* You know, things haven't been so great lately. I feel like I've been hit with a whole bunch of problems all at once. But I have a favorite proverb that always makes me feel better. It's, "Every Tuesday has its Sunday." That's what we say in Spanish to cheer people up. You know, it means there are always going to be some bad days, but there are going to be good days, too. You just have to be patient.

Lesson D, Ex. 2C, p. 29 (1.30)

1. Woman I think I've been driving my family crazy lately. Ever since I was given that big promotion at work, I have all these new problems to deal with. And every night I come home totally worried and start complaining to everyone. And my grandmother always says to me, "If you're afraid of the wolves, don't go into the woods." Like, I chose to accept this promotion, so I have to accept all the problems that come with it. So that's become one of my favorite proverbs. I think it's partly because my grandmother is from Russia, and it says something about her culture. You know, she grew up near a forest, where there was a lot of danger.
- Man* It sounds like your grandmother wants you to be a little tougher. There's a similar saying in English, but it's about the kitchen. You often hear, "If you can't stand the heat, get out of the kitchen." That's what people say at the office whenever anybody complains about all the pressure. But I totally understand what you're going through. Just remember that the first couple of months are the hardest.
2. Man My favorite proverb in Portuguese is, "Hard bread is better than nothing." I like it because it reminds me that when times are bad, you have to be grateful for the little that you have. And I thought of this proverb the other day when I was talking to a friend of mine. She's living with her parents while she looks for a job, and she isn't paying rent or anything, because she's not earning any money. And she started complaining to me that she doesn't like the food her parents cook. Can you believe it?
- Woman* That's so incredible. I mean, she should be grateful she has a place to live. In English we often say, "Beggars can't be choosers." You know, it means that you shouldn't make demands when other people are being generous with you. It's not exactly the same, but it's similar, I think. Anyway, I hope your friend finds a job soon, if only for her parents' sake.

3. Woman My father is always quoting proverbs to me in Chinese, and my favorite one is, "You can't expect both ends of a sugar cane to be sweet." He used it recently when I was complaining about my new apartment. You know, I'm glad I moved into the city, but I've really been bothered by all the noise. So I was telling my father this, and he responded with the proverb about the sugar cane. It means that that you can't have the advantages of something without the disadvantages. It always makes me stop and think a bit.
- Man* That sounds a lot like a proverb we have in English. People say, "You can't have your cake and eat it, too." It means about the same thing, I think – if you want one thing, you might have to give up something else. Like if you want to live in the middle of the city, you'll probably have to put up with a lot of noise. But anyway, I'm sure you'll get used to all the noise after a while.
4. Man You know, things haven't been so great lately. I feel like I've been hit with a whole bunch of problems all at once. But I have a favorite proverb that always makes me feel better. It's, "Every Tuesday has its Sunday." That's what we say in Spanish to cheer people up. You know, it means there are always going to be some bad days, but there are going to be good days, too. You just have to be patient.
- Woman* In English, there's a proverb that's kind of like that. It's, "Every cloud has a silver lining." What it means literally is that some sun shines through every cloud. So it means that there's always hope even in the darkest times. People say it whenever a friend is going through a difficult time, you know, to point out that something good often comes out of a bad situation. So, I hope that'll be true for you, too.

Unit 4 Socializing

Lesson B, Ex. 3B and 3C, p. 37 (2.05)

- Paula* Roberto, please get going, or we'll be late.
- Roberto* I'm almost ready. I won't be long.
- Paula* I can't believe how long you take to get ready! You take longer than my sister, and she takes forever.

- Roberto* Oh, come on. I just got off work. I had to take a shower, and get changed. Did you want me to go out in my work clothes?
- Paula* No, . . . but you're always getting ready at the last minute.
- Roberto* I know, but I can't help it. I always have a lot to do. Anyway, what's the hurry? Are we late?

Paula Well, we're going to be late. We're supposed to be there at 6:30, and it's 6:15 now.

Roberto OK, I'll hurry. I hate being late. I don't want to keep Beth and Richard waiting. I just need to comb my hair . . .

Paula Are you wearing those jeans?

Roberto Uh, yes. . . . Why?

Paula Well, it's supposed to be a really nice restaurant. We're not going out for fast food . . .

Roberto Well, they're nice jeans. They're new, and with this shirt, I think they look OK.

Paula Oh, all right. I guess you can get away with wearing them. So, are you ready?

Roberto Yeah, I'm ready. I'll drive. Do you have the car keys?

Paula Yeah. (cell phone rings) Oh, wait, let me see who's calling. . . . Hi, Richard? What's up? Oh. . . . She is? Oh, no. . . . Oh, OK, don't worry. . . . Yeah, we can have dinner another time. OK. Bye.

Roberto That was Richard? What's up?

Paula They can't come. He said he was supposed to call earlier, but he didn't get around to it. Beth has the flu.

Roberto Oh, that's too bad. I was really looking forward to seeing them. Oh well, let's go anyway. We can still have dinner. And, hey, . . . I'm all ready!

Paula OK. I really wanted to try this restaurant. Oh, where are the keys? I just had them. . . .

Lesson C, Ex. 1D, p. 38 (2.07)

Hugo So you aren't going to show up at all, huh?

Greg No. Those work parties aren't my thing. You like them, huh?

Hugo Yeah. But you don't want to network? You may get a promotion.

Greg Yeah. But I'm happy in my job right now. I'm not looking for a promotion or anything.

Hugo Oh. You don't want to work your way up in the organization?

Greg Actually, um, no. Not really. So you're pretty ambitious, huh?

Hugo I guess I am. But, the parties are fun anyway, and the people are interesting.

Greg So, you know a lot of people in the company, then?

Lesson C, Ex. 3B, p. 39 (2.09)

1. Man I really like to party when I can.
Woman So you go out a lot.

2. Man You know, I like to be with a crowd. The more the merrier.
Woman Uh-huh. So you're a real people person.

3. Woman I guess I'm not a big fan of parties.
Man So you don't like parties very much?

4. Woman Hmm. I guess I don't really do anything on my birthday.
Man So you never celebrate your birthday?

Lesson D, Ex. 2B, p. 41 (2.10)

Man So, Jessica, do you think of yourself as an extrovert or an introvert?

Jessica I don't really know. I mean, probably an introvert. Well, . . . what are introverts supposed to be like?

Man Well, I guess they're quiet and thoughtful. They don't really like big social events or anything like that.

Jessica Hmm. Well, that sounds a bit like me. I mean, it's not really like me to go out socializing a lot. I guess I prefer to just hang out at home. If I can get out of going to a party, I will. I don't like those "What kind of work do you do?" situations. But it's not . . . I mean, I have plenty of friends.

Man Yeah, I was going to say, you have a lot of friends, right?

Jessica Yeah. We never go out in groups or anything, though. I like to see them in ones and twos. I guess I just like to spend more focused time with them – you get to know your friends better that way, I think.

Man So you don't like big groups, huh?

Jessica No. And I hate being the center of attention, too. I would never have a big birthday party or anything. I couldn't get through something like that, so . . .

Man Right.

Jessica But I enjoy socializing, and I like it when other people tell stories and joke around and stuff. I enjoy a good joke, as long as I'm not the one telling it! And I do like to chat with my friends, you know, we gossip sometimes. . . . I mean, it's not like we have serious conversations all the time. Not at all. So . . . So, yeah. Do I sound like an introvert?

Man Maybe. I think introverts also like to work on their own, you know, figure things out for themselves. They're not so good at group work or teamwork.

Jessica Hmm. Well, I like being part of a team – and working in groups. I think it's a creative way to work.

Man So you're more of a team player, you think?

Jessica Yeah, definitely.

Man Well, maybe you're just a little of each – extrovert and introvert? I mean, you're not exactly a "social animal," right?

Jessica No. I don't think so. I mean, I like people. But yeah, I'm more of an individual. I'm just me, I guess!

Man Yeah, you're just you! (both laugh)

Unit 5 Law and order

Lesson B, Ex. 3A and 3B, p. 47 (2.16)

- Man* I don't suppose you've ever gotten robbed, have you? Living here must be pretty safe.
- Jenny* Well, we thought so, too, but actually, yes, we did get robbed once. A couple of years ago. We were really surprised.
- Man* Huh. Were you in the house when it happened? I mean, that would be scary.
- Jenny* No, we were away at the time. We were on a business trip when it happened, um, so the house was empty and there was no car outside, so I guess it was an obvious target, really.
- Man* So the house looked empty?
- Jenny* Yeah, but my neighbor was sleeping in the house at night because she was redecorating her house next door. So one night she came in and saw a few things on the floor and thought, "That's funny!" And then she walked around the house and saw the window was broken. So she called the police.
- Man* So they broke in during the day?
- Jenny* Yeah, probably late in the afternoon. No one was around, and no one heard anything, so . . .
- Man* Did they do much damage?
- Jenny* No, that's the funny thing. They were very neat and tidy. They didn't make any mess at all – except for breaking the window, of course.
- Man* Really? And did they take much?
- Jenny* No, they mainly just took our two computers. There were lots of other things that were valuable in the house – cameras, money, jewelry, even some credit cards, but they didn't take anything else of value . . .
- Man* Isn't that weird?
- Jenny* Yes. I mean, we both lost a few things, but nothing much. It was a bit inconvenient, not having the computers, but that's all. We were lucky, really.
- Man* So were you upset by it? Did you feel your home was invaded and everything?
- Jenny* Not really. I mean, I thought I would be upset, but my neighbor cleaned the place up, and her father fixed the window, so by the time we got home, everything was OK. And we got new computers out of it, better computers – so that was good, I guess.
- Man* So did the robbers ever get caught?
- Jenny* Yeah, fortunately they got arrested the next day . . . they were found breaking into another house in our neighborhood.
- Man* Oh, well, that's good. So, did they go to jail, or . . . ?
- Jenny* Yeah, they did. They got sentenced to like, a year, I think.
- Man* A year? That's all? Gosh – they should be sentenced to like at least five years in prison.

Jenny I don't know. There are a lot of crimes that are worse, I guess.

Lesson C, Ex. 3A, p. 49 (2.18)

- Teacher* Well, class, I was very pleased with your homework assignments on the question "Should petty criminals be jailed, or should they be given community service?" You had some very interesting views on this subject. Good work! I'll hand out your homework at the end of this class, and you can see your grades then. If you have any questions, please ask me after class. Now, did everyone prepare for today's debate? Remember, you had to consider the question, "Should the law be changed?" Who would like to start the discussion?
- Sam* I will.
- Teacher* OK, Sam.
- Sam* Well, I have pretty strong views about this because this law affects me – well, it affects all of us here, really. And basically, I don't think the law should be changed. The main reason is that I live on the outskirts of town, about 15 miles from here, and public transportation isn't very regular. So for people like me, well, if the law were changed, then a lot of us wouldn't be able to get to school.
- Teacher* That's a good point, Sam. Chelsea?
- Chelsea* Well, I understand what you're saying, Sam but most young people aren't responsible enough. I mean, statistics show that most accidents are caused by young people. I don't think we should be allowed to take our driving tests until we're at least 20 or 21. That way, more lives would be saved.
- Teacher* Well, you've got a point there, Chelsea. What do you think, Bart?
- Bart* I agree with Chelsea, I think. But on the other hand, I can see Sam's point of view, too. But yeah, I think the law should be changed, for two reasons. For one, I've heard the same thing – that a lot of accidents are caused by young people, especially when they're driving with their friends. I think they get distracted by their friends, or start to show off or something, and then they get into an accident. And secondly, all those accidents mean increased insurance premiums for young people. I think it would be better for young people to wait until they're a little older before they start driving, and then we wouldn't have to pay so much for our insurance every month.

Diana Yes, but I'm against raising the age limit for one reason alone. It's not fair, you know, to those young people who are responsible. I mean, just because some 16-year-olds are irresponsible, that shouldn't mean that driving is banned for all young people. That's not fair.

Bart That's true.

Chelsea I have an idea. Maybe young people should be allowed to drive at 16, but they shouldn't be allowed to drive without an adult in the car until they're, say, 20 or something. That way they'd probably be safer when they're learning to drive and become better drivers, too. And the law could easily be changed . . .

Teacher Any other ideas, anyone? . . .

responsible enough. I mean, statistics show that most accidents are caused by young people. I don't think we should be allowed to take our driving tests until we're at least 20 or 21. That way, more lives would be saved.

3. Bart And secondly, all those accidents mean increased insurance premiums for young people. I think it would be better for young people to wait until they're a little older before they start driving, and then we wouldn't have to pay so much for our insurance every month.

Unit 6 Strange events

Lesson A, Ex. 3A, p. 55 (2.22)

Elena So, you're not going to believe what happened to me today.

Man Why? What happened?

Elena Well, I was on my lunch break, and I was sitting in a café and playing chess on my tablet. I'd joined this online chess forum a few months ago, 'cause you know, it's hard to find people who play chess. And it's so much fun, so . . .

Man Sounds like you're really into chess.

Elena Yeah. I've actually gotten pretty addicted to playing online. But anyway, I was playing against this guy and he's pretty good – well, we're about the same level, I guess . . . so our games are always really close. And yeah, we play a few times a week, and you know we'd played maybe, I don't know, 20 games or something together before, so . . . So, yeah, anyway, he'd just made a move and I was trying to figure out my next move, and this guy stopped by my table to say hi.

Man Someone you knew?

Elena Yeah, this guy from work. Derek. He's worked there for a couple of years . . . he's a pretty cool guy. I mean, I don't know him very well, but we had worked on a project together a year ago, and I see him in the cafeteria sometimes. Anyway, he'd noticed that I was playing chess, and he told me that he played, too. So I'm like, "That's neat." And I ask him, like, if he's a good player and everything. And he goes, "Yeah. I play pretty well." And then he says, "It's hard to find people who play well." And I'm laughing and saying, yeah, I have the same problem. You know, finding someone who plays really well. I mean, chess is like tennis. It's no fun if you're a lot better than your partner. So . . .

Man That's true. So, don't tell me, you end up finding a new chess partner?

Elena No, no, wait. So then he says, "Why don't we play together sometime?" And I said OK. And he says, "I'll give you my online name." Like, the name he plays under online. So I'm like, "OK, what is it?" And he says, coolchessguy.

Man No way! Don't tell me it was him?
Elena Yep. I just started laughing. Can you believe it? And I'm like, "No way!" I mean, what are the chances of that? There he was, he'd been on the other side of the café, and then I find out we're playing each other!
Man That's so weird. It just goes to show it's a small world.
Elena I know! We'd probably played, like I said, 20 chess matches against each other, and hadn't realized that we knew each other!
Man That's funny.
Elena It is. But you know, coincidences like that happen to me all the time. I mean, that kind of stuff happens to me a lot. It's kind of weird. I mean, really weird.

Lesson B, Ex. 2B and 2C, p. 56 (2.23)

1. Man Oh, a black cat! Well, there are many different ideas about black cats in different countries. I guess what most people believe is that if a black cat walks toward you, or crosses your path – you know, walks across in front of you – then something bad will happen. You'll have some kind of bad luck. So basically, black cats are unlucky, I guess.

2. Woman Superstitions about mirrors? The only one I know is if you break a mirror, you'll have seven years of bad luck. These things often come in sevens. So you have to be careful when you're hanging up a mirror, or cleaning or holding one, because if you drop it, you'll have bad luck for seven years. You don't want that.
 3. Man A four-leaf clover, yeah. Clover's a kind of plant, like grass, and it usually has three leaves on it, so if you find one with four leaves, it's supposed to be really lucky. I guess this is because they're so rare – you don't find many of them. I've never found one, though I've spent a lot of time looking! So, yeah, it's good luck to find a four-leaf clover.
 4. Woman Huh. A yellow butterfly? There are a lot of superstitions about butterflies, both yellow ones and white ones. In some countries they think if you see a yellow butterfly, then your wish will come true. So it's lucky. I think all butterflies usually bring good luck. Another one I heard is that if you see a yellow butterfly in the spring, you'll get a lot of new clothes! Now, that would be nice!

Unit 7 Problem solving

Lesson A, Ex. 3A and 3B, p. 67 (3.03)

1. Molly So how many people are on the invitation list now?
Mark Um, let's see. We have about 60.
Molly Sixty? OK. So, are we going to have the invitations printed?
Mark Well, I was thinking we could do them ourselves. It's just a lot cheaper than getting them done professionally. We could get some of that really nice paper and make our own design. We could do them pretty quickly on the computer.
Molly Huh. That's a really good idea. Let's do that, then.
 2. Mark So, didn't you say that you hired the photographer?
Molly Um, no. Are we hiring one? They're so expensive. They cost a fortune. I was going to suggest we use someone we know.
Mark Yeah, but don't we want to get professional wedding pictures taken?
Molly Well, how about getting my dad to take them? He loves taking pictures.
Mark I'm not sure that's a good idea. Your dad will be too busy, and anyway he should be in the pictures! I think we should just have a professional take them.

Molly Mark, we just don't have the money. We must know someone who takes good photos.
Mark Yeah, but it's not the same. Let me find a professional photographer. Don't worry – I'll find one that's not too expensive.
Molly Hmm. I still think we could do the photos ourselves.
 3. Mark Well, what are we going to do about a wedding cake?
Molly Well, I was going to get it made, but then Aunt Jackie said she would make it – as a gift.
Mark Oh, that's so nice of her. She makes amazing cakes.
Molly Yeah, I know. But she said she doesn't want to bring it to the reception – I guess it's going to be a big cake, and she's afraid she'll drop it or something. So, we'll have to get it delivered.
Mark OK – that's fine. We can pay for that.
Molly Perfect. So that's taken care of.

4. Molly I'm so excited about my wedding dress! I found a great place to get it made! I'm going to have it designed and everything.
- Mark* Oh, really? But I was thinking . . . I don't know, I thought maybe my mom could make your dress.
- Molly* Your mom? But she doesn't sew . . .
- Mark* Yes, she does. She sews all kinds of things.
- Molly* Well, cushion covers and things, not wedding gowns! Dressmaking is completely different. Anyway, I already have an appointment.
- Mark* But it would be so much cheaper if my mother made your dress.
- Molly* Mark, I want something special for my dress, and I really, really want to go to this dressmaker's to have it made. It'll be beautiful. Just wait and see.
- Mark* Well, maybe you could talk to my mom first . . .
5. Molly What should we do about flowers?
- Mark* Flowers?
- Molly* Yes, not just for me and the bridesmaids, but we'll need some for the tables at the reception and everything . . .
- Mark* Oh, OK. Fine. Well, you choose.
- Molly* OK, but can you help? I mean what do you like? Roses, lilies, . . .
- Mark* Um. I don't know anything about flowers. Why don't you just get the people at the flower shop to help you?
- Molly* OK. That sounds good. I'll get them to choose.
6. Molly You know, I think we've decided on almost everything for the wedding.
- Mark* Thank goodness for that!
- Molly* Well, everything except the honeymoon.
- Mark* The honeymoon?
- Molly* Yeah. Can you do that? I mean, can you decide on somewhere for us to go, somewhere nice and romantic, and then make it a surprise for me?
- Mark* Well, I was thinking we could visit my cousins.
- Molly* Visit your cousins! Mark!
- Mark* OK. OK. Just kidding. We'll go somewhere nice – I promise. Actually, I already saw a place that I think is perfect for us.
- Molly* OK. Good. We're all set, then.

Lesson C, Ex. 4A and 4B, p. 71 (3.09)

1. Man You need some help?
- Woman* Thanks. I'm having trouble with this. I can't get it back on.
- Man* What happened?
- Woman* I don't know. It just fell off.

- Man* Huh. Maybe it was loose or something.
- Woman* Oops, dropped it again. It won't stay on.
- Man* Here. I'll do it for you. . . . There.
- Woman* Oh, thanks. I couldn't live without it. I have to carry so much stuff around for class. Well, thanks.
- Man* You're welcome. It wasn't that difficult.
2. Woman Oh, shoot! That's Mom's favorite one.
- Man* It broke?
- Woman* Yeah. Shoot. Just one piece broke off. Got to fix it somehow.
- Man* Got any glue?
- Woman* Uh, maybe. In the kitchen? Kitchen cupboard.
- Man* I'll look. . . . Here's some. Here you go.
- Woman* Thanks. Can you do it?
- Man* No – you do it. You broke it.
- Woman* Uh. OK. Here. Hold this. . . . That should do it. Can you tell?
- Man* Um, not really. It just looks like a little crack now.
- Woman* It'll still hold water, I think. She uses it for her flowers.
- Man* Oh, it'll be fine.
3. Man What are you doing?
- Woman* Nearly done. Just waiting to start it again.
- Man* It crashed? Why?
- Woman* Don't know. It's a pain, though. It's doing it again. It gets to here, and then it gets stuck or something.
- Man* Uh-oh. Doesn't sound good. Let me look.
- Woman* Can't promise I can help, but . . .
- Man* Well, better than me.
- Woman* Software needs reloading, I think. Got the disc?
- Man* Yeah, here.
- Man* OK, put it in. . . . There. Let's just start again. Oh. Still not working. Maybe you should get someone to look at it.
4. Woman Ouch! Ow, that hurt. Just burned my finger.
- Man* Were you trying to light it?
- Woman* Yes, but it's not working properly. I think the charcoal's wet. It's been outside and it rained yesterday. It's probably still damp. It needs to dry out.
- Man* Oh.
- Woman* I have another idea. . . . Let's put this on.
- Man* Careful. Not too much, though. . . .
- Man* Give me another match. . . . No, it's not lighting. Let's go indoors and do it – it's easier.

Unit 8 Behavior

Lesson C, Ex. 2, 81 (3.16)

Woman One of my friends is kind of sensitive. Like, she thinks I'm criticizing her all the time when I'm just – like – trying to make a suggestion. She's like, "Stop telling me what to do all the time." I guess I'm just more decisive than she is. I know I annoy her sometimes, but otherwise we get along really well. I guess we've been friends for like 10 years. It's funny. In other ways we're just like each other.

Lesson C, Ex. 3A and 3B, 81 (3.17)

Woman Can you believe that ride home last night? That cab driver was, like, dangerous. I mean, he kept fiddling with his computer thing, and then he was talking the whole time on his phone. It sounded like he was having a fight with his wife or something.

Man I know. At least he had an earpiece and wasn't driving and holding the phone at the same time. But it's like totally insensitive when people are having a loud conversation on their cell phone. You just don't want to hear it. I mean, we could hardly hear each other talk.

Woman I know. And we're paying for the ride. Actually, this morning I had a similar experience on the train. There was this woman on her cell phone talking about everything she did last night on her date. She must not have realized the whole train was listening. I would have been so embarrassed!

Man Yeah. Some people are just so – I don't know – I guess they have no idea that other people are around them. They just have no manners, I guess. But you know, that reminds me of the time I was taking a cab home from a party, and the cab driver was making rude remarks the whole time 'cause he said we'd given him the wrong directions. But actually, he was just lost. Like he had no idea – he just didn't know his way around. And you know, the fare is getting higher and higher because he's going round in circles. And then I go to pay him, and I, like, gave him $10 – and the fare was like $9.70 or something – and he said, "Um, haven't you forgotten something?" And I was like, "No, but I think you have. You owe me 30 cents."

Woman Yeah, that's bad. I mean, they expect you to tip them, like even when you get bad service. He shouldn't have expected a tip – well, if he did, he was wrong to. But you know, speaking of crazy cab drivers, the last time

I was in a cab, the driver nearly ran over a cyclist.

Man No way!

Woman Yep, it was pretty scary. It was a really sunny day. The sun must have been right in his eyes, so he didn't see this cyclist. He turned right, straight into the path of a bike coming from the opposite direction, and she swerved really hard to avoid us. I mean, he did stop to see if she was OK, but she was obviously really, like, angry and upset.

Man I don't blame her. He should have been more careful. That's like when they drive too fast, too. I hate that, don't you? You know, you're in the city and they speed down those small side streets. And it feels like they're going to hit something.

Woman Oh, yeah. That's scary. Actually, I had that happen to me. The taxicab hit a car! Well, he didn't hit another car, but he was trying to go through this small space and he scratched another car. And he, like, didn't do anything – he just kept driving . . .

Lesson D, Ex. 2A and 2B, 83 (3.18)

1. Alex Excuse me, Mrs. Phillips. Here's my report.

Mrs. Phillips Oh, thanks, Alex. Just put it right over there.

Alex OK. . . . Uh, I want to apologize for getting this to you so late.

Mrs. Phillips Well, it is late, but I know it was a difficult project.

Alex Yeah, but to tell you the truth, I just didn't get started on it soon enough.

Mrs. Phillips Well, that happens a lot!

Alex Yeah. . . . Oh – and I also wanted to say that I know it's more work for you when things come in late. I hope it's not too much trouble.

Mrs. Phillips Thanks, Alex. I appreciate that.

Alex OK . . . so, anyway, I just want you to know that I'll make sure the next one gets to you on time.

Mrs. Phillips Good! That's great. So, see you next week.

Alex Yeah, see you. Have a good weekend.

Mrs. Phillips Thanks. You too.

2. Nora Oh, hi, Caroline. Uh, I'm glad I ran into you. I'm sorry about the other night.

Caroline Oh, right, yeah.

Nora Yeah, so you won't believe what happened. I was talking to another friend on the phone, and suddenly I remembered that I was supposed to meet you. But then I saw how late it was, like, the movie had already started. I freaked. . . . And I would have called, but I figured you were already in the theater, and your phone would be off anyway. . . . So, sorry about that.

Caroline Well, I waited outside for a while, but then I decided I needed to go in before all the good seats were taken.

Nora Right. So was it good? Did I miss anything?

Caroline It was OK. . . . By the way, the tickets cost $12.

Nora Wow, that's expensive!

Caroline Yeah, it is. . . .

Nora Oh, do you want me to pay you for that?

Caroline Um, yes, if you don't mind. . . .

3. Gregory Oh, hi, Sophie. How's it going?

Sophie Oh, not bad.

Gregory Cool. So, uh, I wanted to ask you about something.

Sophie Sure.

Gregory Like, were you upset about that comment I made at the party last Saturday? You know, about your new hairstyle?

Sophie Hmm. . . . Well, actually, I wasn't thrilled about it.

Gregory Huh. Like, I didn't think I was saying anything so bad, you know – and a couple of guys there said they were kind of surprised you reacted that way. Whatever. So, yeah, I'm sorry if I hurt your feelings. Like, I didn't mean to.

Sophie Well, thanks for that, Gregory. Anyway, I'm going to have to run. I'm late for an appointment.

4. Adriana Michael, do you have a minute?

Michael Sure. Come on in.

Adriana Thanks. So . . . I just wanted to apologize for how I acted at lunch today. I kind of lost it. I mean . . .

Michael Oh, it wasn't your fault. I was pretty awful, too.

Adriana Yeah, but I think I'm the one who started it all. . . . I don't know what got into me. I guess maybe I'm just in a bad mood today. But just the same, it was inexcusable. I mean, like, I really do respect your opinions on things. . . . So, anyway, I hope you'll forgive me this time.

Michael Oh, don't worry about it. It's no big deal.

Adriana And it won't happen again, I promise.

Michael Well, I'll try to do my part, too. You know, it takes two to tango.

Unit 9 Material world

Lesson A, Ex. 3B, p. 87 (3.21)

1. Woman Do you like to have all the latest gadgets?

Howard Well, to be honest, I'm not really interested in gadgets. So I don't have the latest computer or phone or anything. You won't believe this, but I didn't even have a smartphone until fairly recently. I had to get one though – well, the salesperson said I can't get any other kind now, so Yeah I mean, I use it, but I'm not always checking it for messages and things. And most of the time it's turned off. I only turn it on when I need to call someone. Otherwise it needs to be charged every day. It drives my friends crazy because they can never get a hold of me.

2. Woman How thrifty are you? Are you careful with money?

Howard Well, that's a good question. I mean, generally I'm pretty careful with money. I mean, I don't like to waste money on things I don't need. And I, um, I mean, I'm not the kind of person who would spend like thousands of dollars on a TV. I definitely compare prices online and shop around for things like that. And actually, it's funny, my mom told me when I was a kid she'd given me a piggy bank, and I used to pick up every coin I found on the sidewalk and save it. So I guess I've always been a little thrifty!

3. Woman Are you very attached to your possessions?

Howard It depends. Some things yes, and some things no. Like, I have some artwork and gifts from friends, and souvenirs from trips and things like that. I'd be really upset if anything happened to those. But you could take away almost everything else, and I wouldn't care. You know, a friend told me he had moved one time, and he'd decided not to take all his stuff with him, and he'd sold it. Sometimes I think it would be fun to do that, like, move somewhere and leave all my stuff behind. I'd be way more interested in the adventure of moving than in my belongings. Leaving a lot of stuff behind just wouldn't bother me at all.

4. Woman Have you ever gotten upset because you lost or broke something valuable?

Howard Well, one time I lost my watch on vacation. It was my father's watch, so it was very important to me. My mom said he'd gotten it in Paris, and people used to compliment me on it all the time. Anyway, I was on vacation in Puerto Rico. I have no idea where I lost it, but I think it must have been at the beach. Anyway, I was pretty upset. And you know what made it worse? I didn't lose the watch until the very last day of the vacation. So I'm still wearing it in all of the photos we took on the trip. I still can't look at those pictures without feeling bad all over again.

5. Woman Do you often buy things you don't need?
Howard Hmm. Probably not, no. I guess I just don't like a lot of clutter. So I don't have a lot of things. I'm not, like, a collector. On the other hand, I'm really picky. So when I do buy something, it has to be "just right." I often shop around till I find exactly what I'm looking for. If it's something big, I might even go back to the store a few times before I decide to buy it. My sister said one time I was the worst person to shop with for that reason. But yeah, I'm not an impulse buyer. I never get home with something I just bought, take it out of the bag, and say to myself, "Whoa! Why did I buy that?"

Lesson C, Ex. 3C, p. 91 (3.28)

1. Woman Dan was telling me about his new career.
2. Woman Evidently, he's quit his job, and said he wants to become a full-time artist.
3. Woman He has no other source of income, but he was saying that he'd saved up a lot of money from his job.
4. Woman He's trying to sell his art online.
5. Woman It all seems a little risky to me, because you never know what's going to happen with the economy and everything.
6. Woman I hope it pays off for him in the end.

Lesson D, Ex. 2A, p. 93 (3.29)

1. Bruno One thing I couldn't live without? Um, let's see . . . my car. Life would be hard without a car. The main thing is, it's just so convenient. I mean, the public transportation around here isn't very good. So if I had to rely on buses, I'd spend all day commuting. I've heard, though, that they're going to have a new train service . . . but I'll probably stick with my car!

2. Diana Oh, my gosh. There are lots of things I couldn't live without. But just one thing, huh? Let me think. . . . Well, I'd have to say the one thing I couldn't live without is my gym membership. I have a gym pass, and I use it almost every day. I go to a yoga class and an aerobics class, and I swim. I couldn't live without exercise. Literally! Apparently, it's good for reducing your stress levels – and since I have a stressful job . . . you know, it's good for me.
3. Midori I couldn't live without fresh flowers. My mom said she always bought them every weekend and put them on the table when I was little – and I always remember that. I loved them – the smell, the color. So yeah, I do the same thing now – I buy some flowers every weekend and bring them home. I like to have them around – they remind me of my childhood. They say it's good to treat yourself to something special – every week!
4. Max That's easy – money. Just kidding. Though according to my dad, you need money whether you like it or not! I guess you really can't live without it. But anyway . . . Let's see, one thing. . . . OK, my music collection. It's irreplaceable, really. I just couldn't live without my music. It makes me happy. I turn it on first thing in the morning, and I go to sleep listening to music, too. My mom's always asking me if there's anything I can do without music! But seriously, life wouldn't be much fun without music.

Lesson D, Ex. 2B, p. 93 (3.30)

1. Bruno Life would be hard without a car. The main thing is, it's just so convenient.
2. Diana I couldn't live without exercise. Literally! Apparently, it's good for reducing your stress levels.
3. Midori They say it's good to treat yourself to something special – every week!
4. Max Life wouldn't be much fun without music.

Unit 10 Fame

Lesson C, Ex. 3A and 3B, p. 103 (4.07)

- Tom* Hey, George, what's up?
- George* Hey, Tom. Good to see you. How are things going? How's the band?
- Tom* Well, it's hard to say. I mean, we're still practicing and everything.
- George* But you're writing some new stuff, aren't you? Like your own, original stuff.
- Tom* Yeah, we've got some great new songs, actually. I mean, we're writing all our own stuff. Our main problem is finding places to play. We don't get many gigs.
- George* Really? It's not easy to get bookings, huh?
- Tom* No. We've been trying to find more places to perform. I mean, nobody really knows who we are. If I'd known how hard it is to get gigs, I probably wouldn't have given up my part-time job. I mean, I gave it up so we could play in the evenings and on weekends and everything.
- George* Huh. So what are you doing to get more gigs, then?
- Tom* That's a good question. We really need more publicity. I mean, we've played at a couple of local colleges, but that's about it. We really need to get our name out there, get ourselves known, you know, so we can play at some clubs and bigger places like that. We hardly earn anything right now for the small gigs we do.
- George* Well, you could contact the local radio station, couldn't you? That might lead to something. I mean, they support local bands, don't they?
- Tom* Actually, yeah. That's a great idea. We haven't done that.
- George* And you could record some of your songs, couldn't you? Hire a recording studio for a day. Then you send the songs to music bloggers and reviewers, and upload them to a video-sharing website. You could be viral stars in a couple of weeks! I mean, it's not too difficult to get your name out there. It would be amazing if you got discovered by a record company or something, wouldn't it?
- Tom* Oh, yeah – for sure. But it costs a lot to hire a studio and a producer and record a song. So we haven't really done any of that. And honestly, I wouldn't have any idea how to do it anyway.
- George* Well, you could produce it yourself too, couldn't you? I mean, there's all kinds of software you can use to do that. And you could record it at home . . .

- Tom* Huh. Well, . . .
- George* You should get a manager too, shouldn't you? Someone with connections. You know, someone to get you gigs and get your name out there.
- Tom* Yeah, I guess. We should have had a manager from the start – maybe if we'd had a manager, we would have done better.
- George* Yeah, and you know what? I think if you'd called yourselves something different – if you'd had a catchier name – something people remember – you might have gotten noticed more. But it's not too late. You could still do that, couldn't you?
- Tom* Well, that's a really good point. Nobody knows our name right now. Our drummer chose the name. It's not my favorite, for sure. But hey, you have some good ideas. Maybe you should be our manager! (laughs)
- George* Actually, you know, that's a great idea. I'd be perfect! You see, . . .

Lesson D, Ex. 2B and 2C, p. 105 (4.08)

1. Man What do you think success is?
- Isabel* Well, for me, I really don't think it has anything to do with money or your job or anything like that. I mean, a lot of people think success is making millions and having an important job – but for me, it's nothing like that.
- Man* So, what is success for you?
- Isabel* Well, I think success in life is when you really feel good about what you do every day.
- Man* Do you feel you're successful?
- Isabel* Yeah, I do. I mean, we all have to do some things we don't like doing, don't we – like chores and stuff – but I really try to make everything I do fun. It's really important to find something to enjoy about everything you do, every day, isn't it? Finding that is success.
2. Man So, how would you define success?
- Claire* Well, that's an interesting question. I used to think that it was all about making a lot of money. Like, if I'd made a lot of money, I would have been able to buy anything I wanted, you know, and that would have made me happy . . .
- Man* Yeah?
- Claire* Yeah. For years I was in this big job, and I got a great salary. I was earning twice as much as all my friends. And I thought that was great, but then I realized I really wasn't happy in that job, and so I quit. At some point, the money just became less important to me. And now I think, for me, success is more about doing something that's really worthwhile.

Man So, you changed direction, did you?
Claire Well, actually, yep, I went back to school to become a teacher, and now I'm teaching sixth grade. I love it. I really feel I'm doing something useful, and I like that a lot.

3. Man So what is success for you? Success is . . .
Carlo Well, it's lots of things, actually. But I guess the most important thing for me is my music. . . . So success for me would be to get recognition for my music. You know, to become really well known and have a big following.

Man Right.
Carlo Yeah, then I'd know I was successful, wouldn't I? You know, if lots of people knew my name and knew my music, bought my recordings, came to my concerts, . . . It's not about making money, it's about being known as a musician.

Man So you're not there yet, are you?

Carlo (laughs) No. I wish.

4. Man So what's your definition of success?
Vivian Well, I'm sure it's different for everyone, . . . but I think it means being financially secure. You know, not having to worry about what you spend or about having enough to pay the bills . . .

Man Uh-huh.

Vivian But really, I think success means having more money than you need, so you can enjoy some luxuries, too, you know, like travel and designer clothes and things like that. . . .

Man So have you achieved success?

Vivian Well, I have enough money to pay my bills, but not enough to afford the little luxuries – so, not yet!

Unit 11 Trends

Lesson A, Ex. 3B, p. 109 (4.12)

1. Woman More women are being encouraged to train as science and engineering teachers.
2. Man Bilingual programs are being offered to elementary school students.
3. Woman Students are being required to do community service.
4. Man Education has been given more funding.
5. Woman Technology has been introduced into more classrooms.
6. Man Courses are being made available for more people in the community.

Lesson C, Ex. 1D, p. 112 (4.15)

Greg I mean, like you said, Celia, companies want to save on costs.

Celia But as I said, it's good experience. And internships can lead to full-time jobs.

Adam True. And companies can see if someone is a good fit before they hire them. As you were saying earlier, Celia, they need good employees. It's like I was saying, people want good benefits.

Celia Right. And going back to what you were saying, Greg, telecommuting is a kind of benefit.

Lesson C, Ex. 3B and 3C, p. 113 (4.16)

1. Man . . . I mean, every company should offer it, really. It just makes it easier to organize your own life. Especially if you have a family, and you have to get your kids to school, and so on.

Woman Oh, I agree. There's nothing worse than a 9 to 5 day. Like, for me, it means I can do errands in the morning before work, you know, instead of taking time off, or having to rush and do them on my lunch break.

Man Right. Actually, the program is being extended at our company, so that you can go into work any time between 6 a.m. and 9 p.m. I mean, you have to be at work between 10:00 and 2:00. They're saying the biggest advantage is that it helps keep employees.

Woman Well, that's good. When a lot of people leave, it's not good for business.

Man Right. That, and people are less stressed. I guess because they can manage their personal lives better, like you said – you can go to appointments and do errands, etc.

Woman I guess the disadvantage, though, is you don't always know when someone will be at their desk.

2. Woman . . . I mean, yes, it's nice if you don't have to go in every day, obviously, and I know some people say they get a lot more done. And I guess a lot of people can do it with email and so on. But the problem is, it's easy to get distracted. See, I'm just not that organized and disciplined, so I would look around and see what chores I should do. Like, I'd want to do my laundry, empty the dishwasher, etc.
- Man* (laughs) Yeah, well, there is that. I guess it's easy to do things like that instead of concentrating on work. But still, a lot of employees are being allowed to do it. Some employers positively encourage them to do it because they know people are more productive that way.
- Woman* Right.
- Man* Apparently, a lot of people are being hired from other cities. It's not always easy to find the right people with the right skills in our small city. Especially for IT staff. So that's why they let people telecommute . . .
- Woman* So that they can hire more qualified staff . . .
- Man* Right. Well, I have to say I would do it – if I could. Like I said, at least I'd get my laundry and chores and so on done! And I'd save on gas, too. That would be good.
3. Man . . . you know, and that's not good really. I mean, even if it's unpaid, it would be better than not having it.
- Woman* I agree. I mean, when we had our first, I really needed the help, you know, with feeding and changing and so forth. It was difficult being at home by myself. I wish my husband could have been there.
- Man* So his company didn't offer it, then?
- Woman* No. And I could only take a few weeks off. It wasn't long enough. I mean, I'm sure it's better for the company, too. You know, employees who get leave like that are happier and less stressed.
- Man* I bet. I suppose the disadvantage is, I imagine, men might think that their bosses won't see them as serious about their work, you know, as a result of taking time off like that. And it might harm their chances of promotion, etc. . . .
- Woman* True. But it's more important to spend that time with your family, don't you think?
4. Woman . . . Yeah, it definitely has its advantages, though mostly for the company, I think. I mean, from their point of view, they save a lot of money – apparently – by not having a workspace and a desk and so on for everyone.
- Man* Yeah. That would be a little weird for me. I mean, what would you do with all your stuff, like your family photos, and your coffee mug, and things like that?
- Woman* Well, I guess they have lockers to store all your personal things. But it would be a pain, you know, calling to reserve a desk for the day. I mean, it's probably OK for salespeople if they're hardly ever in the office. But . . .
- Man* Oh, I'd hate it. You know, they tried hot-desking back in the '80s, and I heard a lot of people didn't like it. They said employees didn't feel connected to the team – so they, like, never got the chance to get to know each other, and build relationships at work, and so on and so forth.
- Woman* So even though it didn't work then, it's being tried again now.

Lesson D, Ex. 2A and 2B, p. 115 (4.17)

1. Adam What I've noticed lately is that the texts I receive are longer and clearer than they used to be several years ago. There's a lot less "textese," like "BTW" for "by the way" and "LOL" for "laugh out loud." I guess it's because it's a lot easier to type on a phone now, and also, phones automatically correct spelling, you know, when you hit the wrong keys. I think this makes communication a lot easier. One funny thing is, I have a few friends who don't pay enough attention when they text, and they don't notice when the phone makes the wrong correction. Some of the mistakes are hilarious!
2. Emily One thing I've noticed is that people seem to buy more and more things on the Internet – food, clothes, cleaning supplies, you name it. I think it's a more efficient way to buy things, and the result is that people have more free time to do what they want. I mean, I used to spend every weekend at the mall. I'd go from store to store with a long list of things to buy, and sometimes I'd find them and sometimes I wouldn't. As for clothes, it could take several weekends to find the right thing. Now people do all that on their computers. Sometimes they'll go into a store, but just to get a good look at something before they buy it online.

3. Tyler One thing that has changed in the last few years is that movie attendance is going down. I guess it's because ticket costs are going up, so the trend is for people to watch more movies at home. Most of my friends, they pay a monthly fee and get movies on demand. Of course, they all want to make the experience just as exciting as going to a movie theater, so they spend lots of money on gigantic televisions and sound systems. Thousands of dollars, in fact. And these systems consume more and more electricity, just when the whole world is trying to conserve energy. And is all this really less expensive than going out to a movie? People need to get out more, exercise more, and just be more aware of the world outside.

4. Madison Something that has changed in the last few years is that people just can't put away their phones, even when they're out with friends. At least, that's the way it is with my friends. You know, it's like when someone's talking about a movie they just saw, and they can't remember the name of an actor. So everyone grabs their phones to search for it. And then one person notices a new text message, and starts answering it. And someone else is like checking email, and so on. And then a few minutes later, someone says, "What were we just talking about?" OK, so maybe I'm exaggerating. But it's more and more difficult to have interesting, intelligent conversations when you get together with friends.

Unit 12 Careers

Lesson C, Ex. 1D, p. 122 (4.24)

1. Jenn Have you had any experience? What I was going to say was it helps when you have previous work experience.
Jin-ho Actually, yeah. I worked in a restaurant one time. The best part was I got good tips.
2. Jin-ho So what will you be doing during summer break?
Jenn I'll be working as a camp counselor this year. My friend did it last year. She said it was great. What I thought was good was that she got to go rafting and everything with the kids and she got paid for it.
3. Jin-ho How old were you when you got your first job? The reason I ask is my sister wants to work, but she's only 15.
Jenn What I heard was that you have to be 16 before you can get a job. But I'm not sure.

Lesson C, Ex. 3A and 3B, p. 123 (4.25)

- Woman* Good question. I guess I see my – um, I see my job as helping people to achieve their personal fitness goals. That's my main priority. Of course, there are many things that come into it, like educating clients about their general health as well as exercise. But basically my job is to build an individual exercise program for each client. And that's . . .
 . . . Well, it's very simple. A big part of my job is to motivate people – that's why a lot of people call me. They can't stick to an exercise program by themselves. And one thing that's very important is to make sure that the program suits their lifestyle. A lot of my clients are very busy people, so I plan their workouts early in the morning. And another reason is that often, they simply don't know what to do – which exercises to do, how to use the equipment, etc. And people . . .

 . . . Oh, definitely. I don't know if you know, but one jobs website lists "personal trainer" as one of the top 10 most interesting jobs, which is probably why more than 250,000 people choose to do this as a career. For me, the best part is working with clients. You build very strong personal relationships. Many of my clients are like friends. It's amazing how much I learn about their personal lives. So it's great in that way. And it's wonderful when you see that you have helped someone become fit, lose weight, and just be generally healthier. . . .

. . . You know, it's a great job overall. One thing that's great is that I work for myself – I'm my own boss. And what's great is that I don't have to go to an office 9 to 5 every day. And, of course, I am extremely fit. I guess there are . . . there are pros and cons to any job, and what can be difficult is that sometimes my clients call me at the last minute and cancel appointments. As I said, they're busy people, so they can't always keep appointments. And of course the other thing is that if I get sick, like if I get a cold or something, I can't work. I don't want to make my clients sick, and it's not safe to exercise when you're sick either. And if I don't work, I don't get paid. . . .

. . . (laughs) Well, there are personal trainers who work with celebrities and they make a lot of money. I mean, they're earning a fortune – like, thousands of dollars for each session. But it's not like that for most of us. Most of us are earning about $35,000 to $40,000 a year.

Lesson D, Ex. 2A and 2B, p. 125 (4.26)

Maria Hey, Alex, you won't believe this! I saw an ad online yesterday for the perfect summer job. Well, perfect for me, anyway.

Alex Really? What kind of job?

Maria It's with a travel company. I don't know if you've heard of them – Canada Travel – but they're looking for local tour guides. Just part-time – but that's OK. I'll be working on my final paper this summer . . . so, yeah. I'll have time, but I can still study, too.

Alex A tour guide, huh? That sounds interesting. What do you have to do, exactly?

Maria Well, it says it's a fun summer job, and they want someone who enjoys meeting students from other countries. I'd love that. I mean, it's fun talking to people from overseas – you find out so much about people. And you know me, I'll talk to anyone.

Alex Yeah, that's true. So what else do you need – I mean, do you have to speak another language or anything?

Maria Yeah. The funny thing is they want people who can speak English and Spanish. I mean, I lived in Chile for two years, so my Spanish is pretty good. But one of the main things they want is for you to be interested in your local area and its history.

Alex Really? Oh, this job really is perfect for you. I mean, you spend every weekend going to museums and visiting all the historical sights.

Maria I know, and just think, the best thing is I'll get paid for doing it.

Alex Cool. It sounds fun, actually.

Maria Oh, and you get to travel around the whole region for two days a week.

Alex Wow. So, you'll be taking tourists on day trips and stuff like that. I mean, if you get the job. So, what do you have to do to apply?

Maria Actually, I've applied already online. They wanted fun, flexible, and hard-working applicants. And I'm all three, so . . . yeah. I wrote a cover letter and attached my résumé. So I hope I hear back soon. I really want this job.

Alex I'm sure.

Exercise 2

A Problem:

... there is sometimes a lack of understanding and respect between students and teachers.

Solution:

... have a teacher-student swap day once a semester.

Benefits:

... students could see what teachers have to do to prepare for a class.

... teachers could learn new ideas from students and how students learn best.

... students could find out if teaching is something they'd like to do as a career.

How the solution will be implemented:

Each semester, every teacher would become a student and let two students take over the class.

TOUCHSTONE

Touchstone is an innovative four-level series for adults and young adults, taking students from beginning to intermediate levels (CEFR: A1 – B2). Based on research into the Cambridge English Corpus, Touchstone teaches English as it is really used. It presents natural language in authentic contexts, and explicitly develops conversation strategies so learners speak with fluency and confidence.

New in the Second Edition

- Extra grammar practice focuses on key grammar points in each unit.
- Can-do statements help students understand the learning outcomes of each lesson and rate their own performance.
- Common error information from the Cambridge Learner Corpus helps students avoid making basic errors.
- Sounds right activities provide regular pronunciation practice and enable students to speak with confidence.

CAMBRIDGE ENGLISH CORPUS

The Cambridge English Corpus is a multi-billion word collection of written and spoken English. It includes the Cambridge Learner Corpus, a unique bank of exam candidate papers.

Our authors study the Corpus to see how English is really used, and to identify typical learner mistakes. This means that Cambridge materials help students to avoid mistakes, and you can be confident the language taught is useful, natural and fully up to date.
